"I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for twenty years, and recommend it to others for coughs and colds, and whooping cough. Have never known a single case of whooping cough that it failed to relieve and cure, when"

Scoff and Cough.

The man who scoffs at friendly advice to "take something for that cough," will keep on coughing, until he changes his mind or changes his earthly residence. Singular, isn't it, how many stubborn people persist in gambling, with health as the stake, when they might be effectually cured of cough, cold, or lung trouble, by a few doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Home Matters.

Nothing looks worse in a music room or parlor than a disorderly heap of ragged and soiled music. To properly keep music have full-sized wrappers made out of heavy manilla paper. Write the name of the piece and its composer on the edge of the wrapper where it is folded. By doing this a piece can be rapidly found among a pile of music, provided all wrappers have been laid with their folded edges toward you. For careless children it will be advisable to stitch the music to its wrappers, so that the music always remains covered. If you have no music stand with shelves, then get some boxes like those used in music stores. See how they take care of music there, follow their ways and your music will remain new for a long time.

A Swedish servant maid, finding that her mistress was troubled with sleeplessness, told her of a practice of the people of her country who were similarly afflicted. It was to take a napkin, dip it in ice-cold water, wring it slightly and lay it across her eyes. The plan was followed and it worked like a charm. The first night the lady slept four hours without waking—something she had not done for several months. At the end of that time the napkin had become dry. By wetting it again she at once went to sleep, and it required considerable force to arouse her in the morning.

Black crepe may be freshened and made to look almost equal to new if treated in the following way: Lay over the ironing table a piece of black cambric or cloth of any kind and pin the piece of crepe smoothly through to the blanket, stretching it out to its original size. Wring another piece of black cambric out of water and lay it over the crepe, patting it down with the palm of the hand. Now take hot flatirons and pass them over the wet cloth, but allowing no pressure to come upon the crepe. When the cloth has become dry from the heat of the iron, remove it, but let the crepe remain pinned down until all the moisture has evaporated and it is perfectly dry. The crepe will now feel and look like new. A long veil can be renovated in this way, making sure that the part redressed comes under the edge of the wet cloth.

To have really soft, white, beautiful hands requires a great deal of time and attention, some judgment and a naturally good hand to start with. The hands must not be exposed to sun or wind, and they must be kept scrupulously clean. It is not enough that the hands be washed several times a day. They should be thoroughly soaked in hot water, with some fine soap, and when perfectly soft must be rubbed very gently to remove all spots or roughness and as far as possible to loosen the skin from around the nails at their roots. While still wet, put a few drops of glycerine into one hand and rub thoroughly all over the hands until no more will absorb. Then pat them with a soft towel until dry. It is a great mistake to rub the skin with harsh crash. It is likely to break the cuticle and cause roughness and cracking of the skin. Wearing gloves at night, with the use of a little pomade or cold cream, will do very much toward keeping the hands in good condition.

Hot milk is the newest panacea for all complexion ills. If the face be wrinkled, sallow, freckled or otherwise afflicted, hot milk, says the enthusiast over this new remedy, will produce a cure. Converts declare that the face, after being washed with milk at night, feels wonderfully refreshed, while the skin soon becomes very white and soft. Some even go so far as to pour a generous quantity of milk into the water for the bath, and claim that it is positively magical in removing fatigue.

Many women believe that the fine skins which Irish girls are noted for are due to the potato and milk diet on which they thrive in the Emerald Isle. A recent bride lived for some months before the wedding day on milk and potatoes alone. This she did to insure a dazzling red and white complexion for the momentous church ceremony. The end was accomplished: she was really radiant in her satin and lace veil.

Roman ladies used to treat their complexions with a concoction made of ashes of snails, or of large ants, bruised and burnt in salt; honey in which the bees had been smothered; the fat of a pullet mixed with onions and the fat of a swan. To the latter application was attributed the power of taking out wrinkles.

Another Smart Woman.

My husband is poor but proud and he does not want me to work; as I have nothing to do I get restless, and after reading in your paper Mrs. Russell's experience selling self-heating flatirons I concluded I would try it. I wrote to J. F. Caseys & Co., St. Louis, Mo. and they treated me so nicely that I felt very much encouraged. As soon as I got my sample iron I started out and sold 8 irons the first day, clearing $12. I have not sold less than eight any day since, and one day I sold 17. I now have $225 clear money, and my husband does not know I have been working, but I am afraid he will be mad when I tell him. Have I done right or should I quit work and leave him to struggle alone?

AN ANXIOUS WIFE.

You are doing just right, your husband should be proud of you, go right ahead and show the world what an energetic woman can do. That self-heating iron must be a wonderful seller, as we hear of so many that are succeeding selling it.

Kruger as a Shot.

Kruger has no equal as a runner, says an exchange. He was also famous for his skill with the rifle. Indeed, he would have challenged the best of Buffalo Bill's outfit and given a good account of himself. An old friend of Kruger told me, of his own knowledge, that Kruger was once on horseback and chased by an infuriated buffalo. His horse was a good one, but on this occasion had become rather fatigued, and the buffalo commenced to gain. The unequal chase promised to end disastrously for the horse and its rider, for the buffalo kept gaining, and would soon have its horns in action. Then Kruger performed a feat which his old friend recalled to me with great pride. He turned in his saddle, raised his rifle, took deliberate aim while his own horse was in full gallop, fired, and the buffalo fell, shot straight through the forehead.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have made $1,640 clear money in 87 days and attended to my household duties besides, and I think this is doing splendid for a woman inexperienced in business. Anyone can sell what everyone wants to buy, and every family wants a Dish Washer. I don't canvass at all; people come or send for the washer, and every washer that goes out sells two or three more, as they do the work to perfection. You can wash and dry the dishes in two minutes. I am going to devote my whole time to this business now and I am sure I can clear $5,000 a year. My sister and brother have started in the business and are doing splendid. You can get complete instructions and hundreds of testimonials by addressing the Iron City Dish Washer Co., Station A, Pittsburgh, Pa., and if you don't make lots of money it's your own fault.

Mrs. W. H.

Hints to Girls.

Give your best sympathies. There is no greater human power than the tenderness of woman. If you can minister to someone in sickness, lessen somebody's distress, or put a flower in some poor home you have done a thing that you will always be glad to think of. You will be remembered, and a woman asks no grander monument than to live in hearts.

Not far from Adelaide Procter's home was the cottage of an old woman and her only son—a brave young fellow—dying of consumption contracted in the war. One day in her visit to them she carried to him some lovely roses. The next time she went, the mother said: "He never let the roses go out of his hand, miss. He held 'em when he died and one of the last words he said was: 'Give my blessings to the young lady for bringing the flowers,' and the desolate mother buried them with him. The blessing of that poor brave youth was a pleasant memory."

A Prominent Londoner.

LONDON, Ont.—Chase's Ointment is an invaluable remedy for Itching Piles and in my own case I would pay $50 per box for it if it could not be otherwise had.

JOHN PEDDICOMB,
160 Sydenham St.

There is evil enough in man, God knows! But it is not the mission of every young man and woman to detail and report it all. Keep the atmosphere as pure as possible, and fragrant with gentleness and charity.

"I once knew a man," said the imaginative boarder, "who was so fat that he was actually taller lying down than standing up. What do you think of that?" "It strikes me," said the cheerful idiot, "as pretty tall lying."

Here we are in 1897. Three more years and we will scratch the 18 out altogether and commence our letters with Jan. 1, 1900. That certainly sounds pretty old. Still a great deal may happen during these three years, and some of us, at all events, who are now discussing the years and centuries will have joined the ever increasing majority. During the coming year, I mean to keep a sharper look out than ever on local matters. I am getting a large double barrelled, swift repeating gun ready for active use on the new town council. Silk hats will form fine targets for me. In fact, I will be as keen in attacking a mayor with a silk hat, as I have been in whacking some of his predecessors. Mayors and town councillors are elected to be abused, and should not complain when the newspapers slate them. The departing mayor will be remembered as the Mayor who put in the sewers; if the job prove good, it will be to his credit; if bad, to his discredit. Let the new mayor be known as the "Roads Mayor." It is in building up our highways that he has an opportunity to distinguish himself. In this my first Phillipic for 1897, I beg to express the hope that we will have a good mayor and council. We don't want a man stuffed with straw for mayor, though we may have to take one stuffed with Hay. The councillors will be expected to be supplied with springs sufficient to enable them to say yea or nay, when the time to vote comes, and to stand up when a motion must be made or seconded.

We hear a good many stories of the young husband who comes in late during the festivities of this period and has all manner of excuses to make to his good wife. I heard recently of a young man who told his wife that he would be out a little late, as there was a supper on the carpet. He begged his wife not to wait up. He would come in very softly, and go right straight to bed. "I won't even speak," he concluded. "No dear," said the knowing wife "you will not be able to." Rather a cold crack!

How the Dipper Saved the Farm.

Father was sick and the mortgage on the farm was coming due. I saw in the Christian Advocate where Miss A. M. Fritz, of Station A, St. Louis, Mo., would send a sample combination dipper for 18 two cent stamps, and I ordered one. I saw the dipper could be used as a fruit jar filler, a plain dipper; a fine strainer; a funnel; a strainer funnel; a sick room warming pan and a pint measure. These eight different uses makes the dipper such a necessary article that I went to work with it and it sells at very near every house. And in four months I paid off the mortgage. I think I can clear as much as $200 a month. If you need work you can do well by giving this a trial. Miss A. M. Fritz, Station A, St. Louis, Mo., will send you a sample for 18 two cent stamps—write at once. JOHN G. N.

The California "Diggers."

Through the summer the Indians prepared their winter's store, which consisted mainly of dried acorns, used in place of flour or meal; berries, grasshoppers, grass seed, fish, nuts, meats and roots of various kinds, says an exchange. The camass (Camassia esculenta) was the principal root; it grew in abundance all over California, and is still plentiful in many valleys in the northern part of the state. It is about the size of the little finger, shaped like a sweet potato, and with much of the same flavor. A long, hard winter would cause these Indians to suffer more or less privation. While in conversation with an old Indian he said: "Long time ago, fore white man come, big winter come, Indian no have enough to eat, lots of Indians die; my mahala, my little boy, die."

Mortar, baskets and flat rocks were their principal utensils for cooking. The mortars were made from rocks of various sizes, generally somewhat rounded, but never uniform. The deep round hole in the centre was ground with sharp, rough rocks. It was a slow process and required patience, for it took many days of work to complete one large mortar. These mortars were not only used for cooking, but also for grinding food, when a round stone pestle would be required. No household was complete without the large, flat rock, which was generally stationary, and contained a half dozen or more round holes, varying in depth and diameter, used exclusively for grinding, and often surrounded by busy groups of mahalas.
