"It's the devil for any one to tell me a secret,
for it is sure to come out in print."—HAZLITT.

The habit of brow beating witnesses in court is happily going out of fashion though it still prevails, generally among the smaller legal fry, who like to appear fierce. An exchange furnishes us with a good story:—
A member of the Kentucky bar named Simmondson who was in the habit of intimidating the opposing witnesses, was once engaged in the trial of a case involving the title of some farm lands, and a number of countrymen were called in to testify on the other side.

When Simmondson came to cross-examine he harassed them in every imaginable manner, and when they would show signs of confusion would roar out:—"What are you hesitating for?" Are you afraid you may tell a lie? If the victim replied "No," Simmondson would retort, "I am sure you didn't fear a little thing like that," and if the answer was "Yes," he would say, with a sneer, "Aha, I thought so." The last witness he took in hand was a tall, lank farmer with a thoughtful eye. He had watched the baiting of his neighbours in dead silence, and took the stand with perfect composure. Simmondson evidently set him down as a lout, and when the witness hesitated over some question a moment later he fired his favorite shot. "What are y' studying about," he bellowed; "fraid of telling a lie, too, I suppose?" Without any apparent haste the countryman picked up a massive inkstand and harled it straight at Simmondson's head, catching him on the bridge of the nose and knocking him senseless. "That's what I was a-studyin' about," he drawled in the moment of dead silence that followed the act. Needless to say, a tremendous hubbub ensued, but everybody was secretly pleased, and while the judge fined the farmer heavily for contempt he subsequently remitted the sentence.

While on this question of the bullying lawyer and the frightened witness, I am told of another such story. The opposing counsel, in cross-examining the young doctor, made several sarcastic remarks, doubting the ability of so young a man to understand his business. The result proved the young physician to be as quick-witted as the learned counsel. "Do you know the symptoms of concussion of the brain?" "I do," replied the doctor. "Well," continued the attorney, "suppose my learned friend, Mr. Baging, and myself were to bang our heads together, should we get concussion of the brain?" "Your learned friend, Mr. Baging, might," said the doctor.

We have often been told of the epitaphs, which have caused no end of amusement to wanderers through old graveyards. The funeral of a certain aged farmer being over, the widow decided to have a tombstone that should do credit to both the deceased and herself. To the local stonemason she explained her wishes: "I don't want nothing out of the way, but handsome and simple, like this—'William Wilson, died October the fourth, 1898. Aged eighty-five years. The good die young.'"

Most of the soldiers who fought against Spain in Cuba are writing or have written books. They have also faced the camera boldly. General Roosevelt is having a big time advertising "The Rough Riders" in a book with that title. The London Chronicle says of it: "We are all with Colonel Roosevelt when he praises his men; we are less complaisant when he praises himself. We have never before met such vanity in print from one who was notoriously a brave soldier." The London Academy is impressed by the voluminous illustrations. It remarks of these: "With what intrepidity the Rough Riders faced the camera's mouth! The gallant colonel, hand on hip, frowns at us from the frontispiece. We find him again at page 8, on horseback; at page 38 full face; his war horse figures at page 128; the colonel himself and his men grouped themselves at page 168; at page 197 he visits Colonel Turner; at 234 he bids his Rough Riders farewell, and nothing but the fact that the rest of the book is needed for appendices saves us from moving incidents on his return to the irksome privacy of peace."

No doubt many persons who read this column are in the same unsettled frame of mind as to the pronunciation of the outlandish term "Uitlanders" as the Toronto Globe writes:—How should the word "Uitlanders" be pronounced? The London Daily Mail says that whilst Mr. Chamberlain pronounces it "Outlanders" and Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman says "Outlanders," the pronunciation in Transvaal is as if the word were spelt "Aitlanders." Other variants are "Weetlanders" and "Itelanders." President Kurger would probably prefer to pronounce it Dennis.

Hard-working Farmers.

Long hours of hard, never-ending work makes Kidney Trouble a common complaint on the farm. Painful, weak or lame backs and Urinary Disorders are too frequent.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

help a farmer to work and keep his health—take the ache and pain out of his back and give him strength and vigor.

Mr. Isaiah Wilmet, a retired farmer living at 138 Elizabeth St., Barrie, Ont., said:

"I have been a sufferer with kidney trouble and pain in the small of my back, and in both sides. I also had a great deal of neuralgia pain in my temples, and was subject to dizzy spells. I felt tired and worn out most of the time. Since taking Doan's Kidney Pills, I have had no pain either in my back or sides. They have removed the neuralgia pain from my head, also the tired feeling. I feel at least ten years younger and can only say that Doan's Kidney Pills are the most remarkable kidney cure, and in addition are the best tonic I ever took."

The Times, Weekly Edition.

The daily papers are full more or less of the reports of the Dreyfus trial, but it is hard to follow the exact course of the trial. Those who take the London Times, weekly edition, which may be procured at $3.15 per annum, have a capital opportunity to follow this most interesting trial so as to form an opinion based on all the evidence. This journal gives a graphic descriptive letter in each issue, of the incidents connected with the trial, and publishes the evidence in full. Just at present, it is also publishing a full report of the arbitration proceedings in the Venezuelan case, now taking place in Paris.

True friendship selects surely and grows slowly, but it is ever on the move. If it does not go forward, it will go backward. It is more difficult to forgive a friend than an enemy, because of what we expect from the former. It would seem upon occasions that friends were given us as lessons in patience and broad charity. We have been taught to forgive our enemies; full as much as we need to learn indulgence in friendship.

HEALTH RULES FOR ALL.

Common Sense Instructions to Follow During Hot Weather.

The People's University Extension Society of New York has had printed for distribution a leaflet of health rules for hot weather.

These rules were prepared by prominent physicians of the society. Some of them follow:

Do not feed children under two months oftener than every two hours during the day. Children between two and six months should be fed every three hours during the day.

Children from 6 to 12 months should be fed every four hours.

No food should be given babies between 10 p. m. and 5 a. m.

Older children should have food at regular intervals.

Wean the child between the 10th and 12th month, but not in the summer.

At 2 weeks, three tablespoonfuls; at 1 month, four; at 2 months, seven; at 4 months ten; at 6 to 10 months, twelve; at 10 to 12 months, sixteen.

Milk should be the only food for children under 1 year and the principal part of their food until 2 years of age.

If the mother cannot nurse the child, cow's milk changed under the direction of a physician must be used.

Don't feed a baby with patent foods or starchy foods.

Give the baby a tablespoonful of cool water that has been boiled, without sugar, at least every three hours when awake, milk should be a food, not a drink.

After 12 months a child may have with its milk a crust of bread, dry bread or crackers, little beef juice, oatmeal, farina or fine cornmeal well cooked.

A child under 2 years should have no sweets.

If feeding on the bottle, scald the bottle in hot water before and after each feeding.

Use short nipples on the bottle and keep the bottle in clean salt and water between feedings. Use a new nipple every third day.

No child under three years of age should eat from the table.

Milk is best food for the young.

Always have children wash face and hands before each meal.

See that they have a bath several times a week.

Don't give children under fifteen tea or coffee.

Keep away from children fancy cakes, candies or unripe or over ripe fruits.

Don't give children soothing syrups or paregoric, for they contain poison, as a rule.

Keep flies from sleeping children and stop unnecessary noises.

Don't give beef tea to a child ill with diarrhoea.

Don't let the baby suck its thumb, a rubber nipple or a sugar rag.

An infant should sleep nine-tenths of its time; a child a year old, two-thirds.

Don't play with the baby before five months.

Don't lift the baby by his hands.

Don't urge the baby to walk or talk.

If possible have a carriage for baby. It can serve the purpose of a crib to sleep in at night if necessary.

The wind must not blow in baby's face nor the sun shine full in its eyes.

Don't have the baby sleep with adults.

In summer the baby may be taken out when a week old.

Here are some important hints for grown people;

Always chew your food thoroughly.

Buy your food fresh. Keep it fresh. Prepare it tastefully.

Don't buy bad food because it is cheap.

Don't serve food on a dirty table.

Don't eat decaying fruit.

Don't fry all your meat.

Don't throw away bones and ends of meat; use them for soap.

Don't serve vegetables underdone.

Always drink milk slowly.

Drink as small a quantity of liquid at your meals as possible.

Drink plenty of water between meals.

Boil and strain drinking water if it is not pure.

Don't drink cold water when you are very hot or perspiring freely.

Don't drink water with ice in it.

Don't drink alcoholics.

Don't let the children fill their stomachs with soda water and sweetened drinks.

Don't drink water that has stood uncovered in a room.

Don't drink water that has been standing in lead pipes.

Don't let tea stand in the teapot.

Keep rooms well ventilated.

Exercise daily in the open air when possible.

Don't allow any bad smells from sinks, garbage boxes or gutter.

Be sure that the tables and floors are scrubbed every other day.

If possible, cover the table with bright oil-cloth.

Don't sleep in the clothing you wear in the daytime.

Don't sweep the dust into corners; clean it up and burn it.

Clothing should be thin and cool in hot weather.

A handful of oatmeal in cold water makes a healthful drink.

Put drinking water in bottles on ice. Don't put ice in water.

A little lime juice or lemon in water is healthful.

Don't expose food to the open air.

Don't have meat more than once a day in summer.

Protect food and dishes from flies. It is economy to use ice to keep food from spoiling.

VIOLENT

HEADACHES

Accompanied by Indigestion and Constipation cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

From Bath, Ont., comes the particulars of a remarkable cure effected by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Mr. Jos. Gardiner was for forty years the victim of indigestion, constipation, and violent headaches. Nothing seemed to have the desired effect until he began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and they effected a complete cure. Mr. Gardiner writes:

"I have been troubled for over forty years with indigestion and constipation, would go for two weeks at a time. At intervals I would be taken with violent headaches. I spent dollars and dollars in vain, and was finally advised to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and must say that they are the only remedy that gave me permanent relief. I would not be without them for anything."
