JULY 13, 1898.

This Was in England.

The Duke of Norfolk is an exceedingly kind-hearted, quiet, unassuming man, but on one occasion he gave a postoffice young woman a severe fright. She had got into the habit of ruling the public with a rod of iron, and flavoring her remarks with a good deal of impudence. The duke saw and heard much of this while he was writing his telegram, recounts the London telegraph. When his turn came, the young woman took his telegram, read it and dashed it back at him, saying snappishly:

"Put your name to it. What's your name?"

"That will do," said the duke, pointing to his signature, Norfolk."

"That's not the name of a man, that is the name of a country," snapped the clerk.

The duke took the telegram and proceeded to write another, which ran: "Permanent Secretary, G. P. O., London—Clerk at this office exceedingly insolent to the public; reprimand severely; dismiss on second complaint. The Postmaster-General."

As he handed it in he observed:

"This is official, and will go free."

When the young woman read this she almost had a fit, but as the duke only intended to give her a lesson, he consented, after much entreaty and promise of amendment, to destroy the second telegram.

Expert Lady Dyers.

Mrs. William Warder, Spry, Ont., says: "Your Diamond Dyes are excellent, and nothing could now tempt me to use any other make of dyes. Diamond Dyes always give me entire satisfaction."

Mrs. McNeill, Stanley Bridge, P. E. I., says: "I have used the Diamond Dyes with great success. I recommend them to all ladies who wish to do their own dyeing. For coloring dress goods they are just perfect."

Mrs. L. Reid, Newcastle, Ont., says: "We have used your Diamond Dyes for the last ten years and find them to be the best dyes made."

The Old And New.

[From Judge.]

The volunteers who were encamped at Chattanooga were sitting around talking about the dangers and trials of a military life, when an ex-confederate soldier came loafing up to the lines. He engaged in conversation with some of the recruits and heard their complaints about the bruised shoulders that they had from practicing with the new army rifles.

"Do they kick?" inquired the Johnny reb.

"Well," replied one of the boys in blue, "they seem to me to act more like pugilists. The first one I fired off today hit me everywhere from the solar-plexus to the tip of the chin, and if I hadn't been in training I believe it would have knocked me out."

"Um," drawled the old soldier, "but did you ever fire off one of the old muskets that were used in the civil war?"

"I can't say that I did. Did they kick?"

"Kick! The first one I fired off not only kicked me, but knocked me down and tramped on me, and I do believe that if our sergeant hadn't had presence of mind to pull the durned thing off it would have stomped the life out of me."

And after that the canteens were emptied.

Yonge St. Fire Hall.

Toronto, March 16th, 1891.

Gentlemen,—I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for Biliousness and Constipation, and have proved them the best that I have ever used—will use nothing else as long as they are obtainable. Remaining yours, respectfully,

E. C. SWEETMAN.

Her Dear Friends.

[From the Cleveland Leader.]

"Whp has Laura decided to go to the front as a nurse? She's never had any experience in that line, and, heretofore, she's never seemed to have had an inclination for such things."

"Oh, it isn't because she thinks she is especially fitted for it nor because she has an inclination for the work, but she was reading somewhere, the other day, about somebody who had married the girl that had nursed him through a severe illness. And the proportion of men to women is so much greater there than it is here, too, you know."

Fiji Wisdom.

First Fiji—The missionary is fat, I admit, but for all that I prefer not to partake of him.

Second Fiji—For what reason, pray?

First Fiji—Why, he has done nothing but dispute my statements ever since he was captured.

Second Fiji—And what has that to do with his not making wholesome provender?

First Fiji—Everything! He would be certain to disagree with me.

A Running Sore Pronounced Incurable by Eight Doctors—Cured by Dr. Chase.

Mr. R. D. Robbins, 148 Cowan Ave., Toronto, says: "I had a bad leg, which was simply unsightly. From below the knee to the ankle was one great sore. Eight doctors treated me without benefit. I was induced to try Dr. Chase's Ointment which cured me, and all that remains to be seen are the scars."

Yours respectfully, ANNA A. HOWEY, Eden, Ont.

A MOTHER SPEAKS.

Tells how Dr. Chase Saved her Boy.

His Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine a Precious Boon.

MRS. A. T. STEWART, Folgar, Ont., says: "From the 7th of January to the 30th, we were up night and day with our two little boys, employing doctors and trying every kind of patent medicine we ever heard of. At this time we did not know of Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine until after the 30th, when our youngest darling died in spite of all we could do. Sometime in February the doctor told us our other boy couldn't live till spring. We were about discouraged, when I got my eye on an advertisement of Dr. Chase's Syrup."

"I tried at once to get some, but none of the dealers here had it. A neighbor who was in Kingston managed to purchase two bottles which he brought straight to us, and I believe it was the means of saving our only boy."

"One teaspoonful of the Syrup stopped the cough so he could sleep till morning. Our boy is perfectly well now, and I would not be without Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house."

Mr. Asbury Peppers.

[From the Cincinnati Enquirer.]

"I saw a sign painter barely save himself," said the student boarder, "by catching as he fell the sign he had finished. He was suspended 20 feet from the sidewalk."

"He is not the first man," said Asbury Peppers, "who hung breathless on his own words when no one else did."

The Outcome.

[From Puck.]

"What do you think will be the result of the Spanish trouble?" asked the court clerk. "Oh! the case will be continued for a time, said the police magistrate, "and then Spain will be fined on the charge of disorderly conduct."

Visitor—Does Clarence still fiddle? Fond mother—Oh, dear! no! He took a course of lessons in Paris, and he plays the violin now.

"It's the devil for any one to tell me a secret, for it is sure to come out in print."—HAZLITT.

It is a serious mistake for a young man or young women to adopt a sarcastic manner, for it clings to them, at a time when they wish to be rid of it. I have known people to have such a reputation for satire and sarcasm, that every remark they made was thought to be influenced by this disposition. When they said "thank you" or "I'm greatly obliged," they were looked on with suspicion. The use of sarcasm may be a great gift, but it is a gift which few who possess it, know how to appreciate. No one likes to be the victim of sarcasm. In public life, I believe that sarcasm is going, so to speak, out of fashion. Just as the good old days, when two men, disagreeing, took off their coats and started in to settle the matter with fists, is past, so is the day about past, when the tongue is used maliciously towards an opponent. This may be noted in reading over speeches by Sir Charles Tupper. He is, undoubtedly a master of sarcasm, yet one looks in vain, for the scathing references to political opponents, that characterized his public utterance of earlier years. Mr. McKenzie once told Dr. Tupper that he was one of those who, to quote Milton, "would rather reign in hell than serve in Heaven." When the doctor spoke in reply, he asked if the hon. member had ever known him to show an inclination to reign on the other side of the house. Sir Richard is sarcastic, but the happy change for him, has mellowed his temper and he is not as "terrible" as he used to be. His recent reference to liberal-conservatives as politico-mulattoes, is not, by any means bad. The most sarcastic thing in public life of late years is Chamberlain's remark of Russia "He who sups with the devil must needs have a long spoon." It is said to have struck home, and may have more influence on China than anyone at present fancies possible.

Fighting means more than singing patriotic songs, and waving flags. The trouble is that ceaseless parading of flags, and constant singing of patriotic, or more properly, of jingo songs leads to fighting, and the gallant warriors of flags, and the lusty singers of songs, are not always to be found, when the flame which they have industriously kindled, has burst forth into proportions which it requires bravery to subdue. Bellowing "fire, fire" may do at the beginning of a conflagration, but more practical work is required before the fire is subdued. Speaking of this rage tendency to wave flags and sing songs, an American Exchange says:—"We are intensely patriotic in the way of hanging out flags and in verbal demonstrations, but this is simply a species of self-laudation which is not of the least value to the American government or to the American people. To cheer at a flag raising or contribute money for a band to play patriotic airs will not bring to soldiers wounded in battle or struck down by malaria or typhoid fever, encountered in the line of service, that care and attention which will ease their sufferings and give them promise of a restoration to health. What we need is less sentimental demonstration and more practical work put in in the direction where the greatest good can be attained."

Queen Victoria is said to be down on the divorce business. A recent instance in which her influence is said to have been exerted is given in the following by The Chatterer in the Boston Herald:—"The Grand Duke and Duchess of Hesse appear to have settled their matrimonial difficulties and are quite chummy once more. If this amiability is not all on the surface, it goes to show the wisdom of the young couple's elders and superiors, who would not let them be divorced, as the grand duchess desired. The brakes were put on to good purpose by their British grandmother, but what arguments besides her royal will were used will never be known outside of that family circle. "For better or worse" means precisely that in good Victoria's eyes, and her horror of divorce is only equalled by her dislike of second marriages." Her Majesty has certainly set an example of devotion to her first and only love.

DYSPEPSIA.

"For over eleven years I suffered terribly with Dyspepsia and tried everything I could think of, but got no relief until I started using Burdock Blood Bitters. I had only taken one bottle when I commenced to feel better, and after taking five or six bottles was entirely well, and have been so ever since. I feel as if B. B. B. had saved my life." MRS. T. G. JOYCE, Stanhope, Que.
