National Debts.

A writer on the public debts of nations presents an interesting table comparing the figures of 1865 with those of 1890. During that quarter of a century the grand total increased enormously. The only nations showing any decrease were the United States, Great Britain and Denmark. The latter had a debt of $45,220,000 in 1865, and of $33,004,722 in 1890. This is certainly a highly creditably showing for a country so limited in resources and population. Great Britain had a debt of $3,848,460,000 at the earlier of these dates, and of $3,350,719,563 at the latter. But the United States was the only country which made any very great reduction, namely, from $2,756,431,571 to $915,962,112, just about two-thirds. At that rate the entire debt ought to be wiped out during the first administration in the twentieth century. Turning now to the continent of Europe, including Russia and Turkey, which are in Asia, we find the debt increasing, figures to be as follows:

Nations.	1865.	1890.
Germany.....	$ 610,470,000	$1,966,217,017
Aus-Hun.....	1,473,220,000	2,866,339,539
France.....	3,646,560,000	4,446,793,398
Russia.....	980,080,000	3,491,018,074
Italy.....	871,080,000	2,324,826,329
Spain.....	999,600,000	1,251,453,696
Netherlands.	414,120,000	430,589,853
Belgium.....	119,050,000	380,504,098
Sweden.....	21,420,000	64,220,807
Norway.....	9,044,000	13,973,752
Portugal.....	190,400,000	490,493,599
Greece.....	34,510,000	107,306,518
Turkey.....	229,432,000	821,000,000
Switzerland..	714,000	10,912,925

Totals.....$8,609,650,000 $18,655,649,611

It will be observed that the aggregate shows considerably more than two to one. Germany and Russia show an increase of three to one, France of less than double, notwithstanding the enormous indemnity exacted by Germany at the close of the Franco-Prussian war. Evidently republicanism, in distinction from imperialism, as well as republicanism in distinction from democracy, tends to national economy.

Lord Salisbury.

Lord Salisbury, although his career is stained with the record of deeds done when he was under the glamour of Lord Beaconsfield, has, since he was himself again, regained much of the confidence of the country which he then forfeited, and even among the ranks of the late Ministry there are not a few who regard his advent to power with feelings of complacent satisfaction. He is not the "W. G." of politics; there is no "W. G." in the political arena since W. E. G. retired from Parliament, but after W. E. G. he comes nearest to being the political champion of the day. Lord Salisbury is deficient in the faculty of commanding great enthusiasm. There is too strong a dash of cynicism in his character, too great readiness to cut and thrust with ruthless blade at the most cherished convictions of his countrymen when they do not coincide with his own views as to what is wise and just. There is also about him a certain aloofness as of a hermit, which, while standing him in good stead in some things, weakens him in others. He shrinks, for instance, from meeting political opponents. He lives to himself, apart, a student, a thinker, and a patriot. Excepting during the lamentable period when he was under the domination of Lord Beaconsfield, he has never shown himself devoid of caution and common sense; indeed, it may rather be admitted that in his foreign policy he has shown a disposition to undue caution rather than to any excess of daring. He has submitted to be squeezed by Germany rather than risk the loss of a good understanding with Berlin. If, as some seem to think, we are entering upon a critical period in which the atmosphere is charged with saltpetre, it is a source of satisfaction to reflect that our destinies are in the hands of a tried and experienced statesman, who keeps his blazing indiscretions for home consumption, who watches over the interest of Britain abroad with ceaseless vigilance, and holds the helm of state with a steady hand.—From "The Third Salisbury Cabinet," by W. T. Stead, in the August Review of Reviews.

Benefits to the Soil.

The profits and receipts from a farm cannot easily be computed for a single year. Labor given this season may bring in results for a year or two after the work is done. Manure on some soils is lasting, and the beneficial effects of some fertilizers are more apparent the second year than the first. A crop of clover that gives a yield as hay may leave in the roots and sod much valuable nitrogen as a supply for some succeeding crop, all of which lessen expenses in the future by reducing the proportion of manure or plant food that would otherwise be required, with the necessary labor. Profits on the farm are consequently much greater when the averages for several years are compared, as each year must bear its proportion of expense, and a failure to secure a profit this year may not be a loss, because there may be a corresponding reduction of expense next year. The best mode of reducing expenses is to cultivate no more land than can be kept up to its highest limit of fertility so as to secure the largest yield possible.

Manitoba's Reply.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 10.—The Tribune, which usually speaks with authority for Mr. Greenway's government, tonight says: Regarding the reply to the rejoinder from Ottawa on the school question, it is not likely the local government will take it up for a fortnight yet, as nearly all the members of the cabinet are out of town on their vacation, and they will scarcely be back by that time. In fact, it may be considerably later before they are all in town at one time, and it would require a session of the full council to draft a reply. It is, however, hinted that the reply will be a New England one. They will answer one question by asking another. The Ottawa cabinet has asked how far they are prepared to go; the local government will reply by asking how far the dominion cabinet think they ought to go. As the matter is one of the utmost importance the local government will not do anything hurriedly.

The 'Nor'-Wester', which is not Mr. Greenway's organ, has this to say on the same subject: From the scurrying of local ministers hither and thither it is evident that there cannot be a cabinet meeting to discuss the latest communication from the Federal Government on the school question at least for a week yet. No one who is up to the little devices of Mr. Greenway and his colleagues ever expected anything else. There cannot be a cabinet meeting until the communication in question has been sent east and advice as to the action to be taken obtained from Mr. Laurier, Mr. Mills and Mr. Dalton McCarthy. These are the gentlemen who are acting for Manitoba in this matter, and not Mr. Greenway and his colleagues. The latter have to put in the time until the advice comes, hence the scurrying.

She Wore Red Bloomers.

PATERSON, N. J., Aug.—Lawyer Richard Randall says his first client the other day was a man named W. J. Eaveson, of Hawthorne, who is a bicycle rider, and has a wife who is also fond of riding the wheel. The latter had been wearing the divided skirt for a time, but a day or so ago she appeared on the streets in a pair of dark red bloomers. Her husband protested, but she continued to wear the bloomers.

Eaveson wanted Lawyer Randall's advice as to what he could do towards putting a stop to the red bloomers. The lawyer told him he could not stop it, as the "new woman" was here to stay, and if the husband would just wait a year or two he would not only see red bloomers on the road but see them in the legislative halls at Trenton.
