THE METAMORPHOSIS OF CORPUS DELICTI.

tight, while I get a long piece to bind round the whole and sew it on."

The long piece was soon found, and as she secured it place she proceeded to administer some wholesome counsel to her patient. "This accident all comes from your carrying round a loaded pistol. It's a very careless habit, for it may go off any time and hit somebody. And I sometimes think, William—there, I've said it. Well, I might as well say it as think it, and I think short names is best between friends, anyway. You may call me Lorena for all I care. But as I was goin' to say, William, I sometimes think you're quick-tempered, and that makes it all the more danger. Think how awful it would be if you had shot the man."

"I warn't a-playing it to hurt the fool," said Delicti. "I wanted to scare him away. I was afraid he'd coax you off with him, and I wouldn't had you slope with him for twice the stakes he was to cough up."

"Oh, William, what a joker you are! Me go off with him? I should have thought you'd know me better. But you scart him bad enough to pay him well for his impudence to me. He's run the fat all off from him by this time; and at the rate he way goin' his friends'll never see him again. There, I think that'll be comfortable; but when we git to the village, we'll have a doctor look at it for safety, though I don't think he can improve it much."

She got him into the buckboard, wrapped her shawl about his foot, and then climbed up herself and took the reins.

"It's lucky that man left his rig behind him," said she. "It looks like a purty good horse for this country, but I guess he's got a touch of the springhalt."

What passed between them on their drive back to Sagetown is a part of their family history and concerns no one outside the family; but as they drove into town, soon after dark, she was saying, "Yes, William, on all accounts it's best for us to go straight home. I can put off the visit to Fluorella Pease—and I don't know as it's very necessary to be made, anyway—and duty calls me back."

They stopped once to make an enquiry of a passer-by, and then drove to a house known to be the residence of the Baptist minister. Here they stopped, and she assisted him into the house, and half an hour later Mr. and Mrs. William Deathburrow came out and went to the doctor's office.

That night, when the express went through among those who boarded the train was a lame man who supported himself on one side with an umbrella and was supported on the other by a woman who carried in her free hand a large bandbox. She helped him into the car, made a man give up one of the two seats he was monopolizing, put him into it, and tucked him up. Then the bell rang, the conductor shouted, "All aboard!" the wheels went round, and the train rushed eastward.

Honest Advice Free to Men.

The DISPATCH is requested to publish the following: All men who are suffering from overwork, excess or youthful errors, are aware that most medical firms advertising to cure these conditions cannot be relied upon. Mr. Graham, a resident of London, Ont., living at 437½ Richmond St., was for a long time a sufferer from above troubles and after trying in vain many advertised remedies, electric belts, etc., became almost discouraged and hopeless. Finally he confided in an old Clergyman who directed him to an eminent and reliable physician, through whose skillful treatment a speedy and perfect cure was obtained.

Knowing to his own sorrow that so many poor sufferers are being imposed upon by unscrupulous quacks, Mr. Graham considers it his duty to give his fellow-men the benefit of his experience and assist them to a cure by informing anyone who will write to him in strict confidence where to be cured. No attention can be given to those writing out of mere curiosity, but anyone who really needs a cure is advised to address Mr. Graham as above.

TERRIER ATTACKS A TIGER.

Dog Was Pretty Badly Mauled, But Saved by a Lucky Shot.

Tigers are not so common in India now as they used to be years ago, and so when a big man-eater was discovered recently in a garden in the outskirts of Jala, next to a lawn on which several men and women playing tennis, there naturally was a big panic and a great scampering to places of safety.

Capt. R. G. Burton, of the English army, with a friend and some native servants, started out to slay the beast. A bull terrier, pet of the captain, followed, and when they got to the compound the terrier made a rush into a big patch of jungly grass there and began barking furiously.

To the surprise of the whole party, the tiger turned tail and fled from the dog, but on reaching the open the beasts sprang upon one of the captain's native servants and disemboweled him with one sweep of a monster paw. Before he could open fire upon it the tiger had cleared a hedge, crossed the tennis ground to the accompaniment of a wild chorus of shrieks as the players fled in dismay, and hid among the bushes in a garden adjoining the court. By this time a dozen other men, armed with rifles, had joined in the chase.

The bull terrier had stuck close to the heels of the man-eater, and by his barking directed them to the beast's new hiding place. As it darted into the open, with the terrier at its heels, every man in the party opened fire, wounding the beast severely. It managed to get into a small jungle, however, and as by this time it had fallen dark the case was abandoned until morning.

At daylight it was found that the tiger had made its escape. Capt. Burton determined to have the beast's skin, and, accompanied only by the bull terrier, he set out on a hunt for the tiger.

On the fifth day he was appealed to by some natives in a village about 10 miles from Jala to rid them of a tiger that had seized and mauled a man that day. It proved to be the Jala tiger, with a broken leg. The captain organized a party, and with the bull terrier to scent the trail, they started out to track the tiger down.

That same afternoon the terrier drove the tiger out of some thick cover into a clump of bushes, and then followed into the bushes and closed with it. While they were holding a council to determine how to get the tiger out where they could shoot it, the terrier crawled out to them. The gallant little fellow was covered with cuts and blood. Capt. Burton washed the blood off with water from a canteen and gave him a drink. Then before they could stop it, the dog darted back into the bushes and renewed the battle.

Capt. Burton decided that the only way to keep the tiger from killing his pet was to get into the bush after it, and he crept in, and, while the beast was in the act of striking the terrier, he took a snap shot that brought the man-eater down on the instant. The bull terrier was cut up so badly that it was unable to move, but it recovered from its hurts, and Capt. Burton now says there isn't money enough in India to buy the dog.

CURED OF ECZEMA.

I was troubled for several years with Eczema and tried several doctors but to no purpose. Then I was advised to use Burdock Blood Bitters, and did so with the greatest success, as six bottles entirely cured me. Wm. G. Uglow, Port Hope, Ont.

—Richard Bronlow, known as the Lancashire Hermit, has just died near Bolton. He began life as a lawyer, but was afflicted with a disease that disfigured his face, compelling him to wear a mask. He built himself a fine country house on top of a hill at Horwich, and lived in it for fifty years, never leaving his grounds except at night.

—Paris' most fashionable society no longer uses envelopes, but has reverted to the old fashion of folding up the sheet of paper and closing it with sealing wax or wafers. All sorts of delicate colours are employed for the wafers, the favorite being faint heliotrope, sky blue, dull gray, fawn cream and robin's egg blue; dark green or red is in bad taste.

20 YEARS TORTURE.

No one who has not suffered from kidney disease can imagine the terrible torture those endure who are the victims of some disorder of these delicate filters of the body. Mrs. Richard Rees, a well-known and highly respected lady of Belleville, Ont., had to bear the burden of kidney complaint for over 20 years and now Doan's Kidney Pills have cured her when all else failed.

Her husband made the following statement of her case: "For 20 years my wife has been a sufferer from pain in the back, sleeplessness and nervousness and general prostration. Nothing seemed to help her. Doctors and medicines all failed, until we got a ray of hope when we saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised as a positive cure. "She began to take them and they helped her right away, and she is now better in every respect. We can heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all sufferers, for they seem to strike the right spot quickly, and their action is not only quick but it is permanent."

"I cannot say more in favor of these wonderful pills than that they saved my wife from lingering torture, which she had endured for 20 years past, and I sincerely trust that all sufferers will give Doan's Kidney Pills a fair trial."
