

A NURSE'S STORY.

Tells how she was cured of Heart and Nerve Troubles.

The onerous duties that fall to the lot of a nurse, the worry, care, loss of sleep, irregularity of meals soon tell on the nervous system and undermine the health. Mrs. H. L. Menzies, a professional nurse living at the Corner of Wellington and King Streets, Brantford, Ont., states her case as follows: "For the past three years I have suffered from weakness, shortness of breath and palpitation of the heart. The least excitement would make me difficult to sleep. After I got Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I experienced great relief, and on continuing their use the improvement has been marked until now all the old symptoms are gone and I am completely cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills cure Anaemia, Nervousness, Weakness, Sleeplessness, Palpitation, Throbbing, Faint Spells, Dizziness or any condition arising from Impoverished Blood, Disordered Nerves or Weak Heart.

Spanish Pronunciation.

There are many peculiarities, observes the News, of London, in the pronunciation of Spanish. The name Curaco which has been so often seen in print, and which most English people pronounce as it is spelled, is in Spanish, Curah-so-a, the last 'e' being the soft form of that letter. Then there is a Spanish town whose name is spelled "Cieza" and pronounced "The-a-tha." The accent is on the second syllable. "Z" in Spanish is always sounded like the English 'th' in 'thimble' and 'thirst.' 'C' before 'e' and 'i' has the same sound. Thus it is that the name of the Spanish steamer which not long ago visited the port of New York is pronounced as if it spelled "Vithcaya," and that the name of the Cuban port Cienfuegos is pronounced by the Spaniards as we should pronounce it as if it spelled "The-en-fwa-goo" the accent being on the third syllable. The Cubans do not always follow the hisping Spanish fashion, and their pronunciation of Cienfuegos makes the first syllable sound like 'Se.' The Spanish 'g' has the same sound as ours when it precedes 'a,' 'o' or 'u'. But before 'e' and 'i' it becomes aspirate—the equivalent of the sound which we give to 'h' in 'hint' and 'head.' The Spanish 'h' is always silent. The Spanish 'i' is sounded precisely the same as our 'h' in 'ham.' It is because the Spaniards were the discoverers of that region that the name of the Gila River in Arizona is pronounced 'Hela,' and that San Jose, in California is called 'San Hosay.' The combination 'll' is always pronounced in Spanish like our 'lli' in 'million,' so that 'Guamarillo,' is pronounced 'Gooa-ma-reel-leeo,' which is a very musical sound. But Americans will never be content to dwell lazily upon each letter in pronouncing their words. They are a busy people. Spanish visitors in Cuba and the Philippines 10 years hence will find difficulty in recognizing the geographical nomenclature. It will by that time have undergone a change to suit it to American months and to the economic demands of a bustling business like age of the world.

Mrs. Hutchinson, of Vandeleur, P. O., Ont., says: "South American Nerve is a wonderful medicine, and the only remedy that ever helped me. I was a great sufferer from nervous prostration, acute indigestion. The first dose relieved me and three bottles completely cured me." Sold by Garden Bros.

Precept and Practice.

Some of the Japanese newspapers are making comments upon the manner in which the doctrines of Christianity are embodied in the policy of the European nations. The Japanese, these commentators assert, are asked to accept the Christian religion as the most beneficent rule for personal and national conduct. As illustrating this Christianity and the honesty it inculcates, they point to recent experiences on the coast of China. Two years ago, at the close of a brilliant and successful war, Japan was forced to abandon a part of its Chinese gains in consequence of pressure brought to bear by Russia and Germany, these European nations protesting against the Japanese seizure of Chinese territory because they wished to safeguard the integrity of the Chinese empire. This, of course, they say, is Christian honesty. Then, again, Christianity is the avowed harbinger of universal charity, love and brotherhood. The Sultan of Turkey has recently sanctioned the slaughter of tens of thousands of Armenian Christians, and the German Emperor has been his chief protector against those who were desirous of punishing him for his cruelty. But when Christians who happened to be Germans were killed in China, the German Empire took advantage of this fact to swoop down upon Kiao-Chau, in time of profound peace, and, in spite of all that he had previously said about preserving the integrity of China, he seized this port and absolutely refused to accept indemnity other than a practical cession of Chinese territory. The two missionaries in question were killed by Chinese bandits, and the Chinese government offered every redress and reparation that the circumstances called for; but, in spite of Christian teaching, the pretext to steal the possessions of one's neighbor was altogether too good to be overlooked and let pass.—EX.

Having tried your medicine, my faith is very high in its powers of curing Cough and Croup. My little girl has been subject to the Croup for a long time, and I found nothing to cure it until I gave Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine, which I cannot speak too highly of.

The Price of Wheat.

It is a fact worthy of note that the price of wheat has been higher in the great register of the world's prices, the London market, within the last few weeks than it has been at any time since 1883; 1883 represents up to present time the last year of high prices of wheat. Prior to that time, with some variations, the prices had been high. The average value per bushel of wheat, as furnished by the department of agriculture at Washington, in 1883, was 91 cents; in 1882, 88 cents; in 1881, $1.19; in 1880, 95 cents; in 1879, $1.10; in 1878, 77 cents, and for years before that the average price, with rare exception, had been considerably over a dollar. But following 1883 a decline set in, which has steadily gone on, each year usually shaving off some of the balance of the year before, until it seemed that it could be no longer possible for the farmer to exist and grow grain at prices so much lower than those which had obtained a decade or two ago. This year we have a reversal, as we have said, which has carried prices up to the range of fifteen years ago. That these prices will be maintained is not in the least probable. Their existence will unquestionably tend to stimulate production, larger areas of land will be planted to wheat this year than ever before, and probably in six months from now, unless climatic conditions seriously interfere, we shall have a tremendous harvest in anticipation, and prices of wheat down to levels even lower than those known before. This is due to the fact that our present prices are the result of an exceptionally short supply, and that the previous low prices were largely due to the ability of farmers to produce a large supply at a low cost, in consequence of the tremendous improvements that have taken place in the processes of agriculture and in the costs and methods of transportation.—EX.

The Sunday is For Man.

The prohibitionists, and the Sabbatarians, and the anti-dancing, and the anti-theatres, and the anti-beer-drinking, and the anti-meat-eating, and the anti-tobacco cranks are becoming such nuisances that they are arousing the indignation of sensible people. It is not singular that all these cranks are "antis." They are against something. There is not a single movement in favor of something. They all want to shut off some one or other of the enjoyments of the masses. Not one of them seeks to add something to the pleasure and enjoyment of the people. The people are getting sick of "anti" movements, and before long will take such measures as will effectually get rid of the anti nuisances. The Toronto Sabbatarian cranks who wanted to make a criminal offence for a wage-earner to go out into the country on a Sunday in summer, and tried to shut off all Sunday cars and bicycles, have at length forced onward a movement in favor of Sunday freedom. A new organization has been formed designated the Canadian National Sunday League. The objects of the league are to have passenger trains and steamboats run on Sunday, to have reading rooms, reference libraries, art galleries, and museums open on Sunday, and to have bands play in the parks on Sunday afternoons. A committee of three, with power to add to its number, was appointed to organize the movement. Letters were read at the meeting from Prof. Goldwin Smith, Geo. Bertram, M. P., and Byron E. Walker, general manager of the Canadian
