GLADSTONE AND DISRAELI.

Justin McCarthy on the Life-Long Political Duel Between These Statesmen.

In his "Story of Gladstone's Life," in the Outlook, Justin McCarthy gives an interesting description of the life-long political duel between Gladstone and Disraeli, one of the most brilliant and prolonged contests in the annals of Parliament. He writes:

In 1852 began the long parliamentary duel between Gladstone and Disraeli, which ended only when, at the close of the session of 1876, Mr. Disraeli left the House of Commons and took his place, as he had always meant to do sooner or later, in the House of Lords. The debate was on Mr. Disraeli's budget, and it ended in the defeat of the Tory government. Mr. Disraeli never, before or after, spoke with greater power and sarcasm and bitterness and passion than in his final speech in that debate. It was about 2 o'clock in the morning when Mr. Gladstone sprang up to reply. "Gladstone has got his work cut out for him," was the comment of one of the listeners when Mr. Gladstone rose to his feet. He had his work cut out for him, but he was equal to the work, and he soon made it quite clear that he was going to do it. Many members of the House and listeners in the strangers' galleries thought it hardly possible that at that hour of the morning, and after such a speech as Disraeli's any further impression could be made even by Mr. Gladstone. But before he had got far into his speech everyone felt that Gladstone was making a greater impression than even Disraeli had produced. It has to be borne in mind that Gladstone's speech was necessarily unprepared, for he replied point by point, sentence by sentence, to the speech of Mr. Disraeli. It seems to me that from that moment Mr. Gladstone's position in the House of Commons was completely established. (Gladstone's speech, Mr. McCarthy says further on, completely crushed Disraeli's financial scheme.)

Then, as I have said, began the long rivalry of these two great parliamentary athletes. In every important debate the one man answered the other. Disraeli followed Gladstone or Gladstone followed Disraeli. It was not unlike the rivalry between Fox and Pitt, for it was a rivalry of temperament and character as well as of public position and of political principle. Gladstone and Disraeli seemed formed by nature to be antagonists. In character, in temper, in tastes, and in style of speaking, the men were utterly unlike each other. One of Gladstone's defects was his tendency to take everything too seriously. Disraeli was strongest in reply when the reply had to consist only of sarcasm. He had a marvellous gift of phrase making. He could impale a whole policy with an epithet. He could dazzle the House of Commons with a paradox. He could throw ridicule on a political party by two or three happy and reckless adjectives. He described one of Cobden's free-trade meetings in some country place as an assembly made up of "a grotesque and Hudibrastic crew." It is not likely that one of Cobden's meetings was more grotesque or Hudibrastic than any other public meeting anywhere. But that did not concern the House of Commons; the description was humorous and effective; it made people laugh, and the adjectives stuck. Disraeli was never happy in statement. When he had to explain a policy, financial or other, he might really be regarded as a very dull speaker. Gladstone was especially brilliant in statement. He could give to an exposition of figures the fascination of a romance or a poem. Gladstone never could, under any possible conditions, be a dull speaker. He was no equal of Disraeli's in the gift of sarcasm and what Disraeli himself called "flouts and jeers." But in a reply he swept his antagonist before him with his marvellous eloquence, compounded of reason and passion.

I heard nearly all the great speeches by both men in that parliamentary duel which lasted so many years. My own observation and judgment gave the superiority to Mr. Gladstone all through, but I quite admit that Disraeli stood up well to his great opponent, and that it was not always easy to award the prize of victory. The two men's voices were curiously unlike. Disraeli had a deep, low, powerful voice; heard everywhere throughout the House, but having little variety or music in it. Gladstone's voice was tuned to a higher note, was penetrating, resonant, liquid and full of an exquisite modulation and music which gave new shades of meaning to every emphasized word. The ways of the men in almost every respect were curiously unlike. Gladstone was always eager for conversation. He loved to talk to anybody about anything, Disraeli, even among his most intimate friends was given to frequent fits of absolute and apparently gloomy silence. Gladstone, after his earlier parliamentary days, became almost entirely indifferent to dress. Disraeli always turned out in the newest fashion, and down to his latest years went in the getup of a young man about town. Not less different were the characters and temperaments of the two men. Gladstone changed his political opinions many times during his long parliamentary career. But he changed his opinion only in deference to the force of a growing conviction, and to the recognition of facts and conditions which he could no longer conscientiously dispute. Nobody probably ever knew what Mr. Disraeli's real opinions were upon any political question, or whether he had any real opinions at all. Gladstone began as a Tory and gradually became changed into a Radical. Disraeli began as an extreme Radical under the patronage of Daniel O'Connell, and changed into a Tory. But everybody knew that Gladstone was at first a sincere Tory and at last a sincere Radical. Nobody knew or, indeed, cared whether Disraeli ever was either a sincere Radical or a sincere Tory.

FROM AGONY TO JOY.

Acute Sufferings from Acute Rheumatic Ailment Relieved by South American Rheumatic Cure When Hope had well nigh Gone.—Mrs. W. Ferris, Wife of a well-known Manufacturer of Gloucester, Cheerfully Tells the Story of Her Cure.

"I was for years a great sufferer from rheumatism affection in my ankles, and at times was so bad that I could not walk. I tried every known remedy and treated with best physicians for years, but no permanent relief. Although my confidence in remedies was about exhausted, I was induced to try South American Rheumatic Cure. I purchased a bottle. The very first dose gave me relief, and after taking two bottles all pain had vanished and there has been no return of it. I do cheerfully recommend this great remedy." Sold by Garden Bros.

THE CASE OF EMERALD STREET.

It is difficult to select the streets and portion of streets which most need attention, so wretched is the condition of all. The attention of THE DISPATCH has been called to the condition of Emerald street, the thoroughfare leading down past the laundry and rink, and making a short cut from the Carlisle Hotel to Queen street station. Some time ago the wooden sidewalk was taken up and the walk prepared for asphalt. The asphalt has not been put down, and now the sidewalk is in a pitiable condition. When there is a rain it is a most atrocious for pedestrians, and as a great many people travel this street on the way from the Carlisle to the station, the necessity for its being fixed up is great. The attention of the council has been called to Emerald street, but to all appeals for money or aid the council replies, "we have no money. Next year we will attend to the streets."

In the meantime the gay and festive traveller who gets up to his knees in mud crossing from the foot of Emerald street to Richmond, curses loudly Woodstock and its bad sidewalks and crossings.

PILL-PRICE

The days of 25 cents a box for pills are numbered.

Dr. Agnew's Liver Pills at 25 cents a vial are surer, safer and pleasanter to take.

And are supplanting all others. All druggists sell them.

A Substitute.

Scene, a collier's cottage.

Wife (leaving for the town, with a basket on her arm)—"An' dae ye think, John, that I've minded everything I'm to get when in the town?"

John—"Ye might mind to bring me in half an ounce of snuff."

"Deed, no, John," replied his better half. "The times are too hard for sic extravagance. Ye maun jist tickle yer nose wi' a straw."—London Tid-Bits.

"Ten people out of a dozen are invalids," says a recent medicine authority. At least eight out of these ten, it is safe to allow, are suffering from some form of blood-disease which a persistent use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla would be sure to cure. Then, don't be an invalid.

His Love Grew Cool.

Gus de Smith—My engagement with Miss Nellie Chaffie is off.

Hostetter McGinnis—Well, did she break it off, or were you the cruel one?

Gus—Neither of us broke it off.

Hostetter—In the name of heaven, who did break it off?

Gus—Her rich uncle. He died and didn't leave her any of his money.—New York World.

Pillosohy.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills.

STILL IN HIS PRIME.

North Hastings' Oldest Inhabitant Hale and Hicarty.

Josias Moore, of Bancroft, Ont., one of the oldest and best-known residents of Hastings County, can boast of wonderful health and vigor for his age.

"Although I am over 84 years of age," he says, "I feel as young as ever I did."

Mr. Moore, however had a narrow escape from death about a year ago. "I was so bad with indigestion," he writes, "that the doctors gave me up. I tried various alleged remedies but found them no good. One day our popular druggist, F. C. Humphries, sent me a sample of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to try. The result was marvellous. After taking two I was able to get up. Then I sent for a box. I could soon eat anything. In a short time I was able to walk two miles, to Bancroft and back, with ease."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will, without fail, cure all kidney, liver, stomach and blood troubles. For sale by all dealers. Price 25 cents. One pill a dose; one cent a dose. Edmondson, Bates & Co., manufacturers, Toronto.

Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is the latest discovery for coughs, asthma and consumption. It is pleasant, quick and certain. 25 cents.

Not a Good Word.

"I notice, Mr. Pipp," said the editor to his new reporter, "that in this account of a robbery, you say the victim was relieved of $300."

"Yes, sir."

"Were you ever robbed?"

"No sir."

"I thought not. If you had you would not write of the robbery as a relief."—New York World.

UNDOUBTEDLY THE BEST.

GENTLEMEN,—I wish to say that Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has proved a wonderful remedy in my family. We would not be without it for twice its price. I say it is the best (not merely one of the best—but the best) medicine ever brought before the public for summer complaint or diarrhoea, either in children or adults.

Eclipse of The Chimney.

Did you hear of the Russian princess who was in London lately—the lady who dressed in a very décolleté style?

She was pointed out to the French Ambassador and the old fellow, putting on his pince-nez, remarked, "Ah, yes, it is ze Princess Chineseoff—no, Orioff."

A Banker's Experience.

"I tried a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for a troublesome affection of the throat," writes Manager Thomas Dewson of the Standard Bank, now of 14 Melbourne Avenue, Toronto. "It proved effective. I regard the remedy as simple, cheap and exceedingly good. It has hitherto been my habit to consult a physician in troubles of this nature. Hereafter, however, I intend to be my own family doctor."

A Special Brand.

He—There are microbes in kisses.
She—Have you tried one of mine?

HUSBAND IS WELL.

Mrs. Wm. Harbly, Belleville, Ont., says: "My husband was troubled with kidney complaint, rheumatism, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, etc., and could not get relief until I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills for him. He has now used four boxes in all and is perfectly cured."

Doan's Kidney Pills are the ones that cure. Remember the name, Doan's.
