The Manufacture of Pulp in Canada.

Viewed from almost any standpoint, there appears to be a promising future for the pulp industry in Canada. The development during the past ten years, in spite of an important duty of ten per cent. imposed by the United States government on the manufactured article, has been such as to cause capitalists to look with favor upon that industry as a profitable field for investment, and the number of new mills now in course of erection, or contemplated, is evidence of its growing importance. An abundance of raw material, valuable water powers, efficient labor at an average cost—these advantages place Canada in a position to compete with any other country in the world in the supply and manufacture of pulp and paper.

At the present time there is a strong agitation in favor of imposing an export duty on spruce wood, which provides the main supply for the pulp mills. Such action on the part of the Canadian government would probably be followed by retaliatory measures by the United States government, and instead of the duty on pulp going to that country being ten per cent. of the value, as at present, it would likely be advanced to such a point as to practically close the United States market to Canadian pulp manufacturers.

Our foreign exports of pulp already total up to a considerable sum annually, and information to hand proves that the industry is capable of much greater development. Denmark is now turning her attention to Canada for a supply of pulp wood, and if the raw material can be profitably exported to that country, there is no reason why the manufactured article should not find a market there, unless tariff duties should prevent. It is also learned that there has been a decided increase in the cost of logs in Norway and Sweden, which countries have hitherto furnished a large portion of the European supply, and as a result the price of pulp wood to English paper manufacturers has been increased. Thus a wide market would seem to be opening for the Canadian product, as no raw material suitable for the manufacture of paper is found in Great Britain.

The establishment of new mills will not, perhaps, meet with the approval of the proprietors of existing concerns, who may fear the effects of competition, but taking a broader view, and attaching due importance to the present outlook for an increased foreign trade, the demand would seem to warrant a considerable increase of production.

One drawback to the manufacture of pulp for export is said to be the excessive freight rates. On the highway of water communication through rates to the seaboard are equitable, but there is a lack of facilities for shipping cheaply from inland points. With the growth of the industry this will no doubt be remedied.—The Canadian Lumberman.

Hope For The Hopeless.

Mrs. Leslie Faulkner, Woodstock, N. B., says, "Our little boy contracted lung trouble during convalescence from a severe attack of typhoid fever, and became very pale, weak, nervous and debilitated. His nights were sleeplessness and we were much afraid that we were going to lose him. He was very susceptible to colds, had no appetite and we were obliged to take him away from school. We tried many different kinds of medicine, but to no effect, until Milburn's Heart and Nerve pills were recommended to us. Of these we gave him one every night, and were surprised to see the wonderful improvement in his health which took place in a few days. They toned up his nerves and enriched his blood. As a result he is now well and strong, has a good appetite, rosy cheeks and sleeps soundly at night. We cannot speak too highly of this remarkable remedy."

Keep on Advertising.

No business man not yet dead in the shell but can see even in dull times an opportunity to let the world know that he is alive. In advertising one's business it is perhaps three times out of four a blind and fatal mistake to leave the public in the dark as to whether the factory is still running and the owner thereof alive or dead. No industry that is not overdone or wrongly located can be effectually downed by a spell of depression. Consumers do not quit the world as some gentlemen did in the days of Noah, and if unable to purchase what they need to-day, the same need speaks for itself to-morrow. When the wind is low, mend your sails, and the man who is prepared for the breeze is the man most benefitted by the same.—Power and Transmission.

Queens who Smoke.

According to Les Annales, the empress of Austria smokes from 30 to 40 cigarettes a day. The dowager empress of Russia is a confirmed smoker, but confines her indulgence to her own private apartments, apparently in deference to the feelings of the young czarina, who is opposed to the use of cigarettes, which has become prevalent among women in the best society in St. Petersburg.

The queen of Roumania, the queen regent of Spain, Queen Amelia of Portugal, who in this respect follows the example of her mother, the wife of the Comte de Paris, and the queen of Italy are all smokers.

"In France," Les Annales continues, "the association of men and women in all kinds of sports has been the cause of a greater degree of intimacy and has brought us to accept the cigarette, whose use is extending among young women of the most exclusive circles. Even the most critical no longer protest when two rosy lips send out a few puffs of smoke between a couple of ganes of tennis. Besides, our grandmothers loved tobacco. The Duchess of Chartres and the Duchess of Bourbon under Louis XIV even went so far as to smoke pipes—yes, pipes, my dears. And in the 'Letters of a Traveler' we read that George Sand always kept tobacco on hand for her own personal use."

"In all times Spanish women have smoked, and not only cigarettes, but cigars. Marbot in his 'Memoirs' tells us this without mincing matters. And they smoke in England and the United States, although in the latter country it is only recently that women have begun to use tobacco. There was a story in Gil Blas not long ago to the effect that three young girls in Louisville were seen smoking by a policeman and were arrested. The judge, although recognizing that the accused were not conforming to the proprieties, felt bound to release them because they were violating no law."

A young man in Lowell, Mass., troubled for years with a constant succession of boils on his neck, was completely cured by taking only three bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Another result of the treatment was greatly improved digestion with increased avoirdupois.

Marriage Worse Than Lottery.

"So," said the woman with red flowers in her bonnet, "you contemplate getting married?"

"Yes," was the demure answer. "I thought it over. He said that if I refused him it would break his heart, and I couldn't think of assuming any such responsibility."

"I suppose you have thought seriously of what you are about to do?"

"Of course. I realize perfectly that marriage is a lottery."

"My dear, it's worse. When you try your luck in a lottery and fail to draw a prize, you can tear up the ticket and try it over again."—Washington Star.

Another One.

A Natal paper is responsible for the following:

"Newspaper Blunders—We have much pleasure in calling attention to the lecture this evening by Mr. Williams on 'Newspaper Blunders.' The lecture is really a good one and worth listening to, so that we hope there will be a good attendance. Between £20 and £30 were taken at the doors in Maritzburg, where Mr. Williams last delivered the lecture, and every one of them went away satisfied."

The spectacle of "£20 and £30" going away satisfied must have been very entertaining!—Scottish Leader.

One Way of Regulating Prices.

A visitor to the Philippine islands which are at present, and likely for some time, to be in revolt against Spain, has published a most interesting description of the manners and customs of the people. One of the products of the island is Tipa-Palmer, out of which the huts generally used as dwellings are chiefly constructed. The great heat and dampness prevalent, with snakes infesting every locality, compels the people to live on floors raised one story above ground, the whole building being nothing but posts covered over with palms. When the crop of the plant is so plentiful as to make it of little value, the villages are set on fire in order to create a demand for palms for their reconstruction. Judging by what the author says, who writes on the spot, this incendiary custom is an established institution. Eastern peoples are so conservative that what has been done in the past excuses its being continued to be done. We need hardly say that fire insurance is not a business known to the dwellers in Philippine villages!

EQUITY SALE.

There will be sold at Public Auction, at the front of the Post Office, in Kings Ward, in the Town of Woodstock, in the County of Carleton, on Tuesday, the Ninth Day of March, A. D. 1897, at the hour of Twelve o'clock, noon, all rights and interests in a Decretal Order of the Supreme Court in Equity, made on the First day of December, A. D. 1896, in a certain suit therein pending, wherein John W. Begg was plaintiff, and William Henry Post and Annie Post his wife, Arthur B. Demerchant and Margery Demerchant his wife, and Frank E. McNally were defendants, with the approval of the undersigned Referee in Equity for the County of Carleton, the lands and premises directed to be sold by the said decretal order, the lands firstly described therein to be sold first, and described as: "All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the Parish of Wicklow in the County of Carleton, being the lands and premises mentioned in Item number two of the last Will and Testament of Isaac Post, late of the Parish of Canning in the County of Queens, deceased, which said lands are described in the said item number two of the said will as follows:—the piece or parcel of land situate in the Parish of Wicklow, County of Carleton and Province aforesaid, being twenty rods on the lower side of a block of land that I purchased on the fifth day of August, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, from Charles Simonds and Sarah his wife, bounded on the lower or southerly side by lands owned by Charles McMullin, on the front by the river Saint John, on the upper or northerly side by lands owned and occupied by Abraham Post, being twenty rods from front to rear of said block of land, containing fifty acres more or less, which said lands are at present bounded on the lower or southerly side by lands occupied by Frederick H. Hale, on the front by the river Saint John, on the upper or northerly side by lands occupied by George White, together with all buildings and improvements thereon and appurtenances to the same belonging or in any wise appertaining. And if the proceeds of such sale be not sufficient to pay the amount assessed to the plaintiff and directed by the said decree to be paid to the said plaintiff and his costs of suit, and costs of the defendant Frank E. McNally, the undersigned referee will then immediately after the sale of the above described lands at the place of sale aforesaid sell the lands secondly described and directed to be sold by the said decretal order in accordance with the directions of the said decretal order, which said lands are described in the said decretal order as follows: "All that certain piece or parcel of land and premises situate lying and being in the said Parish of Kent in the County of Carleton and bounded and described as follows: commencing at a cedar stake near the road leading to Beechwood Siding and directly in front of the said Annie Post's House, thence easterly along the said road eight rods to another cedar stake, thence north-westerly, about four feet east of a row of apple trees recently set out thirteen rods to another cedar stake, thence south-westerly parallel to the said road eight rods to another cedar stake, thence south easterly parallel to the before mentioned row of apple trees twelve rods and eleven feet to the place of beginning and containing three fifths of an acre more or less. Together with all and singular the buildings and improvements thereon and appurtenances to the same belonging or in any wise appertaining. For terms of sale apply to plaintiff's solicitor. Dated the twenty-sixth day of December A. D. 1896.
