

A Dunnville Jeweller's Wife

CURED OF PALPITATION OF THE HEART AND SMOOTHING SPELLS BY MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. D. E. Lasalle, Canal Street, Dunnville, Ont., whose husband keeps a jewellery store, and is one of the best known and most progressive citizens of Dunnville, Ont., gives the following description of her recent experience in the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills: "I took Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for weak nerves, dizziness, palpitation of the heart, smothering spells at night and sleeplessness. Before I used them I could not get restful sleep, and my nerves were often so unstrung that I would start in alarm at the least noise, and easily worried."

"Last February I commenced taking this valuable medicine, and it proved the right remedy for my weak and shattered nervous system. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills restored my nerves to a strong and healthy condition, gave regular and normal action of the heart."

"I sleep well now, and am better in every way, and I recommend them heartily to all who suffer as I did."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, 50c. a box, or 3 for $1.25, at all druggists. T. MILBURN & CO., Toronto, Ont.

UPPER WOODSTOCK IRON.

The Following is Contributed By a Valued Occasional Writer to The Dispatch: It is stated that there is a probability of the Upper Woodstock Iron Works being shortly reopened, this if true is good news. Many of the older residents of Woodstock can remember the time when the vicinity of the Iron Works was a stirring place and teams were constantly employed hauling the "pig iron" to Richmond Station for shipment. This was before the construction of the Woodstock branch railway.

It appears from the report of James Cadman Esq. enquirer of the Iron Works that in the year 1864 the quantity of wood required for the Iron Works was 12,000 cords a quantity estimated as sufficient to strip 400 acres.

The production of pig iron for the same year was estimated at 2,750 tons. The manager of the Charcoal Iron Company at that time was Norris Best Esq. The Company had under lease 5,000 acres of land but in quarrying the ore ground had been opened over a surface of less than two acres and the greatest depth penetrated in any one place was 20 feet.

In the year 1864 there were employed at the mines and about the furnace at Upper Woodstock 75 men. Twelve teams with drivers were employed in hauling ore while to cut the cord wood required the labor of about 150 men for 12 weeks and the hauling of it furnished employment for 60 teams and drivers for the same length of time. In addition a number of teams were employed in hauling pig iron to Richmond for shipment.

The Woodstock charcoal iron had a wonderful reputation in its day. At the first provincial exhibition held at St. John in 1851 (which by the way was the same year the first World's Fair was held at the Crystal Palace in London) the report issued by the commissioners stated: "The samples of iron and steel from Woodstock seem to be of the very first quality; the iron has been bent and twisted when cold in every direction but without showing the least injury to the fibre. It would be hard to devise a more complete proof of the quality of the article."

HOME FAILURES.

And Serious Losses from Use of Common and Adulterated Dyes.

DIAMOND DYES

Are Used by All Wise and Economical Women.

The only pure, harmless, and successful package dyes for home dyeing are the Diamond Dyes.

The imitation package dyes and the common soap grease mixtures are so largely adulterated with foreign substances that they are positively dangerous to use and handle. No lady who values her garments and materials will care to risk the coloring powers of these adulterated dyestuffs. Suffice it to say the colors are dull, muddy and lifeless, and cannot stand the most ordinary washing.

The Diamond Dyes have a long record of triumphs and well-done work that has never been equalled in the history of home dyes. In every part of the world they give delight and satisfaction, and are hailed as true money savers.

Easy, pleasant and profitable home dyeing is only possible with the tested and popular Diamond Dyes.

As there are still storekeepers who sell inferior package and soap grease dyes for the sake of long profits, see to it that your dealer gives you the Diamond Dyes when you ask for them. Every genuine package has the name "Diamond."

It is poor judgment to pay ten cents for adulterated dyes when you can buy the guaranteed Diamond Dyes for the same price. Send to Wells & Richardson Co., Montreal for book of directions and sample card of 48 colors; free to any address.

True Story Of Eugene Aram.

On August 16, just one hundred and thirty nine years ago, an individual was hanged at Tyburn whose name and crime would probably long since have been forgotten had they not been preserved in the century following by the able pens of Thomas Hood and Bulwer Lytton. The career of Eugene Aram, which finished so ignominiously at Tyburn Tree on the date I have mentioned, offered a fascinating subject to the weaver of romances, and the thrilling story of the novelist and the immortal dream of the poet have made the name of the murderer a household word all over the English-speaking world.

English literature appears to have barely escaped from yet another story of Aram, for Goldwin, the gifted author of "Caleb Williams," declared that he "had always thought the story of Eugene Aram peculiarly adapted for fiction, and that he had more than once entertained the notion of making it the foundation of a novel." The true story of this attractive robber and murderer is as follows:—Born in Yorkshire, Aram received a fair education, became a clerk in London, returned to his native place set up a school and married unfortunately. He then removed to Knaresborough, and industriously acquired Greek, Hebrew, and Latin, and a exquisite knowledge of literature—all this before 1744. In that year he again came to London, and was usher in a school in Piccadilly. Here he added Chaldee and Arabic to his already large store of knowledge. During his engagement at other schools he studied Celtic and acquired a considerable knowledge of botany. In the year that Aram came to London for the second time, a shoemaker named Daniel Clark had disappeared from Knaresborough.

Fourteen years later, workmen in St. Robert's cave found what were believed to be Clark's remains. Suspicions were aroused, a man called Houseman was arrested, enquiries implicated Aram, and both were committed for trial. The trial took place in 1759, and disclosed a strange story. Aram, Houseman, and Clark, three needy men, entered into a conspiracy to obtain valuable property as if for Clark's forthcoming wedding, and were to divide their booty. Clark, however, disappeared, and, though some suspicion was aroused at the time it was soon dissipated. At the inquest and subsequent trial, Houseman accused Aram, and Aram, (who owned to fraud) denied the murder. Houseman turned King's evidence, and, in spite of an elaborate and eloquent defence, delivered extempore by the unhappy usher, he was found guilty and condemned to die. He afterwards made a partial confession and attempted suicide, was brought to London, and hanged at Tyburn.

It is interesting to recall that Hood's "Dream of Eugene Aram" was the result of a horrible and actual dream in which the poet says that his "mental anguish was indescribable." With regard to Lytton's romance, it is published in 1831, and dedicated to Walter Scott. In his preface he states how Aram's reputation for learning during his residence at Lynn had attracted the attention of his (Lytton's) grandfather, a country gentleman living in the neighborhood.

Lytton had at first intended to mould the tale into stage form, but afterwards changed it into a romance.

It is probable that no middle class criminal's career, unconnected with some great political movement, has ever exercised such an influence over literary men as that of the unhappy Eugene Aram.—W. C. F., in the Sketch.

Montague, of Dunnville, Cured of Ulcerated Itching Piles.

Mr. Robert Montague, of Dunnville, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with Itching Piles for five years and was so badly ulcerated, they were very painful, so much so, that I could not sleep. I tried almost every medicine known when I was recommended to use Dr. Chase's Ointment. I purchased a box and from the first application got relief. Have used two boxes and am now completely cured."

A Good Story About Gilbert.

In the early days of W. S. Gilbert's success, when Gilbert and Sullivan were considered by managers as "sure winners" in the comic opera field, a young woman, who was a member of one of the "Pinafore" companies, wrote to Gilbert telling him of her approaching marriage with a young man of good position and family.

Gilbert congratulated the young woman and expressed the hope that her future might be prosperous and happy. Only a little more than a month passed and another letter from the same girl reached him, in which she stated that her engagement with the young man had been broken and that she had accepted another suitor. He replied that he had every confidence in her judgment, and again expressed his hearty wishes for her welfare.

It was almost two months after that that Gilbert received a letter from the same girl, who informed him that young Lord — had proposed, and that she had accepted him, after breaking her engagement with No. 2. Gilbert's humor could no longer withstand the temptation, and he wrote: "I desire to congratulate you on your approaching marriage with —." Here he placed an asterisk and in a footnote added, "Here insert the name of the happy man."

SEVERE COUGH CURED.

"I had a severe cold which settled on my lungs and made me so weak I had to give up work. Two bottles of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup completely cured me." J. H. Danthwright, Gowland, Mt., N. B.

If you had impregnable uprightness of character, if nefarious methods were abhorrent to you, there would be no attractiveness in vicious deeds, and they would have no more alluring power than the fire has, which may coax you to thrust your hand into it, but which coaxes in vain.

Eye Strain Illness.

Only those who have been relieved by the use of glasses understand what bearing the condition of the eyes has on the general health. There are children today sick because of eye strain. Their illness may be attributed to other causes, and they will go on being sick until the True Cause be discovered by the exercise of good common sense on the part of the parents. If your child complains of the eyes, see what the trouble is—I can tell you—it won't cost you anything, so there's no excuse for negligence.

I submit that duty is a power which rises with us in the morning and goes to rest with us at night. It is co-extensive with the action of our intelligence; it is the shadow which cleaves to us go where we will, and which only leaves us when we leave the light of life.—Gladstone.
