A Receipt For Soap-Bubbles.

No one has yet been able to make a soap-bubble that will not burst, but by care we can make one that lasts for some time. Its length of life will depend largely upon the mixture used in blowing it, and the care we take in protecting it from drafts. Perhaps some of you do not know how to make a good soap-bubble mixture, so I will give you directions for preparing one.

Put into a pint bottle two ounces of best white Castile soap, cut into thin shavings, and fill the bottle with cold water which has been first boiled and left to cool. Shake well together, and allow the bottle to stand until the upper part of the solution is clear. Decant now of this clear solution two parts, and add one part of glycerine, and you will have a soap-bubble mixture very much like one suggested by Prof. J. P. Cook of Harvard College.

Some of you may wonder why bubbles cannot be blown from water alone. It is because the particles do not possess sufficient attraction for one another to form a film. Mysteriously, the soap increases this attraction, even if the quantity be as small as one hundredth part of the solution. We add the glycerin to make the film more gorgeous by bringing about a greater play of colors. Bear in mind that a carefully prepared mixture will save you much disappointment.

The solution now being at hand, we use the ordinary clay-tobacco pipe in blowing. Always use a new one, for one in which tobacco has been smoked is poisoned. With a little practice, and a moderate amount of patience, bubbles measuring eight or ten inches in diameter may be produced, and even larger ones if the lungs be refilled. The pipe, of course, should be held steadily, and the breath forced into the bubble evenly. In order to watch a bubble carefully, we may wish to support it in some way. A common table goblet will make a good stand if its edge is first dipped into melted paraffin, or well soaped, which prevents it from cutting into the film.—St. Nicholas.

VICTORY FOR EAST SIMCOE.

Of one thing Mr. W. H. Bennet, the Conservative Standard Bearer in East Simcoe, is sure—He Suffered from Catarrhal Trouble and Found Speedy and Fixed Relief in Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder.

In the coming by-election it will not be settled until the votes are counted, whether Mr. W. H. Bennet, who has represented the constituency with ability for years, will again be the successful candidate. One thing Mr. Bennet is perfectly certain of, whatever turn the election may take: When attending to his duties in Ottawa two sessions ago he was taken down with catarrhal trouble in the head. He used Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder and over his own signature says that it worked like a charm, and quickly removed the trouble and made him fit for his parliamentary duties. Sold by Garden Bros.

An Unfortunate Mistake.

A laughable but rather embarrassing case of mistaken identity occurred the other day in a large department store. A gentleman who is a little too fond of joking entered the store for the purpose of meeting his wife at a certain counter. Sure enough, there stood a lady dressed, to his eye, at least, just like the woman he was after.

Her back was turned, and no one was near her, so he quietly approached her, took her by the arm and said in a voice of stimulated severity, "Well, here you are, spending my money as usual, eh?"

The face turned quickly toward him was not his wife's. It was that of an acrid, angry, keen-eyed woman of about 50 years, who attracted the attention of everybody in that part of the store by saying in a loud, shrill voice:

"No, I ain't spending your money nor any other man's money, and I'll—"

"I beg your pardon, madam," cried the confused gentleman. "I supposed you were my wife, and—"

"Well, I just ain't your wife nor no other man's wife, thank fortune, to be jawed at every time I buy a yard of ribbon! I pity your wife if you go about shaking her like you did me. If I was her, I'd—"

The chagrined joker waited to hear no more, but made his way out of the store, amid the titters and sly chuckles of those who had witnessed his confusion.—Exchange.

THE WONDER OF THE AGE.

DEAR SIRS,—I must honestly say that I have tried your valuable medicine B. B. B. for the disease called prairie itch, and have found this remedy to be the wonder of the age. I took only three bottles and to my great satisfaction was completely cured. I can highly recommend it to all who suffer from any skin disease or impurity of the blood.

There is no cure for blushing, and it is well that there is not, for it is one of the prettiest things in the world—a mark and shield of modesty. It is true that some young persons blush out of diffidence, self-consciousness, lack of repose due to inexperience in company. That nervousness will pass away when they get a little older and are more accustomed to being in company. But the blush of innocent purity—oh that is lovely to see, and no one who has the delicacy of conscience that gives rise to it should wish to lose it!

"It's the devil for any one to tell me a secret, for it is sure to come out in print."—HAZLITT.

The following announcement was made by a preacher recently in a Canadian church:—"The ushers will now pass amongst you and take up the collection. I get awfully tired of making that announcement every Sunday, friends. I hate to ask you for money, but if everybody here would get into the habit of dropping his money into a box at the door there would be no occasion for this. But there is one thing I want to say. Everybody here ought to put at least five cents in the plate. Ushers, he continued, addressing himself to the church officers, 'I want to say something to you. Watch the people who don't put any collection on the plate. Watch them, look good and hard at them, shame them into it, and if they don't give they'll not come again, or if they do, they'll bring their money with them next time.' No doubt the average church goer gives mighty little to his church compared to what he ungrudgingly contributes to other objects, but this pastor was surely astray. In my humble, impious opinion no one should be asked to stay away from church because he will not contribute. A large collection is not the primary object of holding church services. All should be equally welcome, give or no give. But, I dare say I am wrong in this.

There was an exceedingly funny incident in connection with a meeting of the Toronto public school board, the other day, showing that because a man is a school trustee it does not always follow that he is educated. The question was allowing ministers of religion to impart religious teaching during a half hour of the daily school time. The report of the meeting in the Toronto World tells us that "Trustee Douglas came out strong against allowing any particular school of theology to impart their doctrines. He would teach fundamental Christianity, however, and the "twelve" commandments. The titter which followed disconcerted Mr. Douglas, but he recovered when Trustee Kent asked, "How many commandments are there, John?" Laughter was then general and Trustee Roden remarked that he could now appreciate the necessity of imparting religious instruction." This was certainly one for the advocates of religious instruction. But, fancy a Toronto school trustee being so ignorant. Why! with all the faults of our own school governors, they not only know the number of the commandments, but rigidly observe them as well.

Do I understand politics? Well I should say yes! If you are running an election and there are two tickets in the field, (for example, a liquid refreshments and a temperance ticket,) you should get on them both and then you are simply in it. You will lead the poll. There seems to me something narrow and contracted about a man who runs on only one ticket, it looks bigoted. I like the generous universality of the man who is grit and tory, rum and temperance, fat and thin, good Lord good devil. He runs by rapid stages from a common dunghill to hold offices of state. He runs and runs and gets elected and flourishes generally like a bay horse.

BABY'S SKIN

Freed from all Eruptions,
Made Pure and White by
DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Mothers take a pride in having their Infants' skin of that delicate pink and white—soft as velvet. When torturing and disfiguring eruptions seize upon the little body, they want a remedy that will not disappoint nor fail. Time and again Dr. Chase's Ointment has proven itself a specific for all skin diseases to which babies are peculiarly subject.

MRS. CHAS. K. MOSS, of Berlin, Ont., had a little baby 6 months old, with itching sores on her body. Dr. Chase's Ointment cured her when everything else failed.

Another mother who holds Dr. Chase's Ointment in high esteem is MRS. JAS. BROWN, Molesworth, Ont. Her baby boy was covered all over the face, sides and hips with Eczema. The first application of the Ointment stopped the itching, and 3 boxes effected a complete cure.

These are but samples of the hundreds of mothers who are delighted with Dr. Chase's Ointment.
