Charles Tupper a well known resident was taken to the Provincial Lunatic asylum on Tuesday last, by his son James Tupper. Mr. Tupper had been to the institution about a year ago, remaining only a few months.

Miss Eliza Wharton died at her residence on Tuesday last aged about 80 years. The funeral took place on Thursday at the Methodist church and was largely attended. The services were conducted by Rev. A. E. Lepage of Upper Kent, assisted by Revs. S. J. Perry and S. W. Sprague. The barn owned by Ezekiel Clark was burned on Tuesday night about 10 o'clock. It is not known how the fire originated, but it is supposed to have been set by some one. Mr. Secord was away from home at the time. They were insured for $300, but this will not cover more than half the loss. Mr. Secord had just commenced haying, and intended to begin hauling in the next day. Fortunately the most of his farm machinery was in the field, and thus escaped being burnt.

BRISTOL.

Messrs. Lewis J. King and H. H. Capen, converted Catholics, lectured in the hall on Saturday evening to a good audience.

Rev. D. E. Brooks has recently had an addition to his family, another boy—the tenth.

Herb Boyer, who for a number of years did quite a peddling business, has opened up a shop in the lower part of the village.

HARTLAND.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. held their monthly public temperance meeting in the Methodist church on Monday evening of last week. An excellent lecture was delivered by Rev. William DeWare of Waterville, in which he presented many practical reasons why we should have prohibition. Short addresses were also given by Revs. J. Champion and J. B. Gough. The music of the evening was of an excellent quality calling forth the admiration of many. It was furnished by the "surplus choir." Miss Alberta Tracey late of the New England Conservatory of Music presided at the organ. This choir consists of the young ladies of the village; and promises to lend much interest to the public meetings of the W. C. T. U.

Look! Look at This.

You might have noticed the fact that many of our enterprising dealers in the County have given up the credit business and are working strictly on a cash basis. Frank L. Atherton of King Street, Woodstock proposes to be the first harness maker and dealer of the County to enter on this course. He has been running one of the biggest trades in the Harness line that has been done north of Fredericton for the last seven years. He is anxious to sell cheaper and he can do this only by buying for spot cash. To do this he must need sell for cash. He desires to announce to his patrons that after the 15th of August he will not enter any more sales on his books. Everything he sells must be for cash down. Mr. Atherton asks the public to kindly look at his extensive and varied stock. You can find at his store Hand Sewed Single and Double Harness, Fly Nets of all descriptions, Blankets, Carriage Robes, Whips, Carriage Boots and Horses Boots, of all kinds, Harness Oil and Soap, Carriage Grease Riding Saddles felt blankets, and bits of every description. He has also some fine things in the way of light track harnesses. In fact you can find at his place of business absolutely everything usually kept in a first class harness shop. You will find his prices away down below anything you can find elsewhere. Don't forget the place, Frank L. Atherton, opposite Peoples' Bank, King St., Woodstock.

The Genuine Wilkinson Steel Plow

Can be had only from us and our agents. Other makers attempt to imitate these Plows. If, however you examine the imitation you will find the steel mould board is but little more than half the thickness of Wilkinson's, and in many other ways the imitation has been cheapened. Our agents as below have the Plows made by Wilkinson:

Geo. H. West, Grand Falls; D. B. Hopkins, Aroostook Jc't; J. F. Tweeddale, Perth; M. A. Smith, Bath; A. D. Clark, Florenceville; Shaw & Dibblee, Hartland; J. W. Ellsworth, Richmond; W. Riley Trafford, Southampton.

WHO DID THE MURDER?

Examination Now Going on in Boston.

The circumstances connected with the murder on board the barquentine Herbert Fuller is fresh in the minds of DISPATCH readers. About two weeks ago, this vessel entered Halifax harbor with her flag at half mast, and the red flag of mutiny floating. It was found that on the voyage from Boston the captain C. J. Nash, his wife, and mate A. W. Banbery had been murdered. Two men were in irons charged with the deed, Thos. Bram, first mate and Charles Brown seaman. After an examination in Halifax, the proceedings were removed to Boston.

On Friday last, in this latter city, the preliminary examination was begun before U. S. Commissioner Fiske. The first witness called was Frank Noebec, who testified that he shipped on the Herbert Fuller on July 8. About one o'clock in the morning of July 14 witness was on deck; he saw the second mate. At two o'clock went to the wheel to relieve Brown. The bell did not strike at two o'clock. It was the duty of the man at the wheel to strike the bell. Saw the first mate going down the companionway in a hurry towards the cabin. Someone called out, "Mr. Bram." Bram stopped over the companionway. Heard the passenger say to the mate, "Don't you throw that board at me. I am all right." Bram then came to witness at the wheel and asked where Brown was. He looked pale. He went to the passenger's room. Saw the passenger put on some clothing. Both passenger and mate came on deck. After coming on deck they went to the window between the main and the mizzen mast. At four o'clock the cook (Spencer) came on deck. He went forward and joined the mate and passenger. They came back and told witness that the captain was dead. They went forward again and the crew came up and talked of directing the course to the nearest port. The mate talked of going to French Guiana, and gave orders south southeast. Witness was believed by Oscar Anderson at the wheel. Getting among the crew the mate said, "Don't blame the living for the dead, the dead cannot answer for themselves." The mate said the captain might have got an axe and killed his wife and second mate, and then killed himself. To this Brown said, "Throw the bodies overboard." The mate, Bram, was drunk at four o'clock, and crying and praying, but witness did not see any tears coming in his eyes. Bram said the captain was a Freemason. Witness said that soon after he was at the wheel he heard a sound like a gargle. He leaned over with one hand on the wheel and saw the mate and the passenger going to the passenger's room. Continuing, witness and Brown went below and got the canvas. The bodies were covered by Brown, Anderson and Henricks. "How did Brown handle the bodies?" asked Mr. Dasey. "Rough." Witness said Brown had on a cap and blue woolen shirt. In the presence of the mate he heard the steward (Spencer) ask what cuts were on the captain. The mate replied he did not know. Brown on the Sunday before town that a number of Americans chiefly from Texas and Southern States, have signified their intention of moving north and settling in Canada if the money crisis does not soon pass over. The prospect of free silver coinage is undoubtedly responsible for all this.

Silver Scare.

TORONTO, Aug. 1.—As an instance of the fear that the present uncertainty of the money market in the United States is instilling in the minds of American capitalists, may be cited the fact that a well-known financial man of Memphis, Tenn., who comes to Canada for his holidays every summer, has this year brought with him between $40,000 and $50,000 in gold and deposited it in one of the city banks evidently feeling that it will be safer here than in his own country. It is also reported freely around
