

Take B.B.B. This Spring.

Very few people escape the enervating influence of spring weather.

There is a dullness, drowsiness and inaptitude for work on account of the whole system being clogged up with impurities accumulated during the winter months.

The liver is sluggish, the bowels inclined to be constipated, the blood impure, and the entire organism is in need of a thorough cleansing.

Of all "Spring Medicines," Burdock Blood Bitters is the best.

It stimulates the sluggish liver to activity, improves the appetite, acts on the bowels and kidneys, purifies and enriches the blood, removes all poisonous products, and imparts new life and vigor to those who are weak and debilitated.

7 Big Boils. Mr. Wm. J. Hepburn writes from Centralia, Ont.: "I can sincerely say that Burdock Blood Bitters is the best spring medicine on the market. Last spring my blood got out of order, and I had seven or eight good sized boils come out on my body, and the one on my leg was much larger than an egg. I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and inside of six days, when only half the bottle was taken, there wasn't a boil to be seen. I have recommended B.B.B. to different people in our village, and all derived benefit from it. I wish B.B.B. every success, as it is indeed a great medicine for the blood."

B.B.B. is a highly concentrated vegetable compound—teaspoonful doses—add water yourself.

Sammy Dilver's Firewood.

When the oldest inhabitant talks of bygone days with other old inhabitants, in a certain little New England town, one of the anecdotes told and chuckled over is that of Sammy Dilver and the great September gale—the same famous gale whose theft of his Sunday breeches from the washline has been so merrily immortalized by Dr. Holmes. But Sammy Dilver was more fortunate than the poet. He lost nothing, and gained his winter's firewood. There was only one thing known against Sammy by his fellow-townsmen, but that lowered him very much in their estimation, "There isn't any harm in Sammy," they were wont to say, "but there isn't any good, either. He is just shif'less—terrible shif'less, and it is hard on Maria, who is a driver, to put up with him."

Long before he was formally warned to do so by the selectmen of the town, Maria told him he ought to cut down the big hollow elm by the gate, or it would fall some day and kill somebody. Sammy had amiably acquiesced, but he had never taken any more active steps toward its removal than to walk occasionally around its huge girth with an expression of awe on his countenance, and whistle softly under his breath as he thought of the task before him.

Then he was notified that the tree was dangerous, and must be removed, and he got so far as to borrow an axe and begin to sharpen it before his courage failed him. The warning was repeated, but without avail. It was again repeated, and then came the gale.

That terrible day, when "oaks lay scattered on the ground, as if they were potatoes," as Dr. Holmes puts it, Sammy's great elm was one of the first trees to feel the wrath of the tempest. There was a crash. Sammy and Maria rushed to the window. There across their garden patch lay a mighty branch, torn away.

A few minutes later came a second crash, and half the trunk, with another large branch attached, had split away longitudinally down the central hollow and lay prostrate on the ground. The mutilated remainder followed shortly, and the whole gigantic elm lay in a ruinous mass, not merely blown over, but blown to pieces.

The force of the wind had flung it away from the road, where it would naturally have fallen, and it missed the Dilver house only by a few feet, but while Maria, for all her strength of mind, was weeping with terror, Sammy found voice to express a very different feeling.

"Daown!" he exclaimed, in a tone of deed relief. "Daown, and split, sure as you live, and I never touched her!"

There, indeed, lay the great mass, conveniently ready to be chopped for firewood, as Maria soon reminded him; but the worst of Sammy's dreaded job was apparently over, quite without effort on his part. As the storm began to abate the two were discussing how much fuel the tree would yield, when, with a terrific howl, the gale gathered itself for a parting effort. The house shook, the wind roared, there was another crash, and a section of roof, blown from no one ever knew where, was dashed down upon the shattered elm, and knocked it into a shower of splinters and separated shingles.

Mrs. Dilver shrieked aloud. Sammy clutched her arm with a cry of triumph.

"Kindlin', too, Maria!" he shouted. "Kindlin', too!"—Youth's Companion.

CHAPTER IV.

1. How vain are the complaints of the thousands whose stomachs are the abodes of distress!
2. How idle are the lamentations of those that suffer dyspepsia?
3. How long—O, how long will they suffer, ere they know the right thing for relief and the cure?
4. They diet, and doctor, and try powders and pills—and still suffer the torments of all manner of ills.
5. Why not end all the trouble and be freed from distress, with a care for the stomach that never fails of success?
6. Heartburn, sour stomach, nausea, sick headache, and all other distresses of indigestion are remedied quickly with Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets—a single tablet always gives instant relief.
7. Many old cases of dyspepsia are permanently cured with one box of Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets—60 tablets in a box—35 cents, at all druggists.

No Room For a Doubt.

"You are sure the lynching party was made up entirely of masked men, who could not be identified?"

"Positive," said the sheriff.

"Did you see the masks yourself? Weren't you too much excited to observe?"

"I was not excited at all, but the committee that called to ask me to leave the key of the jail under the mat on the front doorstep while I went into the country told me that the party would be made up of masked men, and they were all friends of mine and gentlemen who would scorn to lie, sir."

RUDYARD KIPLING TO JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY.

Your trial runs to the westward,
And mine to my own place;
There is water between our lodges,
And I have not seen your face.

But, since I have read your verses,
This easy to guess the rest,
Because in the hearts of the children
There is neither East nor West.

Born to a thousand fortunes
Of good or evil hap,
Once they were kings together,
Throned in a mother's lap.

Surely they know that secret,
Yellow and black and white,
When they meet as kings together
In innocent dreams at night.

With a moon they all can play with,
Grubby, and grimed, and unshod,
Very happy together,
And very near to God!

Are You Bilious?

A sluggish liver fails to filter the bile from the blood, and when the poisonous matter goes through the body in the circulation, the whole system is tainted and deranged. This is called biliousness and can be completely cured by Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which act directly on the liver, making it healthy and active. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box. The cheapest medicine in the world.

Honest Advice Free to Men.

The DISPATCH is requested to publish the following: All men who are suffering from overwork, excess or youthful errors, are aware that most medical firms advertising to cure these conditions cannot be relied upon. Mr. Graham, a resident of London, Ont., living at 437½ Richmond St., was for a long time a sufferer from above troubles and after trying in vain many advertised remedies, electric belts, etc., became almost discouraged and hopeless. Finally he confided in an old Clergyman who directed him to an eminent and reliable physician, through whose skilful treatment a speedy and perfect cure was obtained.

Knowing to his own sorrow that so many poor sufferers are being imposed upon by unscrupulous quacks, Mr. Graham considers it his duty to give his fellow-men the benefit of his experience and assist them to a cure by informing anyone who will write to him in strict confidence where to be cured. No attention can be given to those writing out of mere curiosity, but anyone who really needs a cure is advised to address Mr. Graham as above.

A NERVOUS BREAK DOWN.

Almost a Physical Collapse, But Completely Restored by South American Nerve.

Mrs. Geo. F. Quackenbush, of 340 Victoria street, Toronto, was gradually breaking down under an attack of extreme nervous prostration. Her appetite had left her; she suffered from insomnia. Here are her own words as she wrote them: "I took doctor's advice, but received no benefit. I commenced using South American Nerve, and three bottles worked a marvellous change in me. My appetite came back, I sleep soundly, and my general health is as perfect as ever it was. It is a pleasure to recommend so worthy a remedy." Sold by Garden Bros.]

GRIPPE'S LEGACY.

Shattered Nerves and Weakened Heart—A St. John Lady Tells About It.

Mrs. John Quigley, who resides at 30 Sheriff St., St. John, N.B., states: "Some time ago I was attacked by a severe cold, which ended up in a bad attack of La Grippe. Since that time I have never regained my health, being weak, nervous and run down."

"I suffered very much from Indigestion, accumulation of gas in the stomach, and was in almost constant distress. I doctored with some of the best physicians in this city; but got no relief until I began using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and am pleased to say that they have completely cured me."

"My appetite is restored; my nervous system has been toned up to its old-time condition, and I have no more trouble from the Indigestion and can eat anything I choose."

"I am only too glad to testify to the merits of such a marvellous remedy as Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for the cure of nervousness, heart trouble, Indigestion, etc. Price 50c. a box, all druggists."
