Our I's and Other Eyes.

Our I's are just as strong as they were fifty years ago, when we have cause to use them. But we have less and less cause to praise ourselves, since others do the praising, and we are more than willing for you to see us through other eyes. This is how we look to S. F. Boyce, wholesale and retail druggist, Duluth, Minn., who after a quarter of a century of observation writes:

"I have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla for more than 25 years, both at wholesale and retail, and have never heard anything but words of praise from my customers; not a single complaint has ever reached me. I believe Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be the best blood purifier that has been introduced to the general public." This, from a man who has sold thousands of dozens of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, is strong testimony. But it only echoes popular sentiment the world over, which has "Nothing but words of praise for Ayer's Sarsaparilla."

Any doubt about it? Send for the "Curebook." It kills doubts and cures doubters. Address: J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

The Latest Invention.

A modern armored fighting car which travels through the air like a bird, runs along the earth like a railroad train and floats on top of the sea or dives beneath it when danger is nigh—such is the combination war machine the plans of which are now on file in the War Department at Washington.

The man who conceived the idea of building such a craft is by no means a crank. He is a practical engineer and machinist, an inventor of no little reputation, a member of the Association of French Inventors, of Paris, and an honorary member of the Association of American Inventors. He is Charles A. Kunzel, jr., of No 260 Eleventh street, Hoboken.

Kunzel, who is about thirty-five years old, came to this country about thirteen years ago. Since then he has spent his leisure time and much money on the building of models and the making of plans for an aerial ship. Today Mr. Kunzel says he has solved the problem.

Mr. Kunzel yesterday submitted his plans to a World artist and to a reporter. The inventor does not claim to be able to sail against the wind. He believes, however, that his craft, of which there are only the plans in existence today, will beat against the wind the same as a sailing vessel upon the seas.

His airship is to be an oval compartment balloon, 135 feet long and thirty feet wide, supporting a bullet-proof car of aluminum. The balloon is to have a lifting capacity sufficient to elevate the car at a great speed. This speed can be accelerated by means of lifting screws and fans placed on top of the car. These are to work in opposite directions upon two shafts, one of which passes through the other, and to have a power almost great enough to lift the ship without the aid of the balloon.

The car is "whale-back" shaped. Its odd features are the mechanism, which is the chief characteristic of the entire scheme, and the presence of powerful screws in the stern which will operate either in the air or in the water, and six wheels fastened at the bottom of the car used for land service.

When the ship is in the air the stern screws are to drive the ship. The lifting screws are to elevate the vessel. The car is so constructed that its windows may be sealed in an instant in case it should become necessary to use the flyer as a submarine boat.

Gas engines are to furnish power. The fuel is to be manufactured aboard the ship from coal oil and naphtha by a process Kunzel is keeping secret. The surplus gas is to be stored in tanks, purified and used as needed by the balloon, to which connecting pipes extend from the car.

Mr. Kunzel proposes to attach sails to the car on either side so as to be able to beat against the wind. He says he is sure that his scheme will be a success. He will build a ship such as he planned in the near future. He has been in communication with the Cuban patriots, who wanted him to build an airship for them, but nothing came of it.

Mr. Kunzel positively refused to entertain an offer from the Spanish Government for the rights to his invention.—New York World.

Somewhat Confusing.

"Speaking of Rev. Ian Maclaren," she began. "Rev. Ian Maclaren!" he exclaimed. "Why, you've got that all wrong." "Of course, I have," she said, rather abashed. "His real name has appeared so often with the name over which he writes in parentheses following it that I have become confused, and consequently I said, Rev. Ian Maclaren' when I meant 'Rev. John Maclaren.' Foolish of me, wasn't it?"

"But you're still wrong."

"What? I—Oh, yes, of course. 'Rev. Ian Watson' is his right name, isn't it? I don't see what it is that confuses me so. I—What? Oh, well, just pick the name out to suit yourself. You know who I mean, and if you weren't a small man you wouldn't annoy me by picking me up on trifles."—Chicago Post.

Mrs. S. James Seaforth, suffered for years with what is called old people's rash. She was treated by many physicians without any result. Mr. Fear, the local druggist, recommended Dr. Chase's Ointment, which relieved the irritation at once and speedily effected a permanent cure of the skin eruption. Mrs. James also says Dr. Chase's Ointment cured her of Itching Piles which she had been troubled with for years.

What a peculiar and intricate game this diplomacy? For weeks past we have seen nothing in the paper, but "War is probable, the powers have decided to blockade Greece." Up to the time of writing, neither of these extreme measures have come to pass. In the meantime the warships of the big powers keep chasseeing around Greece, occasionally firing a shell, and, I'll be bound, cursing their luck that they haven't something more creditable to do. It is not unlikely that, if its activity they're after, they'll have enough of it, very soon. Rumors of war, we have heard for years past, and it would seem that the smoke must develop into a blaze, shortly. If Greece and Turkey get at it, how will it end? Will the turkey gobble up the grease, or will the King of the Hellenes dine off a well-greased turkey? Moreover will the powers allow Turkey to wipe out Greece, if they can? Most military authorities say that Turkey can thrash Greece, but military authorities told us that Japan would be only a mouthful for China. And they were wrong. Greece may develop in spite of the predictions, and be a sort of a Fitzsimmons, betting to the contrary, notwithstanding.

People have a peculiar way of consoling themselves for their troubles some times. To hug a delusion is a pet failing of humanity. I heard of a humorous instance of this, the other day. Somewhere in the upper part of the county, there is a poor man who goes to a mill every once in a while and buys a hundred weight of flour. Being poor, he has no horse to carry his burdens, and so he shoulders his hundred pounds of flour and tramps to his home several miles away. When he gets fairly under way, his burden seems very heavy, so he lays it down for a moment, and then gets a large flat stone weighing anywhere from twenty-five to fifty pounds, and having re-shouldered his bag of flour places the heavy stone on top of it, and commences again his march. Then when he has proceeded some considerable distance, he drops the heavy stone, and the hundred weight of flour seems light the rest of the way home. This is no imagination. It is a fact.

I told the editor when he began spending Sundays in writing editorials on public libraries, hospitals, and the like for Woodstock, that he was wasting his ink. Those things won't go here. The public park is a good thing in its way, but as we are surrounded by parks of great natural beauty, it would scarcely seem a necessity. We are not overcrowded like the people of New York, and fresh air is quite plentiful. What's the good of a hospital anyway? If people get hurt or become sick let 'em die. We can't afford a hospital and that's all there is to it, and as for a library, everyone has a bible in Woodstock, and isn't that library enough? People shouldn't get in the habit of reading. They learn too much.

The word "orthodox" is used a great deal in controversies reminding one of an extract from Priestley's Memoirs. "I have heard frequent use," said the late Lord Sandwich, in a debate on the Test Laws, "of the words 'orthodoxy' and 'heterodoxy,' but I confess myself at loss to know precisely what they mean." "Orthodoxy, my lord," said Bishop Warburton, in a whisper,—"orthodoxy is my doxy,—heterodoxy is another man's doxy."

There seem to be lots of volunteers all over Canada to go to the Queen's Jubilee celebration in London, as representatives of Canada's soldiery. It is a pleasanter prospect than being a target for Indians, as was the case in the North West rebellion, when enthusiasm among militia men was perhaps hardly as widespread.

A Grand Army Man Crosses Swords with Heart Disease and Wins a Glorious Victory with the Aid of Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart.

Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart can not be over estimated, says H. M. Musselman, a well-known G. A. R. man of Wessport, Pa., and he continues: "My ailments were palpitation a fluttering of the heart. I used two bottles of your valuable cure and felt like a new man. I have taken bottles and bottles of other medicines without help. I introduced it to my friends at every opportunity possible. It is a great medicine. Inside of 30 minutes after the first dose I had relief." Sold by Garden Bros.

An honest man who stood upon the ragged edge of death, but was convinced of the truth.

CALAIS, ME., May 13, 1896.

John Boyd, mason, 61 years old, says: "Last Spring I was very sick and miserable, had no appetite, could not sleep nights, began to think my time had come, and that I was to join the great majority. I walked around the streets feeling entirely used up, was good for nothing, could not do a minute's work, until like a drowning man gasping for straws, concluded to try Dr. Thomson's Sarsaparilla, and began using it, as directed; it began to help me from the first trial. After using three bottles, my old-fashioned good health returned to me, and have been well and strong ever since. I cannot express in language the great worth of this wonderful medicine and what I think of it." Yours truly, JOHN BOYD.

HELP CAME AT LAST.

I have been a hard working man doing general work. Over one year ago I suffered a severe attack of LaGrippe. It left me in a helpless condition. I suffered with severe pains in my back and could not do any work. I was advised to try Dr. Thomson's Sarsaparilla. I used five bottles, and it is marvelous how quick it cured me. That is over two years ago, and my health since that time has never been better. LINDSAY SCOTT.
Calais, Me., Jan., 1896.

PRINCETON, May 23d.

THOMSON SARSAPARILLA CO.: Having the LaGrippe last winter, I was left thin and in very bad shape. I was all run down and I began to think I would never get any strength. F. H. Hall, of Calais, called at my place and advised me to take Thomson's Sarsaparilla. He said he would send three bottles if I would take them, and after taking two bottles I began to gain strength. I then took two more, and I must say of all the different kinds of medicines I have taken, it is with me one of the best. And I will say that I thank Mr. Hall and the Thomson Sarsaparilla Co. for what it has done for me. C. A. ROBBINS.

Given up in despair to die.

PATRICK MYERS, of Calais, Me., says: I was troubled with eruptions on the face and body, causing at times a burning and itching sensation which was almost unendurable; could do no work. I tried to get help from a number of our physicians, and paid them hundreds of dollars, which proved hopeless, was confined to my bed. I gave up entirely to despair. I was advised to try Dr. Thomson's Sarsaparilla, and I used eight bottles which entirely cured me. It purified my blood, restored my appetite, made me feel like a new man. Today an about my work, not forgetting to speak great words of praise for the above medicine.

Weak, Nervous, Sleepless, Tired and Run Down.

Nothing is so common today as the complaint of weak nerves. Read the testimony of MR. H. W. EATON, of Calais, Me.:

My nerves were so unstrung that it gave a burden for me to do any business, and sleep was out of the question, also had considerable difficulty with my stomach. I tried Dr. Thomson's Sarsaparilla, and it proved a blessing to me. I think everything of it, it is a great medicine, and it is a pleasure for me to recommend it.

There are numberless people who do not call themselves sick, yet who are not well. They feel weak, nervous, languid and tired. They have lost their vim, power of endurance and ambition to work. Most people have these feelings in the spring, because at this season the blood is impure, the nerves weakened, and the liver, kidney and bowels inactive.
