

Divorce Cases.

Before the Divorce Court Fredericton last week there was one Carleton county and one Victoria County case the result of domestic infelicity.—G. F. Gregory, Q.C., in behalf of defendant in Armstrong vs. Armstrong, case, moved to strike this cause off the docket on the ground that no notice of trial had been given and that plaintiff had not paid the amount which the court had ordered as alimony. W. Vanwart Q. C., for plaintiff, contended that no notice of trial was necessary, the cause having been postponed from last term to the present on application of defendant. Witnesses in this case were snow bound on the Gibson branch and the Divorce Court adjourned to await their arrival. The witnesses left Woodstock on Monday by the Gibson branch train, which had, not yet got beyond Hughes's crossing, three miles above Keswick on Thursday. A relief train went out from Fredericton. The drift in which the train was blocked was over, fourteen feet high and extends over a mile along the track.

Another case taken up was Wm. H. McAlary vs. Jean D. McAlary. Plaintiff lives at Audover, where he married defendant some five or six years ago. They lived together only a short time, when they separated. Defendant subsequently removed to Houlton, where, after a time she obtained a divorce from a Maine court and soon afterwards was married to one Wm. Woodworth, with whom she is still living at Lines. It is the living as a wife with Woodworth that is relied on as the ground for divorce, the decree of divorce which was granted in Maine not being recognized by our court for the reason that under the law here the domicile of the husband is the domicile of the wife and though for some purposes a wife may acquire a new domicile she cannot make her husband amenable to the lex fori of her new domicile. This case was partly tried last term and adjourned over to enable evidence to be taken under commission at Houlton as to the divorce and re-marriage in Maine. This evidence was read and the case further adjourned for ten days in order to enable the plaintiff to get an affidavit of service of some of the papers on the defendant which was wanting.

The Divorce Court convened again on Monday to take up the hearing of Armstrong vs. Armstrong. A reconciliation and settlement, however, had been proposed by defendant (the wife) and negotiations being still in progress the court took recess till the afternoon, when it was expected the suit would be withdrawn.

We should hold ourselves ready to be something or nothing to society, as may seem possible, but, at all events, to be something and much to ourselves. For him who thus preserves his independence society reserves her choicest treasures. She gives him what in solitude he could never obtain—the power of expressing his true self clearly. Alone he may gain knowledge and self-discipline; but it is only in society that he learns the art of self-expression.

A good conscience is the profoundest source of this delightful calm. We shall attempt in vain to veil our faults from ourselves without it, or to listen only to the voice of adulation. An interior witness must testify that we have endeavoured to lead useful lives, and that we have always welcomed those who offered opportunities to do good. But, unfortunately, this feeling of calm content, which is the effect of duty performed, does not take possession of us until many years of our lives have been thrown away in a vain search for the beautiful and the good.

Windsor Rebuilding.

A letter from a Windsor gentleman to a friend in Halifax, shows the wonderful life that our burned sister town is exhibiting, in its noble attempts to arise from its own ashes. Over 100 houses have been put up, or are now in course of erection, apart from the numerous temporary shelters that have gone up on every side. Two fine hotels are being erected. The business part of the town will be built of brick; the necessary legislation, establishing fire limits is now being put through the Local House. The Windsor Foundry and the Furniture Factory are to be rebuilt. The plaster and selenite factory has been rebuilt and enlarged, and is turning out daily from 150 to 200 barrels. The business men of the town are all talking with the greatest confidence of the future of their new Windsor, which they say will excell old Windsor. Truro News.

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY

Is Loyal to Canadian Interests.

(From the Montreal 'Witness,' Feb. 5.)

The people of British Columbia are not easy to satisfy in the matter of the efforts which government, railways, press and people of Canada generally should make in order to secure to the British Columbia ports the Yukon business, but the Canadian Pacific Railway's course seems to be highly approved at least by the Victoria (B. C.) 'Times.' It says: "The Canadian Pacific Railway has shown wonderful, yet characteristic, energy in dealing with the Klondike question; they have fairly flooded the United Kingdom with literature in the highest degree beneficial to the interests of Canada, yet indulging in no abuse or misrepresentation of the Americans. The case for Canada has been put in such a manner that thousands who would have gone to Seattle, Tacoma, Portland and other American points west come to Victoria, Vancouver and other British Columbia cities. The C. P. R. can take passengers to Seattle quite as cheaply as they can land them in Victoria or Vancouver, but it is to the Company's credit that all their efforts have been to divert the travel to Canada. We don't expect railway companies to be influenced entirely by patriotism, but the C. P. R. have certainly done all within their power to give Canada the benefit of their influence without going out of the way to hurt rival lines by false statements. The Alaska Commercial Company, with all their experience in the Yukon and thorough knowledge of the rules and regulations governing the import of goods to the Klondike, purchasing their stores in Victoria is significant testimony to the fact that the Canadian campaign has been conducted on the proper lines and that it will be completely successful."

Complimentary Opinion of Woodstock From a Sussex Editor.

A representative of the Sussex Record was in town recently. He writes in this complimentary way of Woodstock:—

One of the most progressive towns in the province is Woodstock.

A member of the Record staff had occasion last week to visit that town on business and while there visited several of the local industries.

The one in which he was, of course, most interested was the packing and canning establishment of the Maritime Pure Food Co. The obliging foreman, Mr. Haskell, showed the Record man all over the building and explained the different processes through which the raw material goes before it is put in shape for the consumer and the trade. When in full operation the company employ from thirty to fifty hands and purchases large quantities of corn, peas, beans and other vegetables from the farmers of the vicinity. The past year has been a very favorable one, prices ruling high and the farmers and stockholders are very much pleased with returns. The manager is a man of original ideas, and believing that there is always plenty of room at the top, has, so far, made a success of the venture. Their goods command a better price than other makes, and find a very ready sale. The entire stock of this concern was subscribed locally.

Another establishment started by local capital is the Maritime Wrapper Co., the only industry of its kind in the lower provinces. It employs over forty hands.

An imposing brick structure on one of the main streets is used as a woolen mill, which is also run by Woodstock capital and employs a large staff, besides putting a lot of money in circulation among the farmers of the vicinity.

There are besides, two large foundries, which do a big business in farm implements and give employment to a number of hands; and there are several wood working factories. Among the latter is the firm of Chestnut & Hipwell, who are doing a snug business in the manufacture of carriages. The senior member is an old Sussex boy and a brother of our popular I. C. R. baggage master.

The town is well supplied with water and light, having an $80,000 water system and no less than three electric light plants, each run by separate companies, rather a dog in the manger style, as none of them are making anything out of it.

Woodstock has that most necessary of organizations to every progressive town—a live board of trade. The members of this body, who are mostly merchants are seriously thinking about forming a company for the purchase of farm produce. They are driven into this by the competition of the country merchants and realize that unless they can unite and go into the purchase on an extensive scale, they will be crowded out by the country dealer, who being nearer the producer and under less expense than the town merchant, has become a formidable competitor.

Woodstock shows Sussex and other aspiring towns a good example in the line of local industries. Her citizens have not waited for outside capital to come in and start a woolen mill, they have subscribed the money and started it themselves. They have not been frightened by the low prices of the Upper Canadian canning concerns, but have put their money up and gone into the canning business with a determination that marks them as a winner. Her citizens have a love for their town and are proud of its development. Business men bury their business jealousies when working for the good of the place and pool their moneys for its advancement. The Record wishes it could say as much for Sussex.

THAT FLUSH DELEGATE.

He is One of the Most Successful Farmers in Carleton County.

The paragraph in the Herald a few days ago, in reference to the Carleton county farmer who won distinction by the size of his pocket book during the recent meeting of the Farmers' and Dairymen's Association here, was not fiction as many suppose, but related to an actual fact. The name of the flush delegate is G. Leonard Cronkite, and his home is Royalton, a prosperous settlement some twenty miles from Woodstock. Mr. Cronkite is a gentleman who has passed the three score and ten mark, but nobody to look at the genial agriculturist, and note the bustling activity with which he moves about, would take him to be a day over 50. He has been a regular attendant at the annual meetings of the F. & D. Association here for years, and unlike the majority of those who attend, usually travels at his own expense and independent of agricultural societies. He says he finds this the better plan, for he is thus relieved of responsibility, and being away from his farm duties, and for the time being, from the worry and care which they contain, he is able to sail in, see the tiger and have a good time with the boys, and he invariably does. Mr. Cronkite naturally makes friends very quickly and he has many warm ones in Fredericton, who sincerely hope he will be spared to make his annual pilgrimage in this direction for many years to come.

An up river man who is well acquainted with Mr. Cronkite, says that he is one of the best known, most popular and successful agriculturists in the county of Carleton. He has been honored with a seat in the county council for many years and is recognized as one of the most upright and level headed members of that august body. He is always to the front in keeping along movements which he thinks are likely to prove a benefit to the common people, and enjoys quite a reputation as a philanthropist or in other words a lover of mankind. At his comfortable home bounteous hospitality is dispensed without stint to friend or stranger. Mr. Cronkite has several times been urged by his friends to seek higher political honors than are to be found in municipal councils, but he invariably lends a deaf ear to their entreaties.

The up river man on being told of the incident, where Mr. Cronkite had astonished some friends by the size of the wad of bills which he carried about his clothes ($2,700), remarked that it was nothing unusual for him. Mr. Cronkite he said was a man who had made his pile by the sweat of his brow, and the sum mentioned was only a fly bite in comparison with what he could produce if requested to do so.

Mr. Cronkite's friends think that it would be a graceful act on the part of the F. & D. association to admit him to honorary membership at the next meeting.—F'ton Herald.

A Determined Man.

Mr. Lodgeleigh (across the boarding house table)—Will you kindly pass the can-opener, Mrs. Skinner?

Mrs. Skinner (severely)—Do I understand you rightly, Mr. Lodgeleigh—the can-opener? Mr. Lodgeleigh (suavely)—You do, madam I wish to open this pie.
