WOODSTOCK, N. B., MAY 10, 1899.

An interesting story is related of an incident that occurred in the early days of the married life of Queen Victoria. It is related that whilst residing at Osborne her children were accustomed to ramble along the seashore. Now, it so happened on one occasion that the young Prince of Wales met a boy who had been gathering seashells. The young Prince, presuming upon his high position, thought himself privileged to do what he pleased with impunity, so without any notice upset the basket of shells. The poor lad was very indignant, and said, "You do that again and I'll lick you." "Put the shells back into the basket and you will see if I don't," said the Prince. The shells were returned to the basket. "Now, touch them again if you dare," said the boy; whereupon the Prince again upset the basket and shells. The boy then pitched into him, and gave him such a licking that few princes ever had. His lip was cut open, his nose knocked considerably out of its perpendicular, and his eyes were of a color which might well have become the champion of a prize ring. His disfigured face could not long be concealed from his royal mother. She inquired the cause. The prince was silent; but at last confessed the truth. The poor boy was ordered before the Queen. He was asked to tell the story. He did so in a very straightforward manner. At its conclusion, turning to her child, the Queen said: "You have been rightly served, sir. Had you not been punished sufficiently already I should have punished you myself. When you commit a like offence I trust you will always receive a similar punishment." She commanded the parents of the poor boy to her presence the following morning. They came, and the result of the interview was that Her Majesty told them she had made arrangements for educating and providing for her son, and she hoped he would make good use of the advantages which would be placed within his reach. A short time after the event a poetical wag perpetrated the following lines on the subject:—

The Prince of Wales, one summer day,
 Upset the ragged urchin's can;
 The ragged urchin ceased to play,
 And swore the royal hide to tan.
 "Come on," his Royal Highness said,
 To thoughts of danger madly blind;
 The ragged urchin went ahead,
 And left the prints of "wales" behind.

STILL MORE PROOF

Once Again Dodd's Kidney Pills Win a Glorious Victory.

Cured Mr. Frank P. Mills, of Zealand, N.B., of Lame Back Caused by Deranged Kidneys—No Other Medicine Helped Him.

ZEALAND, N. B., May 8.—The following statement is made public, by one of the best-known, and most highly respected residents of this place—Mr. Frank P. Mills.

"I have been troubled, for a long time with a lame back, and have in my endeavors to cure it, or secure relief, tried every medicine I read of, or that was recommended to me. This cost money, and the sum I have spent in this way is too large to mention.

"I have been unable to obtain relief; my sufferings were terrible, and were steadily growing most severe. I had almost given up hope, but, on receiving one of the Dodd's Medicine Co.'s papers, 'Our Home and Fireside,' and reading of Dodd's Kidney Pills therein, I decided to make one more attempt. I bought a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and began using them.

"A blessed change followed the first few doses. Now I have used the whole box and the lameness has disappeared from my back and all other pains have left me. I am entirely cured, and would recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all persons suffering as I did."

This statement speaks for itself. It forges one more link in that mighty chain of proof that shows Dodd's Kidney Pills to be the only sure cure for all Kidney Diseases.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are sold by all druggists at fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50, or sent, on receipt of price, by The Dodd's Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

In olden times the English had three meals a day, of which the chief meal was taken when the work of the day was finished. The first meal was at nine, the dinner was about three o'clock, and supper was taken just before bedtime. The Normans dined at the old English breakfast time, or a little later, and supped at 7 p. m. In Tudor times the higher classes dined at eleven and supped at five, but the merchants seldom took their meals before twelve and six o'clock. The chief meals, dinner and supper, were taken in the hall both by the old English and the Normans, for the parlor did not come into use until the reign of Elizabeth. Breakfast did not become a regular meal until quite lately, and Dr. Murray, in the Oxford Dictionary, gave 1463 as the date of the earliest quotation in which the word occurred. The meal did not become recognized until late in the seventeenth century, for Pepys habitually took his draught of half a pint of Rhenish wine or a drachm of strong waters in the place of a morning meal. Dinner was always the great meal of the day, and from the accession of Henry IV. to the death of Queen Elizabeth the dinners were as sumptuous and extravagant as any of those now served. Carving was then a fine art. Each guest brought his own knife and spoon, for the small fork was not introduced into England until Thomas Coryate, of Odcombe, published his Crudities 1611. Pepys took his spoon and fork with him to the Lord Mayor's feast in 1663. The absence of forks led to much stress being laid upon the act of washing the hands both before and after meals, and to the rule that the left hand alone should be dipped into the common dish, the right hand being occupied with the knife. The perfect dinner at the best time of English cookery consisted of three courses, each complete in itself, and terminated by a subtlety or device, the whole being rounded off with Ypocras, after which the guests retired into another room, where pastry, sweetmeats and fruit were served with the choicest wines. The English were essentially meat eaters, and it was not until the time of the Commonwealth that pudding attained its extraordinary popularity; indeed, the first mention of pudding in the menus of the "Buckfeast" at St. Bartholomew's Hospital did not occur until 1710, and in 1712 there is an item of five shillings for ice.

 Will in Thousands of Cases Have to Fight Catarrh Unless Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder is Used to Prevent the Sowing of the Seed.
 The wife of a prominent physician of Toronto was a victim of Catarrh in its worst form. She tried almost every treatment known in the world of medicine without receiving any lasting benefit. Hearing of the almost miraculous cures made by Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder, she procured it, persevered in its use for eight months, and was fully restored, and all symptoms of the dreaded disease eradicated from her system. She says, "After years of suffering I rejoice to be freed." Name given on application. Sold by Garden Bros.

The trouble in Samoa has proved to be far more protracted and serious than any one in Europe or America had anticipated when the dissatisfaction over the decision of Chief Justice Chambers was first announced three months ago. When Chief Justice Chambers gave his decision in favor of young Malietoa Tanu and against Mataafa, the United States was not represented at Samoa by a warship. As our readers will remember, the English were in accord with the Americans in supporting the claims of young Malietoa, while the Germans were backing Mataafa. Only ten years ago the situation had been reversed. Mataafa was waging his war for supremacy under the direction of an American, while the Germans were in sympathy with the other side. A number of German subjects were massacred and mutilated by Mataafa. Subsequently England, Germany, and the United States came together and adopted the general act of Berlin. Mataafa was banished, and it was distinctly understood that he was to be henceforth excluded from all consideration in the selection of Samoan rulers. The Germans, however, for reasons that have to do with their strong desire to obtain a dominating influence in Samoa, brought Mataafa back and made him a candidate for the kingship on the death, last year, of the old Malietoa. Samoan kings, in accordance with their old-time customs, are elected by the people. There seems to be no doubt of the truth of the German contention that Mataafa received a large majority of the votes. The general act of Berlin, however, makes the decision of the chief justice on the question of the selection of the king final, beyond any further appeal. Chief Justice Chambers, after a long hearing of the case, found Mataafa ineligible under the act of Berlin, and gave his judgment therefore in favor of the younger candidate. The followers of Mataafa, still abetted by the German consul, Rose, the German president of the municipal council of Apia, and all the German element of the foreign population, refused to accept the judgment of the court, made war upon all the ill-armed followers of the young Malietoa, and installed Mataafa as king. This, of course, was a revolutionary proceeding. On account of the strength of the followers of Mataafa there was nothing to do for a time but to accept the arrangement as a provisional one until there was a sufficient physical force to sustain the chief justice. The United States sent the warship Philadelphia, under command of Admiral Albert Kautz, who arrived on March 6, and at once laid a calm but exceedingly firm hand upon the situation. He issued a proclamation, restored the authority of the chief justice, enthroned Malietoa, and joined the English in vigorously defending the situation when the followers of Mataafa took to the war-path. Marines and sailors were landed from the ship Philadelphia and the English ships, and the Englishmen and the Americans fought side by side against large bodies of natives. There was an ugly rumor that Mataafa was obtaining arms and ammunition from the German warship. It is best not to believe this until there is unmistakable proof. Unfortunately, on April 4th a party of British and Americans numbering 105 was ambushed on a German plantation (with the alleged active aid of the German planter) by about 800 natives. In the fierce fight that followed several sailors and officers, some being American and some English, were killed. This event at first stirred up a dangerously angry feeling against Germany. But the conclusion was soon reached that it would be well to wait for all the facts.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for May.
