Ten Good Health Rules.

1. General hygiene—Rise early, go to bed early, and in the meantime keep yourself occupied.
2. Respiratory hygiene—Water and bread sustain life, but pure air and sunlight are indispensable for health.
3. Gastro intestinal hygiene—Frugality and sobriety are the best elixir for a long life.
4. Epidermal hygiene—Cleanliness preserves from rust. The best kept machines last longest.
5. Sleep hygiene—A sufficiency of rest repairs and strengthens; too much weakness and makes soft.
6. Clothes hygiene—He is well clothed who keeps his body sufficiently warm, safeguarding it from all abrupt changes of temperature, while at the same time maintaining perfect freedom of motion.
7. House hygiene—A house that is clean and cheerful makes a happy home.
8. Moral hygiene—The mind reposes and resumes its edge by means of relaxation and amusement, but excess opens the door to the passions, and these attract the vices.
9. Intellectual hygiene—Gayety conduces to love of life, and love of life is half of health. On the other hand, sadness and gloom helps on old age.
10. Professional hygiene—Is it your grain that feeds you? Don't allow your arms and your legs to become ankylosed. Dig for a livelihood, but do not omit to burning your intellect and elevate your thoughts.—Dr. Decornet, French author and Scientist.

A touching story has just been related of Senator John Sherman by a woman in charge of a home for waifs in New York city. As is well known, Senator and Mrs. Sherman adopted some years ago two little twin babies one of whom died shortly after. It seems that the institution from which the little girls were taken regularly sends out each year a request for a report of the progress of each child from the family to which the little waif has been entrusted. These were sent to Mr. Sherman, but in the course of a few years, in replying to this request he wrote as follows: "We do not like to make the report. In every sense of the word the child is our own. These annual reports are only unpleasant reminders of the fact that she is not our own flesh and blood, and we do not wish to be reminded of that." The little girl in question has now grown to womanhood, and has children of her own, the eldest bearing the name of John Sherman McCallum. Ex-Secretary Sherman and his little grandson may be frequently seen driving about Washington. It is current testimony that never was an own child more tenderly cherished by parents that has been the adopted daughter of Senator and Mrs. Sherman.

A Modern Fable.

A commercial traveller on his trip called upon a chemist. He was nervous as he put his hand in his pocket and handed out a card. "I repent that concern," said the young man.
"You are fortunate," replied the chemist.
The commercial traveller was encouraged and said:
"I think so, sir, and the chemist who trades with us is even more so. My chemist has the finest line of cosmetics in the country."
"I shouldn't have thought so," slowly responded the man of medicine. "Her complexion looks natural."
And he handed back the photograph which the young man had given him by mistake. He took it and left without waiting to make any farewell remarks.
—"Harry," said Mrs. Tredway to her husband at the breakfast table, "I am quite out of money, and I want to spend the day shopping. Let me have sixty cents?" What do you want sixty cents for?" Ten cents for care fare, and fifty cents for luncheon."—Harper's Bazar.

The Satisfaction

In well-fitting clothes doesn't end the first time they are tried on. It's a daily and hourly pleasure that one experiences as long as they last. Isn't it worth a little more to have such garments—don't you get more for your money than when you buy the made-by-the-thousand-for-everybody kind? Garments made by us give lasting satisfaction—being properly cut, made and trimmed.
