

A Dunnville Jeweller's Wife

CURED OF PALPITATION OF THE HEART AND SMOTHERING SPELLS BY MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. D. E. Laskie, Canal Street, Dunnville, Ont., whose husband keeps a jewellery store, and is one of the best known and most progressive citizens of Dunnville, Ont., gives the following description of her recent experience in the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills:

"I took Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for weak nerves, dizziness, palpitation of the heart, smothering spells at night and sleeplessness. Before I used them I could not get restful sleep, and my nerves were often so unstrung that I would start in alarm at the least noise, and easily worried."

"Last February I commenced taking this valuable medicine, and it proved the right remedy for my weak and shattered nervous system. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills restored my nerves to a strong and healthy condition, gave regular and normal action of the heart."

"I sleep well now, and am better in every way, and I recommend them heartily to all who suffer as I did."

HOW TO WIN A MAN.

Power of Sympathy—Men are Selfish, Owning to Conditions of Their Early Life.

Many a wife complains that her husband does not take her about, that she only sees him at meals, or that he makes friendships in which she has no part, says the Mexican Herald. She blames him for neglecting her, and thinks herself ill-used. Yet he is only following the natural instinct of humanity in seeking for sympathetic companionship; the fault really is hers. If her conversation does not interest him sufficiently to hold him, she should study him and the subjects that he cares for, and try to live to his standard. She has once had his love and sympathy; if she has not kept it, it is she who is to blame for not striving to care for the things which occupy and interest him.

A man, to be won and kept, must first be attracted and then made to feel that he has found a sympathy which draws him out and makes him talk about what interests him most. It is not enough to make him listen while he is being talked to. For a time that will keep him, but he will soon tire of always being a listener, of always giving his sympathy and receiving none. To hold a man, a woman must understand and study him; she must not be exacting, for to expect too much only makes him feel that he wants to give less. She must realize that men are almost always selfish, ineradicably so, not from any innate depravity of their sex, but merely from the modern conditions of life which have moulded them.

A man usually goes out into the world young, he leads a separate existence at an age when his sister is still surrounded by her home circle. When his work is done, if he has any, he has only to think, "What shall I do today that will give me the most pleasure?" That men act more and more on this principle is shown by the way they now treat their ordinary social engagements; the way they will break one when another more attractive offers itself, and will not decide until the last moment whether or not they will go to such and such a party. Can any one wonder that many years of indulgence in this, coupled with a larger command of money than their sisters, should make them more selfish, should end by fixing the habit of thinking of their own pleasure so firmly in their minds that it is practically ineradicable? It may be overpowered for a time by strong affection, and all the counter influences of courtship and early matrimony. But later, when these have ceased to be novelties, and a man settles down to a regular married life, the old selfish habit of years re-asserts itself, and his wife is inclined to blame him for changing toward her.

This is unjust, for he is no more to be blamed for the habits which have been acquired from his circumstances and environment than he is to be held responsible for those qualities which he inherits from his progenitors. It is better for the woman who lives with him, and whose happiness is bound up with his own, to recognize this fact, and, in studying his tendencies, to take her measures accordingly.

A woman, on the contrary, is trained in a different school. When her brother is out in the world earning his living, or, at any rate, leading a separate existence, she is usually at home with other members of the household, whom she has always to consider when any plans or engagements, however trivial, have to be made. She, though she rarely realizes it, can only think, "What can we do today that will interest or amuse us?" She cannot go about much alone, and often her means are too limited to allow of much independent action. Having thus to defer to the wishes of her relations, she is duly trained in habits of yielding to others and of unselfishly giving up her will and pleasure to them. Thus he in his bachelor days is duly trained to selfishness; she, in her spinsterhood, is equally brought up to unselfishness. The sooner a woman recognizes this fundamental difference between the acquired natures of herself and men the more likely is she to be attractive to them, and the better chances she will have of lasting happiness.

Chronic Eczema Cured.

One of the most chronic cases of Eczema ever cured is the case of Miss Gracie Ella Alton, of Hartland N. B. On a sworn statement Mr. Alton says: I hereby certify that my daughter Gracie Ella was cured of Eczema of long standing by using four boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment. William Thistle, druggist, of Hartland, also certifies that he sold four boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment which cured Gracie Ella.

Blow Almost Killed Father.

You can never tell where you are going to encounter a romance. The other evening half a dozen gentlemen sat smoking after a dinner given by one of them at his handsome residence on Woodward avenue.

"No," said the host, in response to an inquiry, "I married her down East long before I thought of coming to Detroit. Didn't I ever tell you about it? At that time I was cashier in a bank with little hope of ever getting any better hold in the world than that of a salaried employee. The president, who practically ran the entire institution, never had much to say to his men, except by way of reproof, and I had special reason for thinking that he did not look upon me with favor. This made it the more surprising that he should come to me with a proposal to raise my salary to the extent of $500, provided I would get married within the next three months. He preferred having men about him that were settled in life and felt the responsibility imposed in caring for a family. I studied for a moment, had an inspiration, and before we were through he had bound the bank to make the raise, to keep me for five years, provided I did my work properly, and to raise my salary handsomely each year.

"Two weeks later I asked for a vacation, and told him that I hoped to return with a wife. He was delighted, and granted my request. On the tenth day of my absence I wired him that the deed was done and that I would be at home at once. He responded with congratulations and an invitation to dine with his folks on our arrival. We went. As we entered the old gentleman almost fell in a faint. 'You—you—,' he stammered, 'are you married? You—'

"Yes, papa," began my wife, but I broke in with: 'Yes, sir, we're married. You knew that we were in love, you sent your daughter on a long visit to the South to get her away from me and then tried to bribe me into a marriage during her absence. I checkmated you, that's all, and your son-in-law is your cashier for the next five years.' He simply threw up his hands, and he was a father to me as long as he lived. It did him a whole lot of good to beat him at his own game."—Detroit Free Press.

VIGOR AND POWER,

The Invariable Results of Using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

They Renew Youth for the Old, and Make the Young Stronger—Ward Off and Cure All Forms of Kidney Disease.

HIBERNIA, N. B., Jan. 9.—The severity of the weather during the winter season, in the Maritime provinces, is responsible for the death of very many persons who have passed the half century mark.

During the cold winter the blood becomes less pure, and loses much of its vitalizing power, the kidneys are compelled to overwork themselves, in endeavoring to rid the blood of its unusually heavy burden of impurities.

The consequence is, that the kidneys break down completely; impurities that should be thrown out of the system are allowed to remain in it, poisoning every nerve bone, muscle, and organ.

In these cases, Dodd's Kidney Pills are absolutely necessary to restore the kidney's to their natural health and strength, and thereby preserve life and prevent death. In all forms of disease or weakness of the kidneys, as Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Heart Failure, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Gout, Paralysis, Gravel, Stone in the Bladder, Inflammation of the Bladder, Urinary Troubles, and all Diseases of women, Dodd's Kidney Pills are a positive and absolutely unfailing cure, rapid in action, permanent in effect.

Dodd's Kidney Pills heal the diseased kidneys. They restore strength and vigor, and stimulate the urinary organs to a prompt and perfect performance of their delicate and important duties.

Dodd's Kidney Pills make the weak strong and robust, make the strong more vigorous, and brace the tired nerves in old and young.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are sold by all druggists, at fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50, or sent, on receipt of price, by The Dodds Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE MAUSER BULLET.

It Had a Peculiar Action on the Parts of the Body it Entered.

I asked the major about the character of the wounds made by the Mauser bullet.

"In some respects," he said, "the Mauser bullet showed itself most merciful. Except at short range it made a clean small hole, with very little tearing of the tissues or splintering of bones. It frequently happened that men shot through the body felt very little inconvenience for some time after and were able to walk a mile or two to the rear, or even to go on fighting. Men walked to the hospital station shot through the bowels, shot through the stomach, shot through the lungs, and many of them recovered. We have had men recover who were shot through the liver or the kidneys, and that was something unheard of before this war. And it was remarkable to see how the arteries would recede from before a Mauser bullet and avoid rupture. There were many cases where I could put my finger into a wound and feel the artery pulsating, and yet there was no puncture.

"There was a cavalryman in the Rough Rider's fight—I have this on the authority of another doctor—who was shot through the heart in the charge, but did not know it.

"I'm afraid I'm hurt, lieutenant," he called out, putting his hand over his breast.

"Go back to the rear," said the officer.

"Not while I've got any breath in me to fight," answered the soldier. And it seems an established fact that this man continued in the charge for nearly 500 yards, before he dropped to the ground, dead.

"What was the effect of the Mauser bullet at short range?"

"It was terrible, for at short range the Mauser bullet explodes, there is no question about this. I do not mean that it explodes like gunpowder by a chemical change, but it explodes physically, just as a grindstone may fly into pieces. You see during its early flight the bullet, which is shaped like a long bean, wobbles as a top does from side to side. Later on it takes a steady horizontal position and then makes a clean wound, but if it enters a body while wobbling it 'mushrooms' out, if I may so express it, and the projecting fragments work frightful havoc in bone or tissue. I saw a man in company C. Sergt. Immen, who was stuck in the head early in the fight. He was right on the firing line and must have got a bullet before it had taken its steady poise of flight. At any rate the wound in his skull looked as if it had been smashed with a hammer, and he died a few hours later."—Cleveland Moffet in Leslie's Weekly.
