Death of Mrs. Wood. Ketchum.

Mrs. Woodford Ketchum died at her home in Houlton on Saturday last, after a long illness extending over a period of several years. Everything that medical treatment could suggest was done to restore her health, but to no avail. She had only been home from a hospital in Portland, Me., a few weeks before her death. Besides the husband, there is left a little daughter five years old. Mrs. Ketchum's maiden name was Kate Hamilton. She came from St. John.

The St. John Telegraph says:—

Mrs. Ketchum was held in the highest esteem both in Houlton and her former home, St. John, and in both places she has very many friends to whom the news of her death will be a cause of deep sorrow. She leaves a husband, and one daughter, Helen, five years old. Her father, Mr. James Hamilton, and four sisters and one brother also survive her. Her sisters are Mrs. J. D. Nichols, Mrs. C. H. S. Johnston, Miss Josephine and Miss Jennie Hamilton of this city, and her brother is Mr. William Hamilton, first officer on a British passenger and mail steamer at Singapore.

About Pulp Mills.

The following article about pulp mills in Maine is of special interest in view of the agitation for a pulp mill in Woodstock:—

The day seems near at hand when the lumber industry of Maine will be of small importance compared with the making of pulp and paper, and, so far from being regretted the change now in progress from sawmills to pulp mills is welcomed by the owners of timber lands and all concerned. Within ten years there has been erected on the Penobscot half a dozen large mills, in which many millions of feet of small logs are annually ground and cooked into pulp. These mills are so profitable that several new and larger structures are now planned, and the various pulp and paper manufacturing projects now under way will require millions of capital. At Winn a large pulp and paper mill is to be built, an extensive enterprise is planned at Milford and a company has been found here whose purpose is to erect at Twin Dam, on the north Branch of the Penobscot, the largest pulp and paper mill in the world. At this point the river will furnish 20,000 horse power, and there are millions of acres of timber land surrounding. Big logs will some day be scarce on the Penobscot, but no man can foretell when the supply of material suitable for pulp will become exhausted. The pulp forests are practically unlimited, and no fear is felt even by the so-called forestry reformers, that the pulp mills' digesters will never be hungry. Pulp pays, lumber does not. That is the whole story. Pulp gains, lumber loses. The brick mills, with their acids and grinders, are rising on every hand; the wooden mills, with their gangs and muley saws, are decaying, and Maine will be soon best known as the pulp mill State.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN PANTS.

The editor of the Rocky Mountain Call won the prize of $1,000 offered by the syndicate of western editors for the best appeal poem to newspaper subscribers to pay up their subscriptions. This is the poem:

Lives of poor men oft remind us
Honest men won't stand a chance;
The more we work there grow behind us
Bigger patches on our pants.

On our pants, once new and glossy,
Now are stripes of different hue,
All because subscribers linger
And won't pay us what is due.

Then let us all be up and doing,
Send in your mite, however small
Or when the snow of winter strikes us,
We shall have no pants at all.

NOVEMBER DYEING.

Success, Profit and Pleasure
When Diamond Dyes Are Used.

Thousands of city and country women and girls will dye during the month of November. Old dresses, costumes, capes, jackets, wraps, shawls, and clothing for men and boys will be brought from attics, closets and boxes, and prepared for the dye bath.

It is safe to assert that every wife, mother and daughter who has heard of the wonderful working Diamond Dyes will use them in preference to any other make of dyes.

It is unnecessary to dilate upon the many grand results that users of Diamond Dyes obtain. A few words will tell the story. The Diamond Dyes will make the old things look as fresh and as good as new, and will give colors that sun or washing cannot fade. The unfortunate women who are induced by some dealers to buy imitation and adulterated dyes will certainly suffer loss of money, time and materials.

There is profit in home dyeing only when the Diamond Dyes are used. See that you get the "Diamond" from your dealer; refuse all imitations.

Kitchener's Sword.

There is great enthusiasm in London over the arrival of the hero of Khartum, Gen. Lord Kitchener. The General was the guest of Queen Victoria at Balmoral during the early part of the week and he represented Her Majesty with many interesting relics of the battle of Omdurman. On Thursday the General went through the quaint ceremony of being admitted to the freedom of the Fishmongers company and it was as a citizen and fishmonger that he received the freedom of the city of London on Friday.

The sword of honor presented to General Kitchener at the Guild hall Friday is a magnificent specimen of the jeweller's art. The hilt is of solid gold, surmounted by a figure of the British lion, and it bears the figures of Britannia and Justice and the monogram of the General in diamonds, rubies and sapphires, and the British and Egyptian flags enamelled in their proper colors. The scabbard is finely ornamented and inscribed with the names of the Sirdar's victories. The blade is of the finest steel, damascioned near the hilt with gold.

OXFORD TRIPLE HEATER FOR WOOD.

This heater solves the problem—with a minimum of fuel it produces a maximum of heat. It uses no more fuel than a box stove, but it circulates the air of the whole house. Without the expense of the hot-air furnace, it provides conditions exactly similar. The air may be taken from out of doors and circulated through the tubular linings of the stove and thrown fresh into the house, or the air of the house itself may be circulated at the will of the operator.

The work done by this stove is incredible to any one who has not seen it operate. Will heat three times as much space as the ordinary stove, with less consumption of fuel than any stove in the market.

As to construction the heater is made to last. Although seemingly a modern sized stove, it weighs over 400 lbs. We have sold several of these stoves and they are giving perfect satisfaction. We are now heating our store with one of these stoves. Call and see it work.

We also have a full line of Cooks, Parlor Franklins. Our prices are as low as the lowest, and every stove we sell we guarantee. We would be pleased to have the public call and look our line over which we now have on exhibition, as we are sure we can please you in style, quality and price.
