The Blue and the Gray.

Both men and women are apt to feel a little blue, when the gray hairs begin to show. It's a very natural feeling. In the normal condition of things gray hairs belong to advanced age. They have no business whitening the head of man or woman, who has not begun to go down the slope of life. As a matter of fact, the hair turns gray regardless of age, or of life's seasons; sometimes it is, whitened by sickness, but more often from lack of care. When the hair fades or turns gray there's no need to resort to hair dyes. The normal color of the hair is restored and retained by the use of

An Apple Problem.

Once upon a time there were two old men who sat in the market early every morning and sold apples. Each one had thirty apples, and one of the old men sold two for 1 cent, and the other old man sold three for 1 cent. In that way the first old man got 15 cents for his basket of apples while the second old man received 10 cents; so that together they made 25 cents each day, the old apple man who sold three for 1 cent was too sick to go to the market, and he asked his neighbor to take his apples and sell them for him. This the other old man kindly consented to do, and when he got to the market with the two baskets of apples, he said to himself: "I will put all the apples into one basket, for it will be easier than picking them out of two baskets." So he put the sixty apples into one basket, and he said to himself: "Now, if I sell two apples for 1 cent and my old friend sells three for 1 cent, that is the same thing as selling five apples for 2 cents. Therefore, I will sell five apples for 2 cents." When he had sold the sixty apples he found he had only 24 cents, which was right, because there are twelve fives in sixty, and twice twelve are twenty-four. But if the other old man had been there, and each one had sold his apples separately, they would have received 25 cents. Now, how is this explained?—St. Nicholas for November.

How the Dipper Saved the Farm.

Father was sick and the mortgage on the farm was coming due. I saw in the Christian Advocate where Miss A. M. Fritz, of Station A, St. Louis, Mo. would send a sample combination dipper for 18 two cent stamps, and I ordered one. I saw the dipper could be used as a fruit jar filler, a plain dipper, a fine strainer, a funnel, a strainer funnel, a sick room warming pan and a pint measure. These eight different uses makes the dipper such a necessary article that I went to work with it and it sells at very near every house. And in four months I paid off the mortgage. I think I can clear as much as $200 a month. If you need work you can do well by giving this a trial. Miss A. M. Fritz, Station A, St. Louis, Mo., will send you a sample for 18 two cent stamps—write at once. JOHN G. N.

To Fight Moths.

Various repellents, such as tobacco, camphor, naphthalme cones or balls, and cedar chips or strips, have a certain value if the garments are already stocked with eggs or larvae. The odor of these repellents are so disagreeable to the parent moth that they are not apt to come to deposit their eggs as long as the odor is strong. As it weakens, the protection decreases, and if the eggs or larvae are already present these odors have no effect on their development, while if the moths are inclosed with the stored material to be protected by these repellents, so that they cannot escape, they will of necessity deposit their eggs, and the destructive work of the larvae will be little, if at all, restricted. After woollens have been given a vigorous and thorough treatment and aired and exposed to sunlight, however, it is of some advantage in packing them away to inclose with them. Cedar chests and wardrobes are of value in proportion to the freedom of the material from infestation when stored away; but as the odor of the wood is largely lost with age, in the course of a few years the protection greatly decreases. Furs and garments may also be stored in boxes or trunks which have been lined with the heavy tar paper used in buildings. New papering should be given to such receptacles every month. Similarly, the tarred paper moth bags are of some value, always, however, first subjecting the materials to the treatment outlined above.

Cured of Chronic Catarrh.

A Remarkable Cure.—J. W. Jennison, Gilford, spent between $200 and $300 in consulting doctors; tried Dixon's and all other treatments but got no benefit. One box of Chase's Catarrh Cure did me more good than all other remedies, in fact I consider myself cured, and with a 55 cent box at that.

The Nationalization of Swiss Railways. The question of the acquisition of Swiss railway finance which was submitted to a national referendum on October 4, has (according to the London Times) been brought forward with a view to the nationalization of Swiss railways. It will enable the state to establish the value of these lines at the time of their being taken over by the federation. As such a project necessarily effects in some degree the dividends of the railway shareholders, the administration of the projected Simplon railway has deferred appealing to the public for the necessary funds. The date for commencing the Simplon tunnel works has not yet been fixed, but the negotiations for the construction of the new railway are well advanced. The Italian chamber has yet to give its sanction to the contract, and the federal authorities are awaiting a full statement of the financial prospects of the scheme from the Jura Simplon Company. The minimum capital guaranteed by the federation amounts to ten million francs, of which the state contributes four million, as before in the case of the St. Gothard Tunnel, the other six million being contributed by the cantons and important towns of French Switzerland. On this question of railway financial aid, and a second measure hereafter to be submitted to the vote of the people collectively, that of the creation of a state bank, the cantons are greatly divided. The principal German cantons are, generally speaking, in favor of both projects as part of a wide scheme of government centralization, while French Switzerland and some of the smaller cantons are opposed to any measures which may diminish the cantonal autonomy of Switzerland, or limit the right of private enterprise. There is at present a second project for piercing the Alps at the Great St. Bernard and joining the Italian station of Aosta with Martigny. The cost is estimated at nearly 40 million francs, and the length of the top tunnel would be only three kilometres. This line would be of great importance to Turin, but, owing to the steep gradients necessary, could not enter into serious competition with the Simplon route. The latter would effect great economies of time and distance in the transcontinental service, and would carry the Indian mails.—Railway Reviews.

Marry This Girl Quick.

I saw in your paper that a 13 year old boy made $1.25 the first hour he worked selling the perfection Metal Tip Lampwick. I ordered a sample and went to work and the first week I cleared $10, the second week I cleared $15. I expect to run up to $25 a week in the near future, as the Perfection Metal Tip Lampwick makes such a beautiful white light and does away with smoky chimneys and bad odor and saves oil, it is easy to sell. If you wish to try it send 13 two cent stamps to Miss A. M. Fritz, Station A, St. Louis, Mo., and she will send you sample outfit. This is a good way to make money around home. MISS TINA W.

The Farmers' work.

What does the farmer do himself for his own safety? Does he not lay by and save up for the time of need by and by? This he should do for his fields. Twenty acres of grass will easily feed one fourth more stock if divided into four separate fields, to be used in succession. This ensures a reserve for the time when the sere and yellow leaf comes and the verdure has disappeared otherwise. The time of rest, with the precaution to the ground by spreading the manure or removing it from the grass, which it kills by its excess, freshens the pasture, and the cattle take to it as if it were early Springtime. Then the harrow drawn over the short grass also enlivens it and hastens the new growth. "Thus he much assists the field who breaks the sluggish sod with harrows, and thus frequently exercises and subdues the fields."

Thus wrote the grand master of our art 2,000 years ago, and what he then advised his neighbors we find in our day to be of equal value as it was then. There is nothing better that can be done to lengthen the time of productivity of meadow, and if this be done even now the stimulated growth will quickly cover the land with new verdure and add much to the pasturing season.

And now cometh the season of the church fair, and the fireman's ball, and all manner of devices to tempt the peace of the patient merchant. And lo! the ringleted maiden of uncertain age appealeth to the merchant in the name of charity and the knees of him quake—yea, his tongue cleaveth to the roof of his mouth. For it shall come to pass that another, and yet another, cometh to him likewise; and to one he giveth a cake-basket that the church steeple may be built, and to another a clock that the debt may be pulverized, and eke to another a watch that the heathen may be furnished with umbrellas and cologne. And cometh that way also, the citizen with influence, on behalf of the Hook-and-Ladder Company; and the merchant fain would not, but he feareth to lose the favor of the "b'hoys," and more silverware goeth the way of the other. And when all is done it cometh to his ears that the rival merchant dootheth him in liberality, and that the several maidens who besought him for their several enterprises, and likewise the solid citizen, cleaveth to the rival who gave abundantly, and scorneth him of the cautious giving. So the heart of the merchant sickeneth within him; and he taketh himself up a dark alley and there throweth mud at himself, and kicketh himself full sore for a fool.—Ex.

His satanic greatness, the devil, not the one who leads unsuspecting people astray and who coaxed Eve to eat the apple, but just the plain ordinary every day devil who lingers around this office, smokes cigarettes when he thinks the editor is asleep and plays the deuce generally, well, he as aforesaid had been yelling to me for copy for a long time and I sat down feeling my head grow big with great thoughts. I wrote about two columns of matter that I thought was intensely funny, I laughed over it until I thought I would break into stove wood lengths. Then a fellow came in who wanted to borrow some money from me and he laughed over it. Then another fellow came in and read it and asked me if it was a sermon, I told him no it was a funny piece for the musings. He began to laugh hilariously, I asked him joyously if he saw the fun in it now. No, he said he was laughing to think any man was fool enough to see anything funny in it. I'm not on speaking terms with that fellow any more, I used to be real friendly with him; borrow his money; bum his tobacco; smoke his cigarettes and do all those friendly little things, but since that day I don't think he is decent and I have given him the marble heart, the cold and icy shuffle, in other words I never speak as we pass by. However the two columns of matter never got in to print.

KARL'S CLOVER ROOT, the great Blood purifier gives freshness and clearness to the complexion and cures Constipation, 25cts., 50cts., $1.00. For sale by Garden Bros.

The young man: "And there I stood, the abyss yawning at my feet—" The young woman: "Was it yawning before you got there or did it begin after you arrived?" She yawned herself as she spoke. He tumbled, as it were, at once, and as soon as he could find his hat melted away into the yawning night.

A Good Windmill—Make It Yourself.

I saw one of the People's windmills which I saw recommended in your paper recently, it only cost me $9.40 and is a splendid mill; my well is deep, but it pumps it all right and with very little wind; the neighbors all like it, and as I am a kind of a carpenter, I have agreed to put up nine mills already, on which I can make a nice profit, and there are many others for whom I can put up mills this fall. I don't see why every farmer should not have a wind mill, when they can make it themselves for less than $10; anyone can get diagrams and complete directions for making the wind mill by sending 18 two-cent stamps to pay postage, etc., to Francis Casey, St. Louis, Mo., and there can be dozens of them put up in any locality by anyone that has the energy to do so. A FARMER.

"Mr. Meekton," she said severely. "I want you to explain a remark that you made just as you left the house last night—" "I really don't remember saying anything—" "I asked you why you were opposed to women's suffrage, and you replied, 'Because we're bossed too much as it is.'"

The New Hook Spoon Free to All. I read in the Christian Standard that Miss A. M. Fritz, Station A, St. Louis, Mo., would give an elegant plated hook spoon to anyone sending her ten 2-cent stamps. I sent for one and found it is useful that I showed it to my friends, and made $13.00 in two hours, taking orders for the spoon. The hook spoon is a household necessity. It cannot slip into the dish or cooking vessel, being held in the place by a hook on the back. The spoon is something that housekeepers have needed ever since spoons were first invented. Anyone can get a sample spoon by sending ten 2-cent stamps to Miss Fritz. This is a splendid way to make money around home. Very truly, JEANNETTE S.
