AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

There is a movement on foot to have an Agricultural and Horticultural College for the Maritime Provinces. It is a movement which must commend itself to farmers, as well as to all practical men. The college at Guelph, Ont., has proved a great success. Many young men from these Maritime Provinces have attended, with much profit, to themselves, this excellent institution. It is a long way off, however, and the conditions of farming in Ontario, especially in Western Ontario, are somewhat different from the conditions in these provinces by the sea. Again, there is room for more colleges of the kind. The leaders of the government in the three provinces seem to be agreed that a Maritime Agricultural College is a desirable thing.

Some time ago Mr. Lee Raymond contributed an article on this subject to the Co-Operative Farmer. He wrote as follows:—"May we not hope, that through the faithful work of the Farmers' Institute and the general awakening to the need of a fuller knowledge of the science of agriculture, the governments of the Maritime Provinces will see to it that we shall before many years have a school or college which shall be a source of pleasure and pride as well as of great material advancement to the farmers of these provinces."

Nova Scotia, after years of experience with its horticultural and agricultural schools in separate counties, has pronounced decidedly in favor of amalgamation.

Let the people of New Brunswick be prepared to help them go a step further in the establishment, not merely a combined school of agriculture and horticulture tacked on (so to speak) to some educational institution already doing effective work along its own lines; but let us have an entirely independent agricultural college for the Maritime Provinces, whether the site chosen should be in Annapolis, Kings or Colchester, N. S., or in some suitable locality of this province.

In unity there is strength! And while the Nova Scotia government appears to be prepared to establish such an institution at some place not yet decided upon, it seems probable that they would receive in good part any suggestion which might be made to them by the Executive of this Province or by the Farmers' and Dairy-men's Association of New Brunswick. Doubtless, they are able to establish a combined school of agriculture and horticulture, and we to have an agricultural chair in connection with the U. N. B., but is it not vastly better to unite our efforts and work for (even though it take years to accomplish our object) an agricultural college which should be the pride of the Maritime Provinces."

It being agreed that such an institution is desirable, the question is where shall it be located. As it is to be a Maritime College, we must think of ourselves as one people, not as three provinces. Those who are most capable of judging of the matter speak favorably of the Annapolis valley and strong arguments have been advanced for the town of Kentville, in the Annapolis valley. This would be an advantageous point, from the view that a central place for all the provinces must be secured. A grand farming and fruit bearing country surrounds Kentville. It is easy of access from this province. As far as Carleton County is concerned the locality would be as convenient, as Westmorland in this province. Our own county is the equal of any in the Maritime Provinces, but we must not lose sight of the fact that our county is not central, and it is essential that the seat of the new institution should be in as central a position as can be secured with due regards to its claim as one of the better sections from an agricultural and horticultural point of view.

We would like to see this matter thoroughly ventilated. Late in the day, the people of the Maritime Provinces are finding their interests identical. A Maritime Board of Trade has proved a great success. A Maritime Agricultural College will be equally successful. A Maritime legislature we should have had years ago, but the mistake is not one easy of correction, at this stage of provincial history.

Every one knows that if our rulers had been wise in their generation we would not now be overburdened with three little mock parliaments, when one large one would have answered every purpose, and saved thousands of dollars. To change the constitution, now would be difficult, and probably unpopular, but if we cannot unite in one legislature, we can at least unite in every other way possible.

An Old-Timer.

A crowd of young men were seated in one of the steamboat offices in the city the other afternoon while an old steamboat veteran regaled them with stories about old times on the Mississippi and reminiscences of old-time citizens.

"Did you know old Bill Jones?" asked one of the men, after the captain had finished relating how he ran a gauntlet of Indians with his boat 'way back in the forties.

"Member Bill Jones?" Well, I guess I did," replied the captain. "Let's see, he died just after the war. He was a good old fellow, too. I knew his father before he was married to Bill's mother."

One of the boys thought the old man was "doping," and, by way of tripping him up on his dates, asked: "Cap, how long have you been running on the river?"

"Who, me? Why, I started on the Mississippi when it was nuthin' but a creek."—Memphis Scimitar.

Trouble Enough for Two.

"He carried the letter around in his pocket for five weeks."

"Then what did he do?"

"He wrote to his father-in-law asking him what he'd better do. His father-in-law wrote right back and said he was awfully glad his son-in-law had written. The letter reminded him that he had a letter in his own pocket that he had been carrying around six weeks."

"Didn't he offer any advice?"

"Not a word. So Briggs fussed around and worried and at last opened the envelope to see how much mischief he had done by retaining it. What do you suppose it contained? A recipe for making tamarind jelly clipped from some newspaper, together with two almanac jokes and a sample of cheap gingham. Briggs flung the whole outfit in the fire and felt better. But he chuckles every time he thinks of his old father-in-law and the burden he may still be carrying."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Probably She Meant It.

"When she will, she will, you can depend on't," is a line which many men have quoted of many women. The saying is often unjust and the woman is often justified, but now and then the cap fits perfectly.

Not long ago a fast express was howling over the sands of Arizona. Just how it happened was frequently explained and never understood, but as the train sped along the side of a parched river it suddenly left the rails, rolled down the bank and landed in three feet of muddy water at the bottom of the river bed.

Within the cars there was some natural confusion. Men, women and lunch boxes were thrown into a heap, and not an umbrella or parcel was left in the racks.

One by one the occupants of the rear car extricated themselves from the mass, and sought for means of escape, while staunching various wounds caused by broken glass. Every exit was jammed tight. Just then, in the midst of the doubt and confusion, rose a woman's voice in emphatic demand.

"Let me out! Let me out! If you don't let me out I'll break a window!"—Youth's Companion.

Horseshoe Luck.

"Hardacre stuck a horseshoe over his barn door for luck. Lightning struck the horseshoe and set fire to the barn, burnt up the stable, two wheat fans, lot of farming implements and the whole year's crop."

"Reckon that shook Hardacre's belief in horseshoes."

"Not by a jugful! Says he's going to have a horseshoe put over both doors and all the windows when he builds another barn."

"Gosh! Hope he don't believe there's luck in 'em yet?"

"He ought to. If I could get $10,000 insurance on an old barn and a corn crop, I'd believe in 'em, too."—Chicago News.

Obedience of Orders.

The following dialogue, current at the time, between Stonewall Jackson's soldiers and the provost guard, illustrates Jackson's tact, at eluding his enemy, and also the obedience rendered and the confidence reposed in him by his troops:

The orders read on dress parade the evening before Jackson left the valley to take part in the seven days' fight around Richmond were, that in case the army moved before further orders, the answer from every soldier to any and all questions from those not connected with the army shall be "I don't know." On the march the provost guard found a soldier in a cherry tree helping himself, when the following took place:

"Who are you?" demanded the guard.

"I don't know," replied the soldier.

"Where are you going?"

"I don't know," which was no doubt correct.

"Where have you been?"

SMOTHERING SENSATION.

A Kingston Lady's Experience with Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in Relieving this Distressing Condition.

"I have suffered for some years with a smothering sensation caused by heart disease. The severity of the pains in my heart caused me much suffering. I was also very nervous and my whole system was run down and debilitated."

"Hearing that Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills were a specific for these troubles, I thought I would try them, and got a box at McLeod's Drug Store. They afforded me great relief, having toned up my system and removed the distressing symptoms from which I suffered. I can heartily recommend these wonderful pills to all sufferers from heart trouble."

LAXA LIVER PILLS cure Biliaryness, Constipation and Sick Headache.

"I don't know?"

"Where is your command?"

"I don't know."

"To what command?" do you belong?"

"I don't know."

"What are you doing in that cherry tree?"

"I don't know."

"Are those good cherries you are eating?"

"I don't know."

"Is there anything you do know?"

"Yes."

"What is it?"

"Well, the last order I had from Old Stonewall was that I was not to know anything until further orders, and gentlemen, I would see you all d—d before I will know anything until Old Stonewall takes that order off."—Exchange.

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"
