FOR MAYOR OF NEW YORK.

Henry George, the well-known reformer, whose work "Progress and Poverty," has, perhaps, done as much to influence thought on social problems, as any book of the latter half century, is a candidate for the mayoralty of "Greater New York." He is endorsed by Mr. Bryan and his friends and the papers say he will have a big vote. Among other planks in Mr. George's platform declared at a mass meeting are the following:—"We declare that the functions of street railway transportation, the lighting of the streets and homes of the people, whether by gas or electricity, the carriage of the people by ferries about the waterways of Greater New York, the facilitation of the interchange of speech by telephones or telegraphs are all purely municipal functions, things which can better be done by organized society than by individuals. Deplored with full hearts the massacre at Hazleton, Pa., of a score of workmen, who were shot down for exercising their natural rights to use the public highway for orderly procession, we call the attention of the people of New York to the fact that the execrable perversion of law by which that bloody deed was given a hollow resemblance to legality, exists equally in this city. We demand recognition of the right of the people to assemble peaceably, to use the streets for orderly passage in throngs as well as individually, and to speak as they will the political convictions which possess them.

And especially do we denounce the interference with these rights by the mandatory order of a court, issued after an ex-parte hearing, and the disregard of which results in the denial of the citizen who has asserted historic rights of an opportunity to defend himself before a jury of his peers, whether exercised by a federal or a state court; government by injunction is hateful, un-American and in flagrant violation of the principles of individual liberty, which our forefathers defended with their blood wherever despotism was combated with the sword.

And, finally, we declare that this mass meeting was made necessary by the denial to the people of the right of self-government by men who have seized the machinery of the Democratic party organization, believed themselves able to dictate to the citizens of Greater New York, not only their rulers, but the very political questions with which they may occupy their thoughts. We are here to demonstrate that what Democrats shall or shall not think and speak is not to be determined on English race tracks nor in secret conclaves of self-constituted bosses."

WHERE RHEUMATISM IS UNKNOWN.

No Matter How Intense the Pain South American Rheumatic Cure will Remove it Quickly—A Lady of Highgate Tells What It Did for Her—Permanent Cure of a Case of Years Standing.

It has been declared by scientists that every disease has a remedy. The difficulty is to always find the remedy. In rheumatism South American Rheumatic Cure has been found a certain antidote for this painful disease. It is always effective. Mrs. N. Ferris, wife of a well-known manufacturer of Highgate, Ont., says: "I was seriously affected with rheumatic pains in my ankles, and at times was almost disabled. I tried everything, as I thought, and doctored for years without much benefit. I was induced to use South American Rheumatic Cure. To my delight, the first dose gave me more relief than I had had for years, and two bottles have completely cured me." Sold by Garden Bros.

A Difference in Wives.

"Strange how things go on in this world," said one old gentleman to another with whom he had grown up. "You and I went through school together, John. I was always a little smarter at my books than you were. I had more money left me, and I've always worked hard. You're rich now, and I am still dependent on what I earn. How do you account for it?"

"I'll tell you, Harry, of quite a little lift I got once and have never said much about it. You remember the old Clover farm. I bought that, payin' a little down and gettin' easy terms for the balance. The city grew out that way pretty lively, so I laid out a lot of town lots. My wife's pretty shrewd, and she figured out that if I'd give the city a park it would draw people out that way and we'd make money by it. So I laid out a fine park on that level stretch between the two hills, where there was a grove, making gravel roads, flower beds, foot paths and lakes. In excavating for a lake I had to remove that big tulip poplar and under it I found a—"

"Hold on, John; hold on. Did you find a big iron pot full of money, a little south of the trunk of the poplar, and on a line with the big sandstone rock where we used to chisel our names. And was there about $12,000 in Spanish and English coins?"

"How did you know about it?"

"Just my luck. There was an old counterfeiter shot out in Kansas, and I did what I could for him the few days he lived. He told me he had buried a lot of gold there when the officers were crowding him pretty close one time, and said I could have it. I was for comin' back East and lookin' the thing up, but he had been such a tough citizen that my wife laughed at his story as a fairy tale and wouldn't hear of my spending any money following it up. The long and short of it is that your wife had you find that wealth when she knew nothing about it, and mine kept me from gettin' it when I was told where to dig for it. I have always said you could never tell what a woman was going to do."—Detroit Free Press.

Hunting For the Booty.

The finding of a revolver marked "Blood for Blood" has revived an old story of buried treasure at Phoenix, Ari., and a number of men are digging in the vicinity of the place where the weapon was found. In June, 1876, five men held up a stage coach on the Black Canyon road, near Arastia Hill. One passenger was killed and the booty consisted of a big roll of new $100 greenbacks and a bar of gold worth $32,000. A year or so later it was reported in Phoenix, and indeed throughout the entire Southwest, that the product of the stage robbery had been buried at Phoenix. Two of the robbers made partial confessions when mortally wounded, but their explanations were cut off by death. It seems that the robbers had feared to make use of the greenbacks, because those notes were rare in that part of the country and would arouse suspicion. They therefore buried the bills and cut the gold bar in two with an axe and buried half together with the pistol of the murdered passenger, which was a peculiar one bearing the words "Blood for Blood." The whole was inclosed in an iron coffee pot. Almost every year since the story of the treasure became known one or more searchers have appeared at Phoenix, each claiming to have a tip received at some "bad man's" deathbed or in some equally sensational way. Some years ago a priest from Magdalena Sonora, who had been given the location by a man who died of a wound received in a fight, spent a long time in searching for it without success. It is probable that the treasure, if ever buried at all, has been removed by some searcher who thought it well to conceal his success.

"It's the devil for any one to tell me a secret, for it is sure to come out in print."—HAZZLITT.

This being a lance private in "a regiment of British Infantry" is a great thing and I have learned a good deal about war and armies from it in twelve days. In the first place I discovered that they placed the lieutenants behind their companies where they are out of sight. This is chiefly because the lieutenants generally don't know the drill and they don't want the privates to know that they don't know it; and then, it is safer to be behind in cases of war. This comes under the head of military economy or tactics, I forget which. The officer of the day is not the officer of the night and visiting rounds may get run in if he does not bluff and put on dignity. It is very hard to leave camp after wearing a red coat for a couple of weeks, and reduce yourself to the level of a common civilian. The first night after camp broke up I tried to sleep in a bed at home but the spirit of the old warrior was so strong within me that I had to go out and sleep in the yard with the back gate for a blanket. I'm just waiting for a war with the United States. I won't do a thing but just march on to Houlton, barricade myself in the Snell House, and bleed and die, and bleed and die some more. For valor I will outshine even the officers of the Carleton County militia in our late unpleasantness with Mr. Reil et al

"All the hotels in Woodstock are doing well. They would do better still if that town had a good town council who instead of putting restrictions on travellers going into the town would try and induce them to visit it." Now isn't that a nice game of talk from a rank outsider? I want it strictly understood that the Woodstock town council is my special property when it comes to sass. I make a large part of my princely salary by giving them an occasional dig in the ribs. I suppose some of these foreign papers will so far incoerce on my territory some day as to give the mayor a paste. When it goes as far as that I will bring an action for damages.

The county council election is over for two years. During the few days preceding election I talked with a great many electors of the election. I found that some of the best citizens would not contest the town, because they feared they would make enemies of either, as they called them, the "rummies" or the "fanatics." It is quite natural that a business man should not wish to injure his business by making enemies in public life. But, what of the other aspect of the question? Is it not said that our better citizens utterly decline to serve in public affairs? Is not this very thing the cause of the low tone of public life in the United States? And we are drifting rapidly that way ourselves.

The cheerful idiot met me the other day and said that he supposed the new premier of Spain, Sagasta, would be sure to lead a sagacious administration.
