"It's the devil for any one to tell me a secret, for it is sure to come out in print."—HAZLITT.

There is an excellent opening for a new Magazine in the United States just now, if the management would only exclude articles on the Spanish American War. Would that our friends over the line might learn not to take things so much to heart, no to blow so much about a trifling thing as a war. I know they are big and strong and can whop a whole lot of different nations but what's the good of talking so much about it. A party by the name of Kitchener has just done rather a good thing down in a place called the Soudan, but he has refrained from writing a book about it and I have not heard of him getting mixed up in a promiscuous kissing fracas with a lot of crazy headed females.

Mumps! I've got them. Talk about cheek—I have enough to start a side show to a circus. I was all right when I went to bed and when I woke up my face was all over the bed. Of course I am confined to my room for I haven't the face to go out. I have been eating mustard plasters for it but they don't help much. It gives a fellow a nice, plump, boyish look, but if it pains like this to look young again I prefer to grow old.

TO OUR WOMEN.

Worthless Dyes That Cause Serious Losses in Many Homes.

Many of our Canadian women have been so grossly deceived in the year just closed by worthless home dyes, that some have determined never again to try what is really a pleasant and profitable work when the Diamond Dyes are used.

While we sympathize with the many deceived women, we must say their decision is not a wise one. Because we have in our midst a few unskilled dye manufacturers, and money loving merchants who for the sake of long profits are ready to sell poor goods, it is not fair to assert that all merchants are actuated by the same unworthy motives.

Deceptive dyes have usually plenty of bulk to recommend them, but this bulk is composed of common, coarse ingredients. Some dyes have just coloring power sufficient to make them dangerous to any ordinary material; others have a small percentage of color virtue with an extra supply of soap grease power. Such are the dyestuffs that have wrought ruin to good materials, dresses, skirts, blouses, ribbons, suits for men and boys, and brought consternation to many a trusting and worthy woman.

While it cannot be denied that deception has a footing in our land, it is pleasing to know that the Diamond Dyes, representing perfect work, honesty and truth, have brought gladness and profit to thousands of happy homes. All classes and conditions of women have used the Diamond Dyes with unvarying success, and during the year 1898, not a failure was reported when the very simple directions were followed.

Diamond Dyes are prepared according to special scientific principles, and no other dyes in the world have cost so much to bring to their present standard of excellence. They are the only kind that the wife, mother or daughter can use with confidence and profit.

Don't.

Don't pick quarrels before they are ripe. Don't attempt to gain time by stealing it from sleep.

Don't try to get the last word when talking with a woman.

Don't drop insulting remarks. A bigger man may pick them up.

Don't think your sins won't call again if they find you out.

Don't think because a man is a poet he can't appreciate lobster salad.

Don't try to make a man eat his own words. Some men would rather fight than eat.

Don't you believe that it's hard to be poor. It's the easiest thing in the world.

Don't think because a man is a millionaire that he suffers less with the toothache than a poor man.

Mrs. Wm. Messecar, Waterford, Ont., says: "I can safely recommend Dr. Low's Worm Syrup to mothers whose children suffer from worms."

A Cheerful Spirit.

"What did Colonel Stillwell say about the brandied peaches we sent to cheer his convalescence?"

"He said he wasn't strong enough to eat the fruit," replied the little girl, "but that he appreciated the spirit in which it was sent."—Washington Star.

SUCCESSFUL MEN

MANY OF THEM ARE HANDICAPPED WITH CATARRHAL DISEASES.

Dr. A. W. CHASE

COMES TO THEIR AID.

Success in life is almost impossible for a man with bad breath. Nobody wants to do business with him. Nobody wants to associate with him. He is handicapped everywhere. Offensive breath comes from catarrh; sometimes from catarrh of the stomach, sometimes of the lungs, sometimes of the head, nose, and throat. It is from catarrh somewhere, and catarrh is another name for uncleanness.

Many men understand this, and make every effort to cure it, but it is beyond the reach of ordinary practice.

No self-respecting man can ignore catarrh. If he has it in any form he makes constant effort to be rid of it.

There is something about the manner of life and the climate of Canada that seems to breed diseases of the mucous membrane. Medical science ordinarily doesn't try to cure catarrh; it "relieves" it; but Dr. Chase has been curing catarrh for over thirty years, and his name is blessed by thousands who have shaken off the grasp of this insidious disease.

Sold by all dealers, price 25 cents per box, blower free.

A Nice Little Order.

A man who had got on in life and rapidly amassed a large fortune, on furnishing a new and luxuriously fitted house, suddenly discovered to his great distress, that he had omitted the harmless necessary library. He went to a local shop and ordered a supply of books.

What are your particular tastes? asked the book seller.

Oh, I've no ideas about the matter, was the reply. You're a book-seller, you ought to know all about it. I simply ask you to provide me with a library.

And you have no preference?

No, but wait a second. I've a preference. There's a man whose books I ought to have. Now, bless me, what's his name? Shake—Shakes—Shakes something.

Shakespeare, suggested the bookseller.

That's 'im—Mr. Shakespeare. Get all he's written, and see that any new books he may write are ordered for me immediately.

Dr. Chase Cures Catarrh after Operations Fail.

Toronto, March 16th 1897. My boy aged fourteen has been a sufferer from Catarrh, and lately we submitted him to an operation at the General Hospital. Since then we have resorted to Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure, and one box of this medicine has made a prompt and complete cure.

He Was Blind.

When Bill Nye was running the Laramie Boomerang he wrote the following funny sketch:

"While engaged the other day in writing a little ode to the liver pad, I heard a slight noise, and on looking toward the door I saw a boy with his hat in his hand standing on one leg and thoughtfully scratching it with the superior toe of the other foot.

I asked the freckled youth what I could do for him, and he said there was a man at the foot of the stairs who wished to see me. I asked him why in the name of a great republic and a free people he didn't see me. Then I told the boy that there was no admission fee; that it was the regular afternoon matinee, and it was a free show.

The frank and manly little fellow then came forward and told me that the man was blind.

It was not intended as a joke. It was a horrible reality, and pretty soon a man into whose sightless orbs the cheerful light of day had not entered for many years came up the stairs and into the office.

I said: "Ah, sir, I see that your are a poor, blind man. You cannot see the green grass and the waving trees. While others see the pleasant fields and lovely landscape, you wander on year after year in the hopeless gloom. Poor man. Do you not at times yearn for immortality and pine to be among the angels where the light of a glorious eternity will enter upon your sightless vision like a beautiful dream?"

This was a little sentiment that I had committed to memory, being an extract from the Youth's Companion.

He wiped away three or four scalding tears with his sleeve and said that he did. He was getting means, he said, to enable him to go to New York, where he was going to have his eyes taken out and refilled. He also intended to have the cornea filed down and a new crystal put in.

I asked him how much he thought it would cost. He said he thought it could be arranged so that $1000 would pay the bill. At first I started to draw a check for that amount, and then I thought I would try him with a dollar first.

He took a dollar and walked slowly away. It always makes me feel bad when I see a fellow-creature who is doomed with uncertain steps and sightless eyes to tread his weary way through life, and I cannot be happy when I know that such misery is abroad in the land.

I thought how much I had to be thankful for, how fortunate I had been to have all my senses and my bright and beautiful intellect that I wouldn't take $400 for. Then I wandered out to a saloon on A street to get a cigar. The blind man was there. He had just poured out about six fingers of Jamaica rum and was treating the boys. I thought I would stand in with the arrangement, so I leaned up against the bar in a very classic style and took two cigars at 25 cents apiece.

When he came to pay for the goods he shoved out the dollar I gave him, which I recognized because it was a pewter dollar, and a very inferior pewter dollar at that. The bartender was mad, and while the excitement was at its height I stole away to where I could be alone with my surging thoughts.

The blind man is still in town, but he is not succeeding very well. Unfortunately he has told several large open-faced lies and the feeling of pity for him has petered out, if I may be allowed that expression.

When he is sober he is going to have his eyes operated on at New York, and when he is drunk he is going to have them attended to in San Francisco. This gives the general appearance of insincerity to his remarks, and the merciless public yearns for him to pack his night shirt, like the Arabs, and silently steal away.
