trouble for four years, caused by excessive use of tobacco. At times my heart would beat very rapidly and then seemed to stop beating only to commence again with unnatural rapidity.

"This unhealthy action of my heart caused shortness of breath, weakness and debility. I tried many medicines and spent a great deal of money but could not get any help.

Last November, however, I read of a man, afflicted like myself, being cured by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I went to Roper's drug store and bought a box. When I had finished taking it I was so much better I bought another box and this completed the cure. My heart has not bothered me since, and I strongly recommend all sufferers from heart and nerve trouble, caused by excessive use of Nerve Pills a fair and faithful trial."

Linares has divided his forces so as to attack our army from the rear when the Ameaicans advance against the city. Gen. Carcia maintains that the Spanish commander has not a force large enough to warrant him in adopting such a course. He bases his opinion on the reports brought by his most reliable scouts. All of the information at hand indicates that Gen. Linares will hold his centre force in Santiago. He may conclude to have Gen. Pando attempt an attack on our rear when the fighting begins, but even this is doubtful In fact, the chances are 10 to 1 that Gen. Pando will not be able to get his forces in the vicinity before the Americans attack Santiago. One of Gen. Shafter's reasons for rushing preparations for the attack is to pre-vent the possibility of such action on the part of Gen. Blanco. Gen. Shafter was accompanied into camp today by Col. It appears from the report of our naval authorities that Lieut. Hobson's attempt to block the channel of Santiago harbor was not a success, thus confirming the statement | moths by putting a drop or two in the bottom made by Admiral Cervera, which at the time of the drawer or chest or cupboard, it will was vigorously disputed as an illustration of the Spanish method of distorting the truth. Apparently, in the darkness and the terrible storm of shot and shell to which he was ex posed, Lieut. Hobson went beyond the point where the channel was narrowest, at which he intended to sink his vessel, and sunk her at a place where the channel was of sufficient width to admit of sailing large vessels around either end of the obstruction. The attempt was, therefore, a piece of daring something the same as the charge of the Light Brigate, but equally ineffective, so far as its main object was concerned. Possibly, however, an indirect gain was secured in one case, as in the other, that would compensate for the sacrifice made, which in our case, was merely so many hundreds of thousands of dollars. for the last two or three weeks to maintain a close blocade of Santiago, to be constantly on the alert in order to prevent a surprise from Farmers need not be afraid of offending bicyclists by asking them to have a drink of milk. Buttermilk is a favorite drink, and bicyclists are always very thankful when asked if they would like some. A bicyclist generally asks for a drink of water, when they really mean milk.

Why cannot the Canadian Wheelman Association have some guide boards to show the tourist where good drinking water is to be found? There are many of these places a few steps from the road-side which the stranger would naturally pass. We cannot do too much to facilitate touring.

"Kick my dog and you kick me." There used to be a day when every sport had a four legged friend following at his heels. If he was rich, the purp had a pedigree as long as his arm; if he was poor the purp was still there, with length of tail instead of pedigree. It's an old saying, Kick my dog you kick me. Now that the world is whirling, and the dog paign. After attending to some minor is left on the door mat, there is no more pedigree matching, ear-measuring, or tail-twisting done. Goldwin Smith on the "Anglo-Saxon."

Writing in the Weekly Sun, Dr. Goldwin Smith says: "To say, with any approach to exactness, how much of Anglo-Saxou blood, and how much of the blood of other races there is in the mixture now called Anglo-Saxon, is absolutely beyond our power. The increase of a dominant race is less than that of the subject races because its members are more restrained from marrying and having children by economical and social considerations. Anglo-Saxon alliance, therefore, if it rested on pedigree, would have but a sandy foundation."

There is room for the best to be better, and they can become so only through struggle and failure. The ideal seems to recede as we advance, and height to rise over height till we would fain rest rather than climb. Two natures wrestle in our breast, and at no age more fiercely than in youth. As it is decided then, it, as a rule, continues, both light and darkness. Love seeks victory to report to Heaven; sin seeks a slave, to be at her will forever. Love is always building up. It puts a line of beauty on every life it touches, gives new hope to discouraged ones, new strength to those who are weak, new joys to those who are sorrowing, thus enabling them to go on in life's ways, when, without the cheer, they must have sunk down in their disheartenment. It helps the despairing to rise and start again. It makes life seem worth while to everyone into whose eyes it looks. It's words are benedictions. It does good and never evil all its days.
