LADY ABERDEEN'S LOVE STORY.

The Present Governor General Craved Hospitality at Her Father's Home.

When Lord and Lady Aberdeen were smiling to the people who thronged about them on their way to the Mount Allison institutions, one woman in the crowd exclaimed—"There goes the Queen's daughter—she's got a sweet face—and yet she doesn't look a bit like the Queen!" The confusion of Lord Aberdeen with the wife of a former governor-general was common to so many people who saw them in Sackville, that the Post takes pleasure in giving the following prelude to the love story of Lord and Lady Aberdeen, in response to a question a Sackville lady has asked this paper concerning the parentage of the charming countess:—

Away back in the moors of Scotland, among the wild mountain glens of Inverness-shire, among the heather and ferns, was the beautiful home of Sir Dudley Coult's Majoribanks, since created Lord Tweedmouth. In this rural retreat, many miles from railway or telegraph, he had gathered around him all the delights and luxuries that made a truly delightful home, and here little Ishbel was born, the present Countess of Aberdeen.

Here in Guisachan, as this sylvan homestead was called, she grew up, enjoying all the pleasures that pertained to a home in the Highlands. Close contact with nature made her gentle with the touch of nature's own gentleness, it imbued her with the love for all things beautiful—here she met the ablest politicians and men of letters, and here she met her husband, Lord Aberdeen, now the Governor General of Canada.

Of this meeting with him who was destined to be her husband, the story is that one evening when the shades of night were fast creeping down the glens, bathing hill, dale and strath with weird shadows as the sunlight was admitted or shut out by interloping mountain, a footsore pony with a slim tough rugged boy leading him came down the hills.

All in the home farm of Guisachan was mirth and comfort. The cattle had sought shelter, the night fires were lighted, the supper was sending its sweet fragrance abroad, the "cakes" were ready—cakes that delighted the hearts of Burns, and afforded a rich subject for the pen of Scott—everything was ready for the evening meal when the boy with the pony came to the door and craved hospitality. That hospitality which is so marked in the Highlands, and which was especially marked in Guisachan, went out to the belated boy and he was invited to enter.

Ishbel, then a little girl of eleven, was quick to extend all the courtesies of her home, and when it was learned that the boy was John Campbell Gordon, a son of the Earl of Aberdeen, Ishbel's father was delighted to afford him all assistance. This happy meeting was the opening of a courtship that was consummated by a happy marriage.—Ex.

ONE HONEST MAN.

Dear Editor—Please inform your readers, that if written to confidentially, I will mail, in a sealed letter, particulars of a genuine, honest, home cure, by which I was permanently restored to health and manly vigor, after years of suffering from nervous debility, sexual weakness, night losses and weak shrunken parts. I was robbed and swindled by the quacks until I nearly lost faith in mankind, but thank heaven I am now well, vigorous and strong, and wish to make this certain means of cure known to all sufferers. I have nothing to sell and want no money, but being a firm believer in the universal brotherhood of man, I am desirous of helping the unfortunate to regain their health and happiness. I promise you perfect secrecy. Address with stamp, W. T. MULFORD, Agents' Supplies, P.O. Box 59, St. Henri, Que.

Sale of Government Bonds.

Tenders for the purchase of $37,000 worth of provincial four per cent bond, and $10,000 worth of 3 1/2 per cents were opened at the receiver general's office on Friday evening. Two thousand of the 5 per cents, which the government have the privilege of calling in after the expiration of 10 years, brought $104.10. The remaining $35,000 of 4 per cents, with 40 years to run realized $110.76. The 3 1/2 per cent bonds sold at 51 cents above par. The sale was the most successful in the history of the province. No less than eleven offers, six of which were from upper province concerns, were received.—F'ton Herald.

Yonge St. Fire Hall, Toronto, March 16th, 1891.

Gentlemen,—I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for Biliousness and Constipation, and have proved them the best that I have ever used—I will use nothing else as long as they are obtainable.—Remaining yours, respectfully, E. C. SWEETMAN.

Subscriptions given after "charity dinners" are often heartily repented on the morrow. Muzzy-kindness is no good substitute for loving kindness; and alcoholic prodigality cannot, either in this world or the next, reap the reward of genuine self denying charity, which counts the cost, but pays it gladly. As Dr. Holmes says: "The alcoholic virtues don't wash." But that is not the worst that is to be said of even the slightest degree of alcoholic indulgence. For it must be understood that reference is now made to a condition very far short of what is called drunkenness. Consider the probable effect of putting to sleep the judgment and the nobler will, while the animal passions and emotions are at the same time aroused into unnatural force by a stimulant. How often has the defence of virtue been lost at the refreshment bar of a place of amusement! The woman who drinks with her lover is helpless, if he choose to tempt her. The power of resistance is gone. It is not necessary for his purpose that he should make her drunk. A glass or two to make her lively is all that is required. For that liveliness which some of you call innocent and harmless means that the curb-rein of passion is lost, and the spur is at work—a state of things which portends a terrible smash!

I think there is good reason to hope that the next town council will take seriously in hand the problem of providing decent sidewalks for the business part of Main street. Something must be done next year, and the attitude of leading merchants who will not allow plank sidewalks to be put in front of their stands, will have its effect. I hear that a number of owners on the west side of Main street have announced their willingness to pay half the cost of asphalt, if the town will meet them half way. This is reasonable and will be so regarded. It certainly was a mistake putting the plank sidewalk around the corner of King and Main and the merchants who allowed it will have no one but themselves to blame, if their portion of the town remains for some years an unpleasant contrast to the rest of the business section. Putting down asphalt sidewalks in the business part of the town is neither a luxury nor an extravagance. How much has repair cost on the asphalt sidewalks already laid? Practically nothing. How much does it cost annually to patch up the old wooden sidewalks? Should not a town corporation be as wise as an individual business man. What individual business man would erect a building that would look ugly and need repairs every year, when for the same amount of cost, he could put up a handsome and substantial building that would not need repairs for twenty or more? He is not to be found outside of Fairville?

People may laugh as much as they like about Henry Georgeism, single tax and the new socialism, but one thing is certain, the thoughtful people are at work. With all the great changes in social conditions, the theory comes first; slowly but none the less surely, the practise follows. The theory that unoccupied land, should pay high taxes and occupied land low taxes, is in a general run, correct. Take cases in towns, for instances. Two men have two lots of land adjoining. One erects a factory, employs lots of hands, and not only benefits himself, but benefits the community at large. The other man lets his land lie useless. His neighbor's improvements have enhanced the price, and he waits for the value of the land to increase. The man who has made the improvements pays high for his enterprise; the man who holds on speculation gets off easily. Is that right? Is it in the interest of the community? Assuredly not. Yet is it not the common practise? The vacant lands that are held for speculation, should be highly taxed, and the tax collector should not be set upon the progressive man who improves his lot.

The "lucky" man with the "jag," who comes out all right has been heard from. This time he emerged from the wreck of the New York Central train, which plunged into the Hudson river. A reporter gives an account of the travellers who escaped. One was half drunk, but not so far gone that he could not get out of the train, and swim all alone to the bank. He had a quart bottle in his hip pocket half full of whiskey. The other half of the bottle was in him, and perhaps it was just as well, for swimming in the Hudson this time of year, or during heat must indeed be cold enough. Anyway, this passenger swam to shore jag and all, and then the remains of his whiskey was distributed among the less fortunate travellers. I do not say the logical advice from this incident, is "get drunk when you're travelling," for somebody else may have been that way, and yet did not escape. In the long run the man who imbibes long potations, and keepeth full all the week, is much more likely to get into accidents, than to get out of them.

Tells how Dr. Chase Saved her Boy.

His Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine a Precious Boon.

MRS. A. T. STEWART, Folgar, Ont., says: "From the 7th of January to the 30th, we were up night and day with our two little boys, employing doctors and trying every kind of patent medicine we ever heard of. At this time we did not know of Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine until after the 30th, when our youngest darling died in spite of all we could do. Sometime in February the doctor told us our other boy couldn't live till spring. We were about discouraged, when I got my eye on an advertisement of Dr. Chase's Syrup.

"I tried at once to get some, but none of the dealers here had it. A neighbor who was in Kingston managed to purchase two bottles which he brought straight to us, and I believe it was the means of saving our only boy.

"One teaspoonful of the Syrup stopped the cough so he could sleep till morning. Our boy is perfectly well now, and I would not be without Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house."
