

RESCINDED THE MOTION.

School Will be Dismissed at Half Past Three.

The Board of School Trustees on Friday morning last, did the best thing they could under the circumstances. They rescinded the resolution, passed at the previous meeting, to the effect that the upper grades of the schools should stay in school half an hour extra.

In the absence of Mr. L. P. Fisher, the chair was occupied by Mr. James Watts. All the trustees were present, but Mr. H. A. Connell.

A petition was read from the town teachers asking that the resolution in question be rescinded.

Trustee Jones moved that the petition be received and its request granted. John McCormac seconded the motion.

Trustee Saunders thought the matter should lie over until a full meeting of the board. The present arrangement might be tried till Christmas, and if then found not to work could be done away with. He had talked with some of the teachers who said there was not time, without this extra half hour to teach the required course.

Trustee Vanwart said that a good deal of consideration was given this matter some years ago. It was then decided to adopt the five hour system. At this time of the year, at all events, it was a mistake to keep school till four o'clock, as it was nearly dark then. He thought it better to rescind the resolution, for the present anyway.

Trustee Saunders did not think the days were any shorter now than when he went to school, and then they stayed in till four o'clock.

Trustee McCormac had heard that arithmetic was crowded out of the schools. If so this was wrong as it was a most important study. He confessed that he had been negligent in not opposing the motion to extend the hours. After giving it due consideration he was assured that the extension was a mistake.

Trustee Watts said he was responsible for the resolution and was largely governed by the chairman, who had made a point of visiting the schools, and had formed an opinion that the extra half hour was needed. He had learned since that neither teachers nor pupils favored the change. It would have been well, when considering the change if the board had called in Messrs. Harrison and Good and discussed the situation with them.

Trustee Saunders thought it was child's play to pass motions at one meeting and rescind them at the next.

Trustee Watts.—Do you make an amendment?

Trustee Saunders.—What is the use? The motion to rescind the resolution extending the school time half an hour was then passed, Trustee Saunders, dissenting.

A COOL HEAD

A clear, bright brain, a cool head free from pain, and strong, vigorous nerves are requisite to success in modern life. MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS invigorate and brighten the brain, strengthen the nerves, and remove all heart, nerve and brain troubles.

In some respects manners resemble language—that is, they are signs or expressions of sentiment or feelings. This is undoubtedly their original intent, and if in the course of time they become somewhat overworn and less significant it is but the natural result of every form which no longer holds the spirit that once animated it. Their continual change shows this. Tokens of deep submission and homage, such as the prostration of the body, have gradually diminished as personal freedom has increased, until now only the graceful bow is left, and the prolonged and flattering salutation once commonly exchanged have by degrees become abridged into friendly greetings. But to argue from this that the respectful bow or friendly greeting should be dispensed with shows that the meaning of each is wholly unfathomed. They are the recognized signs, at the present time, of a respect that is due, and of a good feeling that is everywhere to be desired.

An Indian Execution.

The case of John Watka, a full-blooded Creek Indian, is a striking example of the most remarkable characteristic of the American Indian, whatever his tribe.

This Creek committed homicide, and a jury of his tribe held it to have been murder, and pronounced upon him the sentence of death. According to one version it was simply a drunken row, resulting in the death of one of the participants, but the later version has it that the two young men were rivals for the hand of the same dusky maiden; they settled the matter by fighting it out to the death, after which the victor claimed the maiden in marriage, and the wedding actually occurred. If this latest version is correct the affair was in reality a repetition of what so often occurred in the days of medieval chivalry, and was regarded as quite the proper thing. But the point of interest is not the romantic feature, but what happened after sentence of death was pronounced.

Instead of keeping the condemned man in close confinement, and at the last maintaining a death watch upon him, he was allowed to go where he pleased, precisely the same as any one else. And he actually spent the summer season playing ball in a team, the crack player of an excellent nine. With that sentence hanging over him he went about his festive business precisely as if nothing had happened or was expected. He could have escaped, probably for good and all, but he never attempted it, and apparently was not under the slightest temptation to do so. When the time came he was back home, and having taken a final farewell of his bride he walked calmly and alone to the place of execution, his hands were tied behind him, his eyes blindfolded, he assumed a kneeling posture, and a white target denoted the spot where his heart was to be pierced by the bullets of execution. Four members of his tribe were handed each a rifle, two containing blank cartridges, and all fired simultaneously. Thus each executioner was enabled to feel that perhaps the fatal bullet did not come from the gun he fired.

In any one except an American Indian it would take either the sublime philosophy of a Bruno or the intense piety of a John Rogers to meet death with such fortitude. It recalls one of the tales, real or fictitious, of ancient Rome. The ambassador who was told that if his mission failed his own life would pay the penalty came back to admit the failure and suffer the penalty.

It is not strange that a race so indifferent to death, preferring it to dishonor, could never be enslaved. Hunted down and almost exterminated, the remnant can boast that whatever else is lost honor survives, unimpaired and supreme.—Toronto World.

Of Interest to Farmers.

The department of agriculture at Ottawa is sending out thousands of copies of the bulletin prepared by Prof. Robertson on dressing, packing and shipping of poultry for the British markets. The information gleaned from various sources is the result of years of experience of the poultry handlers in the mother country, whom Prof. Robertson met during the past summer.

All Full.

"I have called," said the confident young man with manuscript sticking out of his pocket, "to see whether there is a vacancy in this office."

"No," replied the melancholy editor, as he looked around the place. "I'm sorry to say there is none. Even the waste paper basket is full."—Answers.

People Talk Back

Many people talk back. Here is one. Miss Katharine Weese, Belleville, says: "I have had a pain in my back accompanied by general debility and tried various remedies for the same but without deriving much benefit, until I took Doan's Kidney Pills, which I am glad to say entirely cured me. They are certainly a grand medicine and I can say in my case proved to be a thorough specific."

The Sublime and Ridiculous.

The sublime and the ridiculous sometimes come together. Last week a young man named Kelly was tried in New Hampshire for killing the cashier of a bank. The accused did not deny his guilt, nor try to avoid punishment but contended that he was influenced by a personal devil and could not resist his commands. In the evidence a letter which the prisoner wrote to his father was produced. In this letter the unfortunate youth announced that the devil had such an influence over him that he would certainly lead him to the unmentionable region. Then later on in the letter he expressed the hope that he would meet his respected parent in the next world. The trial ended by the judges sentencing Kelly to thirty years imprisonment, expert medical men both for the state and the defence, agreeing that he was quite insane.

COME ALL WHO SUFFER

Mrs. E. Brown, Hamilton, Ont., says: "I have used Laxa Liver Pills and find them perfect as a cure for biliousness and sick headache. I strongly recommend them to all who suffer from such troubles as an unrivalled remedy."

It is well to say little until you have thoroughly made up your mind, and then do not hesitate in your statements. The temptation of the average man is to express some opinion at once, but if that is changed later, the full force of the final opinion is lost. Let others do the wrangling. Your opinion will have all the more influence if you come out strong with it at the close of the discussion, when not only are the others considerably in doubt as to what they want but you had the advantage of hearing many sides of the case. That is to say, that if your daily behavior towards the others it is well to keep your "talk" in reserve. It is a habit that is easily acquired, and one that in the end works both ways. It adds both to the value of your advice, and the advice has an added value so far as others are concerned; and when you only say a little, that little has the more consideration.

SIGN OF STRENGTH

The sign of strength, a ruddy countenance, depends upon rich, red blood. To make the blood rich and ruddy, the countenance clear and bright, and the step firm and elastic, use BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS. J. A. Gillan, B. A., Toronto, says: "I enjoy good health now to the greatest degree, ever since the day I started to use B. B. B."

There are few men who do not want to do some good. Maybe there is often more of selfishness in their desire than love of good; for must we not be civil and respectable? It is very necessary to seem so, anyway. To go the length of Christ's requirement in this, and "do good always unto all men," requires the grace of God. It is not, "Do good sometimes unto some." There is honor even among thieves. It is not, "Do good to all men sometimes." No man of any timber but has been ready to do it often. The measure is "as ye have opportunity."

Snap and Vigor Wanted.

MODERN LIFE demands snap and vigor from all. The race for existence is hotter than ever. Keep your blood pure by using BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS, and you will be healthy, vigorous and strong. Miss Jennie A. Gleason, Centreton, Ont says: "For two years I suffered from poor, thin blood. I grew weaker every day until I tried B. B. B. It completely cured me enriching my blood, making me strong and vigorous again."

Never Saw Clearly Before.

HARTLAND, N. B., SEPT. 10 1897.

MR. W. B. JEWETT.—It affords me pleasure to state that the glasses you fitted for me give perfect and complete satisfaction. Owing to the peculiar imperfection of my vision, I have heretofore been unable to get glasses to fit, so I can say, I never saw clearly until I got the glasses from you.

FRED H. STEVENS,
Editor Hartland Advertiser.

An element never separated from morality is the satisfaction or happiness which accompanies moral action. The ideal may be regarded as consisting of worth and happiness, the happiness being consequent upon or incident to the worth attained. The relation is that of cause and effect, and therefore one is never found without the other; one constitutes the moral idea. Neither alone is aimed at. They are together, like heat and light.
