

Miss Allen Wins.

A large number of people in Woodstock will readily remember Miss Elizabeth A. Allen who with her sister spent a few weeks of last summer in this town. Miss Allen made many friends here who will read with interest and pleasure the following article taken from a New York paper. Miss Allen's success must be regarded as of considerable importance in educational circles from the fact that all the first class daily papers of New York, Jersey City and Hoboken make editorial comment on it.

The school commissioners of Hoboken last night honored Miss Elizabeth A. Allen, vice-principal of No. 6 school, by promoting her to a principalship and assigning her to No. 4 school, at a salary of $1,700 per year.

Miss Allen's friends and fellow teachers are delighted with the appointment, as much over the fact that the full salary paid male principals is attached to the appointment, as over the recognition of Miss Allen's abilities. Miss Allen has long been the champion of feminine teachers, taking the position that where merit, ability and service are equal, they should receive the same compensation as men. She has also taken up the cudgels, many times over in the interests of education, and has done much to advance the welfare of the schools of the state.

Miss Allen is president of the Hoboken Teachers' Association and an officer of the state association.

The Corporation Drive.

On Monday the main corporation drive was at the Presque Isle bar, three miles below Bristol. It is working down towards Woodstock and will be here in a day or two. The drive is a very heavy one and the section of the drive under Cox and Brown, comprising some forty men is working down from Shogomoc. James Macdougall with eighty men has been at work clearing the jam of logs from the piers of the Woodstock bridge. Quite a large jam was formed above one of the piers and there is a good deal of work in cleaning it off.

The water raised about three inches on Sunday, and the wet weather Monday and Tuesday is keeping it well up.

Never look for your ancestors, or your titles, in the imperfect records of antiquity; look into your own virtues, and the history of those who lived to be benefactors to society.

Prosecuted for Conscience Sake.

Under the new "Sabbath Observance Law," we have the following working out of one of the wickedest schemes of persecution that perhaps has ever occurred in this province. May 22nd, 1899, in the presence of Magistrate McQuarrie, in the parish of Andover, Victoria Co., N. B., Mr. J. J. Brown was called to answer to the charge of performing "worldly labour, his ordinary calling" (namely farming) the kind of work being that of ploughing, on Sunday. Said Mr. Brown, has for several years been a deacon of the Baptist church, as was his father before him, and both were honored citizens. Some weeks ago the said Mr. Brown became convinced that the seventh day was the day he ought to keep and accordingly began his work on the first day of the week as did his Lord in the beginning. Gen. 2; 13. For this so-called crime he is fined one dollar and costs the sum of which is not known as yet to the writer. That this could not have disturbed anyone except it be religiously, is apparent on the face of it; because the complainant was a clergyman living about five miles away and could not have seen him unless he was riding by, or some one complained to him or perhaps for him. But why should the minister be so disturbed while he was riding on that day and many other Sundays. Oh, sure that was a work "of necessity and charity" but was there not a living back of that? And why should it be so great a crime for the poor farmer to do his work of seeding to secure a harvest for the coming winter and the other man securing his harvest almost altogether on Sundays and he go free?

Must it be that in our free country, and in the blazing light of this coming twentieth century, and what has always been supposed to be a land of religious freedom come to be a land of religious oppression so that a man for conscience sake toward God in the matter of keeping the seventh day, must he be deprived of working the other six days? If so then, it is class legislation depriving the small minority who keep that day of one sixth of their natural rights of a livelihood; moreover it takes away their rights to obey the commandment which says "Six days shalt thou labour and do all thy work." What is worse it takes away from a man the privilege of exercising faith in God's word as he reads it, and demands of him that he must understand it as it is interpreted by law, making the law makers a God to the man and standing in the place of God for man. Is not this whole Sunday law movement an iniquitous thing. It is positively wrong in the very nature of the case. Because Sabbath observance is a matter of heart service, through faith towards God; but what earthly tribunal can tell when men have kept the Sabbath from the heart, or exercised faith in God. Therefore any Sabbath observance act can only make people appear as though they kept Sabbath, but if they did not then it would make them simply hypocrites. Is it needful that we have any more of this class and those made so by law? H. J. FARMAN.

St. John Fire.

The most serious fire in the history of St. John excepting, only the disaster of 1877, occurred last Thursday afternoon and evening. It began at Indiantown and before the flames were subdued nearly 250 buildings were destroyed. One old lady of 80 lost her life in the fire. The loss is estimated about $500,000, with insurance at about $220,000. The section burned was mostly built of wood. Commenting on the fire the Globe says:—

A lesson of the fire—an old lesson—is the great danger that exists in blocks of large wooden buildings. Nearly every building in the district was a wooden building, and in most of the streets the houses were closely connected. With the wind fiercely blowing it was simply impossible under the circumstances to successfully fight the flames. With brick buildings in the business quarter of the town where the fire started it is at least possible that the fire could have been prevented from extending its ravages so widely.

Mrs. Middleton Wray, writes from Schomberg, Ont., "Dr. Fowles' Extract of Wild Strawberry is the best remedy I know of for Summer Complaint and Bowel diseases of children. I have used it for 17 years."

A virtuous and well-disposed person, like a good metal, the more he is fired the more he is fined; the more he is opposed the more he is approved; wrongs may well try him and touch him, but cannot imprint in him any false stamp.

BIG CROWD SAW A GOOD SHOW.

Pat Maloney and His Comedy Company Brought a Big Jam to the Norombega on Friday Evening.

One of the biggest audiences of the season, and one that frequently expressed its delight at the features of the performance, sat in The Norombega Friday night and saw Pat Maloney and his comedy company in a program that was lively from start to close. Not a moment of the evening was allowed to be dull. The orchestra played exceedingly well under the leadership of Director Sprague, and the vaudeville features on the stage were new, bright and wholesome. The audience appreciated that array of qualities and was quick to show its feelings.

Pat Maloney scored a hit. A lively presentation of the one-act farce, Cranks, was followed by interesting and amusing specialties by Mable Bryant and Harry Watson, society sketch artists; Pat Maloney, assisted by Lottie Waters, in a bit of real Irish comedy; Paul and Harry Hamlin, knockabout comedians; Tommy Waters, the funny tramp; Nay Newman, in popular melodies; Edw. W. Emerson in clever imitations, and O'Neil and Newcomb, character dancers. The entertainment concluded with Pat Maloney's comedy, Our Irish Visitor, which made everybody laugh.—Ex.

This Company will appear at Graham's Opera House tonight May 31st.

Serious Accident.

Thos. Troy, jun., met with a serious accident at Perth on Thursday afternoon last. He was engaged as brakeman on the C. P. R. While coupling two cars, he managed to get his right arm caught between the couplings, and when he got out from his dangerous position his arm was limp and helpless. A doctor was called in and advised amputation but the sufferer did not want to lose his arm, if possibly it could be saved. He came to Woodstock on the 4.23 express and walked from the train to his home on Richmond street, with as much sangfroid as if he had only pinched his little finger. Dr. Sprague met him at the train, and after they got to Mr. Troy's home, Drs. Sprague and Hand dressed the arm. It was found to be badly jammed below the elbow and the doctors proposed amputation, but finally dressed the arm, taking therefrom about three pieces of bone. It is hoped at the time of writing that the arm may be preserved.

A Good Farming Season.

The season so far has been admirable for farming operations, which is the great industry of this county. The fine cool weather the latter part of April and first of May gave the farmers a grand opportunity to put in the crops, while the warm weather of late followed by the rain has been just the thing, and quite as well arranged as if the farmers in solemn conclave had ordered the weather. Cropping is about over. In many cases the buckwheat has been sown, and a considerable number have even put in their turnips. Black birds have been numerous in some sections of the county, and they have wrought destruction on the corn. The devices which keep the crows away, have no terror for the black birds, and a war of extermination seems the only means to get rid of these pretty and wicked pests. Many a good corn field has been put in disorder by the black birds.

Coming so soon after the death of Archdeacon Brigstocke, rector of Trinity the loss is peculiarly sad. Mr. Eatough was a hard worker and a most useful clergyman. The funeral was on Saturday.
