THE COMING OF LAURIER.

Let no reader of this article, when he sees the heading, jump at the conclusion that the genial premier is coming to Woodstock. We sense, and refer to the "coming" of the lib- little whether the men who does the governeral champion into prominence.

A few years ago he was sandpapering an old musket and was talking about using it, on the banks of the Sasketchewan, against the 67th batt. of Carleton Co. Now, he is a world-wide fame. So does the wheel of fortune turn, bringing one man up and putting another down.

it, and the predictions of his opponents that he would last quick have been utterly dis- he seems to deserve. honoured. At every function that he attends he gains in popularity, and there can be no question that the Conservatives are beginning to wear very long faces. It is not only that Laurier is a great leader for his party, but that they are practically without a leader, and with no suitable one in view.

When Sir John Macdonald died, there dropped out of public life in Canada, a most remarkable personage. His personal popularity was astonishing. His gay, debonair, manners, his witty remarks, his geniality to all, including political opponents, his lack of the ship's helm.

Sir John Thompson was a worthy successor, but of a different stamp. He had not the winning ways of the first Sir John, and it is idle to predict what might have been his success, had he been spared.

A great admirer of Sir John Macdonald.

polished manners, were appreciated in a company where intellect is honored and where good manners and polished behaviour are valued. It was not really necessary for him to proclaim his loyalty. Canadians are all loyal. 1t as an opposition game to "kick," and a government game to call the kick disloyalty. No sensible observer takes any stock in such election bluff. Canada has just reached her majority. A new class of voters will control her henceforth. The Anti-Confederate is dead. The Anti-British connectionist, if he ever existed, is dead. The annextionist is dead. And among this interesting list of corpses is the "never go back on your party man." Young Canada knows that the party was made for man, not man for the party. He wants to use the expression rather in a figurative see the country well governed, and he cares ing is dubbed "liberal" or "conservative." Above all, at the present time, he is watching Laurier, and Laurier knows he is being watched closely by the independent voter, who will reward him according to his deserts. Sir Wilfred, K. C. M. G., P. C., known in Some years ago the Conservatives took some England about as well as in Canada, and with Liberals in with them, and the combination called themselves "Liberal-Conservatives." It will not be surprising should Sir Wilfred Laurier keep on as well as he has begun, if a Sir Wilfred Laurier is in it-decidedly in "Conservative-Liberal" party is formed which will give him the support, which at present,

> At all events Sir Wilfred is the man of the hour, and his star so far from having an appearance of setting, has a decidedly rising tendency.

In its absolute and universal sense Being is the one great production of the Deity in which all the particular and infinitely graduative forms into which Being may be divided are comprehended. It is the one great effect flowing from the one great cause, in which all other effects are virtually contained. Properly speaking, there are only two things in existence, Uncreated Being and its faint and imperfect similitude, created Being; Universal Cause and universal effect, Being from itself and Being from another. On the principle that every agent produces something similar to itself, Being is the only form in which Divine creative action could manifest itself. If one should give me a dish of sand, and tell me there were particles of iron in it, I to might look for them with my eyes, and search for them with my clumsy fingers, and be unable to detect them; but let me take a magnet and sweep through it, and how would it draw to itself the most invisible particles by the mere power of attraction! The unthankful heart, like my finger in the sand, discovers no mercies; but let the thankful heart sweep through the day, as the magnet finds the iron, so it will find in every hour some heavenly blessing; only the iron in God's sand 1s gold.

Severe Bronchitis Yields Promptly to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

I used your Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for severe attack of Bronchitis. I got better from the time of taking the first dose. Having a family of young children, my doctor's bills have annually come to a considerable sum. I believe a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup occasionally will aid me in reducing them very materially. W. R. NOBLE & TRAFTON, was Wilfred Laurier. He set opposite to him in many sessions of parliament. He noted how the old Conservative leader governed his party. Mr. Laurier did not fail to profit by what he saw.

Now, he is in power. Cannot the observer of men see that Laurier is using tactics found so successful by John A?

He conciliates his opponents;-he does not aggravate them. Sir Charles Tupper is a fighter. He must hew his enemies to the ground, and Sir Richard Cartwright, for his side, is of the same mould. Sir Charles thinks a grit out of the pale of political salvation. Sir Richard has the same view of the selectness of the company in the political heaven, but is deeply convinced that it is the tory who is qualifying for cremation.

Laurier knows that these views are ex treme. He knows that the differences between the rank and file of the two parties is more in name than in anything else. Circumstances led one man to be a tory. circumstances have led another man to be a grit, In nine cases out of ten it is pure accident, that placed one man in one camp and the other in an opposite camp. He knows he in speaking of his rescue from kidney and urinary difficulty by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Mr. got lots of Conservative votes at last election and Sir Wilfred Laurier proposes to keep them. And, the indications are, that he will a cured man, feeling strong, well and in good have them all right.

The Conservatives have the job of their life before them. They must get a leader. And where is he? Leaders don't grow on every bush in the country, and when a party has lost, at almost one blow two such leaders as Sir John Macdonald and Sir John Thompson, they are apt to be hunting some time before another turns up. And a nasty feature is that the man who should be leader by the right of succession cannot hold his following. Sir Charles Tupper made a big fight at the last election, but Sir Charles is no longer a stripling, and will not be any younger at the next general election. Will Hugh John fill the bill? Conservatives will probably be disappointed if they look for great things from the worthy son of a worthy sire. It is plain that he dislikes politics, and is a man ever a success at anything that he dislikes?

Is the meantime, while the Conservatives are my to get their house in order, Laurier smiles suavely. Recently he attended a great banquet in Toronto-the heart of Conservatism. Conservatives were present, as well as Liberals. Laurier made a great speech. He candidly admitted that he had borrowed from his opponents, and would borrow, when it was in the interest of the country to do so. Kipling's words come to us as suitable in his case:---

"They knew 'e stele, 'e knew they knowed

In England Laurier was a great success. The very fact of his being a French Canadian,

BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

"They have done me any amount of good," were the words of Mr. Nelson Green, Galt, Ont., Green says that he only tried them out of curiosity, but it was a lucky experiment, for Doan's spirits.

Gentleness is the best test of gentlemanliness; a consideration for the feelings of others for his inferiors and dependents as well as his equals, respect for their self-respect, will pervade the true gentleman's whole conduct. He will rather himself suffer a small injury than, by an uncharitable construction of another's behavior, incur the risk of committing a great wrong. He will be forbearing of the weaknesses, the failings and the errors of those whose advantages in life have not been equal to his own. He will be merciful even to his beast. He will not boast of his wealth, or his strength, or his gifts.
