CROWNS GO BEGGING.

Many People Have Refused to Accept the Title of King.

When the throne of Greece was vacant, more than one great English statesman might have ruled over the destinies of that classic country, but the difficulties in the way were formidable. Mr. Gladstone's name was freely mentioned in connection with the crown of Greece, though, as Mr. Gladstone was a member of the Government at the time, the proposal never took definite shape. The late Lord Derby, however, who had strong sympathies with Greece, was offered the crown, and refused it, throwing away 50,000 a year and a kingdom. It was not the first time a man had declined to sit on the throne of Greece, Prince Leopold, the father of the present King of the Belgians, having refused the crown when Greece was declared a kingdom, in 1830. Prince Leopold's reason for refusing the crown was that the proposed boundaries of the country were insufficient, the exclusion of Crete especially influencing his decision.

One of Queen Victoria's son's the Duke of Edinburgh, has also been offered the Grecian crown. He was appealed to in the sixties, at the time Lord Derby declined the crown, but was compelled to refuse the offer owing to the gratitude of the Powers, who strongly declared their opposition to Prince Alfred being crowned King of the Greeks. The throne was then offered to the present King on whose behalf it was accepted by his father, the King of Denmark.

The crown of Austria-Hungary was refused in the middle of the century by the Archduke Franz Karl, the father of the present Emperor. King Ferdinand I. abdicated in December, 1848, the throne then descending in the ordinary course to Archduke Franz Karl. The Archduke, however, declined the crown, which he handed over to his son, who still wears it.

Another crown which has been more than once refused is the crown of Roumania. When Roumania was declared a kingdom, it was settled that the throne should descend to Prince Leopold, the eldest brother of the then reigning King. The Prince, however, voluntarily yielded his rights to the crown in favor of his son, Prince Wilhelm, the renunciation being registered in the Senate in Oct. 1880. Prince Wilhelm remained heir-apparent for eight years, but towards the end of 1888 he formally refused to accept the crown, and his brother became heir-apparent, being now Prince of Roumania.

Not many years ago a nephew of the great Napoleon died in exile, after refusing a crown. Prince Napoleon, nicknamed "Pion plan," son of a brother of Napoleon Bonaparte, was invited to sit on the throne of Roumania as the first King of that country, but he declined the offer, believing that he might ascend the throne of France. So the bird in the hand flew away, and the bird in the bush was never caught. The man who had hoped to be crowned King of France died in solitary exile. He had sacrificed one crown in the hope of receiving another, and lost both.

A SHELL BURST.

And He Thought the Buzzing in His Head Was Caused by It—Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder Undecides Him and Cures a Case of Chronic Catarrh of Thirty Years Standing.

"I have had chronic catarrh ever since the war. The disease affected my hearing greatly. There was a disagreeable ringing in my ears which I had attributed to the fact of a shell bursting near me while in an engagement. I used three bottles of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder and my catarrh has entirely left me. The noises in my head have also ceased. It is a great medicine—so easy and pleasant to apply. I have no hesitation in recommending it as a quick and certain cure for catarrh in its most acute form." J. C. Taylor, 210 N. Clinton Ave., Trenton, N. J.—Sold by Garden Bros.

Oyster Sandwich.

A Sunday night dainty is an oyster sandwich. A delicious sandwich for supper is made by chopping finely a pint of raw oysters, seasoned to taste with salt, white pepper and cayenne pepper, and put into a saucepan with two teaspoonfuls of butter and three teaspoonfuls of any dry biscuit crumbs. Heat until steaming, add a cupful of thick cream in which has been beaten the yolks of two raw eggs, stir until the mixture thickens. Remove from the fire, add ten drops of lemon juice and more seasoning if liked. When cold, spread between thin pieces of buttered bread.

An ordinary cough or cold may not be thought much of at the time, but neglect may mean in the end a consumptive's grave. Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine will not cure Consumption when the lungs are riddled with cavities; but it will stop the cough, will cure Consumption in its early stages, and even in its last stages gives such relief as to be a perfect Godsend to those whose lives are nearing a close.

On the second day after Bismarck's arrival at the University of Gottingen, as a student, he fought four duels, coming off victor in each contest. It is a matter of history that during the first three "semesters" he was at Gottingen, Bismarck fought no fewer than twenty-seven duels, was the winner in each fight, and was only hurt once, when he received a severe sword-slash across the face, the scar of which he bears to this day.

NAPOLEON'S LOSS.

It is said that but for an attack of indigestion, brought on by over eating, Napoleon would have won Waterloo. Great issues depend on good digestion—good digestion depends upon BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS. "Two years ago my wife was very ill with dyspepsia. Six bottles of B. B. B. cured her, and she has had no return of the malady." WM. DAY, Fort William, Ont.

Dear Sirs,—Constipation for years has been my chief ailment; it seemed to come oftener in spite of all I could do. However, some time ago I was told to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I have done, with the result of what appears now to be a perfect cure.—Truly yours, J. HARRIS.

"I am very much surprised to hear that they are married. I thought he was merely flirting with her."

"He thought so, too."

"Seen my boy Tommy anywhere, Mrs. Root?"

"Well, no I ain't seen 'im; but there's a fight at the other end of the street."

"It's the devil for any one to tell me a secret, for it is sure to come out in print."—HAZLITT.

All things come to him who waits, but the man who shakes off the tired feeling and hustles gets them much quicker.

If two men ride on one horse, one must ride behind, some old fellow has said. When one man rides on two horses (unless he is a circus man) well, he has to vote for one or the other sometime.

Last night I was looking through the exchange for useful information (I never read the births, marriages and deaths in fear that I might be tempted to do something that I should be ashamed of) and I found in one paper that the way to wash flannels to keep them from shrinking, was to wash them in cold water. Not five minutes later I saw in another paper that you should use warm water to accomplish the result. The great idea then landed in on me, that some people want to talk or write, whether they know anything to say or not. Please do not think that I write this because the county council is in session. I merely ask my readers not to take to heart nor to stomach any recipes they may be unfortunate enough to read in a newspaper.

THE IMP. HEART HOPE.

Raised in an Instant After the Use of Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart—A Potent Liquid Remedy—And No Case Too Acute for Immediate Relief and Certain Cure.

"For fifteen years I was a great sufferer from heart disease. All this while I was in the hands of one of our best physicians from whom the only encouragement I could obtain was that I was liable to drop off at any moment. I had many times read of cures made by Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart. Was induced to try a bottle of this cure, and to my surprise the very first dose gave me immediate relief. I felt encouraged and persisted. Before the first bottle was taken the dropsy, which had sorely troubled me, had disappeared, and when I had completed my second bottle I felt as well as I had ever felt." Mrs. John A. James, Warton.—Sold by Garden Bros.

A Pointer to Our Advertisers. The usefulness of your ad depends largely on your saying the right thing about each particular thing; for instance, in advertising summer goods make their summery character, daintiness, lightness, coolness, striking in your ad. If you are talking of winter goods emphasize their comfort-giving qualities, and suggest the snaz properties that people seek for when they buy such things. When size is a factor dwell on it; if weight is a recommendation bring it out; don't waste words. Consider well what you want to say and say it. Make your ad pertinent, and make it plain if it isn't exactly parliamentary.—Dry Goods Chronicle.

HEARTFELT AND SPONTANEOUS.—Medicine proprietor: Well, did you get a testimonial from Reverend Shadrach Snug? Hustler: Yes, and I've been chasing him up for six weeks. Med. Prop.: All right; just say in the ad that this heartfelt and spontaneous tribute is picked at random from the thousands of grateful letters that we get with every mail.—National Advertiser.

TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS.—Typographical errors sometimes cause really serious trouble and annoyance. On other occasions they are simply amusing. Some years ago an advertisement of a political meeting was inserted in a Philadelphia paper: The advertisement was intended to announce that a well-known leader would address "the masses" that evening. Owing to the misplacement of a "space," however, the public of Philadelphia was informed that the address would be delivered to "them asses at National Hall." A religious paper called the Gospel Banner, which is published in Augusta, once attracted attention through the prank of a printer, who transposed two words of its motto, so that it read: "In the name of our God we will up set our banner." The omission of a comma was the cause of a suit for libel brought against a Western newspaper by the inventor of a patent medicine. A testimonial to the worth of his compound was inserted in the paper and read as follows: "I now find myself completely cured, after being brought to the very gates of death by having taken only five bottles of your medicine." The comma, which should have come after the word "death," was unnoticed by the compositor.—Youth's Companion.

HOPES FULFILLED. The following letter tells what people think about Laxa-Liver Pills: DEAR SIRS,—I gladly testify to the virtues of Laxa-Liver Pills. I used to be troubled with severe headaches and constipation for a long time and took these pills hoping for a cure, and my hopes were rapidly fulfilled. I have found them a never-failing remedy, and heartily recommend them. Signed, MISS S. LAWSON, Moncton, N. B.
