

Hang Clothing That Doesn't Fit.

That's what every man says, yet some eep right on patronizing the same tailor. No excuse for it whatever, when a man knows about this store. Bad fit is a capital offence, and a man that tolerates it aids and abets in the crime. Learn to say "no" when a tailor tries to wrap you up a suit that makes you look like the wild man of Borneo. Just take a wal around to our store and get exactly what you want, at a lower price. Latest New York Fashion Reports regularly received.

The Political Crisis.

The Liberals have a habit of finding constitutional obstacles to courses of procedure which they do not like, many of which are unsubstantial. They have no end of constitutional reasons just now why Sir Charles Tupper should not be asked to form a ministry. They argue that Sir Charles Tupper is a civil servant, and cannot therefore be called on; that he has not a seat in parliament, and should not therefore be called in; that if chosen by a caucus of the Conservatives as their leader the Governor-General should not take heed of what a caucus does; that his name is not likely to be suggested by Sir Mackenzie Bowell to the Governor-General, as the Governor-General is not bound to ask the advice of his retiring adviser, and so forth and so on. The conclusion of the argument always is, of course, that the only proper and right thing for the Governor-General to do is to call upon Mr. Laurier or whoever the leader of the Opposition may be to form a government. The Liberals should know that the Governor-General is not bound to ask or follow the advice of the outgoing premier. That is impossible, for instance, in case of his sudden death or his death in a distant country. They know that neither Sir John Macdonald nor Sir John Thompson had any opportunity to advise the Governor-General. But they must know also, though the Governor-General is not bound to ask the advice of a retiring premier, as a matter of fact he generally does so, and though not bound to follow it when given he generally does, for all that, act upon it.

When Sir John Macdonald retired he advised the Governor-General to call in Mr. Mackenzie; when Sir John Abbott retired he advised him to call in Sir John Thompson. In each case the retiring premier advised the Governor-General to call in the man who he thought was best capable of commanding the majority in parliament or in the country. That, in fact, is the prime object, whether of the Governor-General or the retiring premier, and it is worth a view to reaching it that the Governor-General seeks the advice of outgoing premiers, who are in the position to understand the political situation better than anyone else. If the man who in the opinion of the Governor-General or the outgoing premier commands the confidence of parliament or the people is a judge or a civil servant, or if he is not a member of parliament, so long as he is not disqualified from citizenship or of becoming a member of parliament eventually, he is quite qualified to be called in by the Governor-General, whether by or against the advice of the outgoing premier. Sir Oliver Mowat was called from the bench to become premier of Ontario, and was appointed before he had obtained a seat in the Assembly. If the Governor-General chooses, therefore, whether by or against the advice of Sir Mackenzie Bowell, he can quite constitutionally and even rightly, if he believes it to be right, call on Sir Charles Tupper to form a ministry. If Sir Mackenzie Bowell retires we should expect that he would advise the Governor-General to call on him, if it appears that he is the choice of the dominant party in parliament. For if he is not called in when the parliamentary party in the majority want no one else, any other man chosen would find it impossible to form a ministry or to command the necessary majority in parliament, so that ultimately he would have to be called in. Of course, if the Governor-General believes, whether of his own knowledge or from the advice to the outgoing premier, that a man who possesses the confidence of a majority of a moribund parliament is not likely to secure the confidence of the country he will rightly pass over him and call in the man whom he believes to possess the confidence of the country, and by allowing him to dissolve parliament appeal to the people for a parliament to support him. This is not, however, as safe a course for a Governor-General as that of simply choosing the man who has the confidence of the majority in parliament as it exists. This man may be indicated by a vote of a caucus of the majority of members or by the suggestion of the well-known leaders of the majority, who would be willing to serve under him or in some other way, but, however indicated, is the probable choice. In any case, however, the final decision will be made by the country in the general elections, and the Opposition, however convinced they may be that the game will be an unfair one, that dice will be loaded, should with dignity rely upon and await the verdict of the people.—Montreal Witness.

Abdul Hamid, Sultan of Turkey.

Abdul Hamid is, of all men, one of those most to be pitied, but at the present moment there is but little pity or compassion shown him. The custom of punishing the Pope for Caesar's crimes is still fashionable among mankind, and Abdul Hamid is being made the scapegoat for all the Ottomans. Not that he is without crimes of his own—black and bloody crimes, according to our Western ideas; but, in the eyes of the Oriental, their only criminality consists in that they are not black and bloody enough to achieve their end. For the government of Osman has always been, since the days when the Tartar horsemen first taught Asia how terrible was their wrath, a government of terror. By terror the Sultans climbed to supreme power; by terror they have maintained themselves on the throne of the Caesars for five centuries, and it is only because they can no longer inspire sufficient terror that the Ottoman Empire is crumbling into ruin. Abdul Hamid, no doubt, resorted to massacre as a British Prime Minister attempts to renew his power by a dissolution. Atrocities are as natural to the Turk as the general elections to a parliamentarian. They are the traditional Ottoman method of renewing the mandate of the ruler. No doubt this is offensive to western civilization. The Sultan is an anachronism in the last decade of the nineteenth century, and those who have been trying to make believe that he was a civilized sovereign are no doubt experiencing the revulsion natural to disappointed hope. But those of us who have never for one moment forgotten that the Turk is simply the aboriginal savage encamped on the ruins of a civilization which he destroyed, can afford to be more mild and just in our estimate of the character of the last of the line of Osman.—From "Abdul Hamid, Sultan of Turkey: A Character Sketch," by W. T. Stead, in the January Review of Reviews.

One pill a dose. 25 a box. The cheapest medicine in the world.

Every trial may teach a lesson.

A MARVELLOUS STATEMENT.

The Oldest Merchant of Niagara-on-the Lake, Ont., Speaks of Paine's Celery Compound.

An Astonishing Victory Over Disease.

Every man, woman and child in and around the pretty town of Niagara-on-the Lake, Ont., knows Mr. H. W. Chrysler, the deserving and successful merchant. Hundreds of families in the district are already aware of the fact that by the use of Paine's Celery Compound, Mr. Chrysler was raised up from a condition of utter helplessness, misery and weakness to a new life, and is now in such a healthful condition, that he is perfectly able to look after the details of his flourishing business.

Mr. Chrysler's story of his long fight with the worst form of rheumatism, his failures with useless medicines, and his grand triumph with Paine's Celery Compound, are given to the public as follows:

"About four years since, I had a severe attack of grippe, followed by rheumatism, for which the local physician prescribed the usual remedies, which helped me at the time, but did not eliminate the disease. Becoming gradually worse, I finally became discouraged and began using 'proprietary' medicines without any benefit. Then I went to 'Clifton Spring,' took the treatment, and felt somewhat better; but after coming back I became very much worse, and was confined to bed for a time. I then went to 'Preston Springs,' and really improved; but after returning home I got worse, and was a perfect martyr for more than two years, often confined to bed, and gradually becoming worse.

"I was then induced to try Paine's Celery Compound, and have gained in health and strength up to the present writing. I now walk from my house to the store, a distance of one quarter of a mile, daily, and to church Sundays. Paine's Celery Compound has done all this for me. My friends are surprised and astonished to see me able to attend to business again. I might add that I have been in business in Niagara for 41 years, and was 70 years old on 7th January last.

"Believing that it is my duty to let other sufferers know of the great benefit I have received from Paine's Celery Compound, I cheerfully send this letter."

A SUFFERING ARMY.

Borne Down by a Relentless Foe.

The great army of sufferers from various rheumatic conditions joyfully welcome Chase's K. & L. Pills because the foster parents of their aches and pains are the Kidneys, which, on account of a diseased condition, are unable to relieve the blood of uric acid poison, which is deposited in the joints, producing on the first provocation irritating aches and pains in the bones, joints and muscles. The reason that Chase's Pills relieve and cure is their wonderful power in restoring degenerate Kidneys to a perfect and natural condition, without which the system is supplied with blood teeming with poison that adds fuel to the fire of rheumatic complaints, demoralizing the entire system and rendering it liable to a complication of diseases terminating in dropsy, diabetes, or Bright's disease. A pleasant feature of these Pills is that, while most Kidney remedies encourage constipation, Chase's relieve and cure it. In nearly all rheumatic attacks there exists constipation of the bowels, which is easily overcome by Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills; in fact, they are a perfect cure for constipation. This is endorsed by Edward Garrett, editor and proprietor of the Bradford, Ont., Weekly Witness, and thousands of others. One pill a dose. 25 cents a box. The cheapest medicine on earth. Sold by all dealers. Edman-son, Bates & Co., Toronto.
