ZOLA'S "J'ACCUSE."

Probably this week the Dreyfus re-trial will take place in France. It all comes about through the exertions of a journalist, Emile Zola. Zola has been famous as a novelist for years past. His style has been admired, his books have been read by hundreds. Many people have objected to the tone of Zola's novels, and, certainly not without reason. They lean strongly to the realistic, if not at times to the immoral. It is not well that the minds of the young, especially should be fed on such literature. For some peculiar reason, French literature is apt to be on the side of the realistic and immoral. We speak of a "French novel" with contempt.

Zola's efforts to have justice meted out to Dreyfus, are deserving of all credit. It was his famous letter "J'accuse," charging corruption on certain heads of the army, that started the agitation, which in a comparatively short time has led to the return of the exiled officer, and to his trial anew, which occurs early this month.

It is too soon, to speak of the result of this new trial. From opinions expressed by well-posted correspondents, it would appear that an acquittal is nearly certain. Whether acquitted or condemned, we may be pretty certain that justice will prevail, and it is all that lovers of justice ask. A fair trial and no favours.

Why is it that all the world is interested in this French officer's case?

Because we are all akin, all children in one human family, all desirous of the triumph of fair play. If Dreyfus, a French officer gave away secrets to the German embassy, his punishment was well deserved, but, if Dreyfus did not give away these secrets, if a conspiracy existed to make him the scape goat, and if that conspiracy succeeded in condemning him to the fearful punishment he experienced on Devil's Island, and all the time he was as innocent as you or I of the crime, is this not a terrible thing to contemplate?

Truly, it is better that a thousand guilty should escape, than one innocent suffer.

How very careful we should be that our fountains of justice do not become polluted? It is not for us to sneer at France. France nobly is redeeming herself. Politicians befooled her, and made her punish one, without a trial. The politicians would do the same thing to us, in this country. If one of the great political parties in this free Canada found that its tenure of office depended on an act of injustice, and that by the sacrifice of some civil servant, say, secrets would be forever withheld, that, if known, would throw them out of power, would not the civil servant, probably, be sacrificed?

Are we in a position to reproach France? Journalism has a right to hold up its head, when one of its world leaders, faces a whole nation, and a world, and in one famous letter makes such an impression, that even the strength of a powerful army, cannot withstand it. Was ever the force of the old saying more truly proved, "the pen is mightier than the sword."

High Lights.

Never look a gift automobile in the works. The social deference which is rooted in policy makes a fair imitation of brotherly love.

Little girls have to be introduced to each other; but all small boys are acquainted.

When a man is in love he either works himself to death or doesn't attend to business at all.

The real joy of a picnic is in thinking about its pleasures after its annoyances are two days old.

It is possible to be so generous that you crowd out and discourage the generosity of other people. Of two evils, it is sometimes well to choose both; bad luck forsakes the man who acts as if he likes it.

The woman who says she isn't going anywhere this summer is secretly thinking what a nice long trip she deserves.

Death in Headache Powders.

The daily papers have of late contained reports of death in various cities attributed to self-administration of unknown remedies says the Medical Record. The other day a woman in Pittsburg died in twenty minutes after swallowing a powder for the relief of headache. This is said to have been the fifth death in that city alone recently set down to the same cause. Such instances teach the Nostrum-loving American people but slowly. The report of the physicians who have this week made an autopsy in the case of a lady of Detroit is said to show that death was hastened by secret headache powders. It would seem but right that the ingredients of all nostrums sold in drug stores should appear upon the packages. This would protect in a measure both the druggists and the purchaser. When both are ignorant of what is being administered great damage may often result.

Surely some legislation is called for.

A Parliamentary Wooing.

"I move," said the young congressman, "that we now resolve ourselves into a committee of the whole to consider the advisability of immediate annexation."

"I—I object," said the maiden shyly. "I move the previous question," said the young man shyly.

This was beyond her and she said nothing. "We will now put it to vote," said he. "Any opposition to the motion may be manifested by a simple 'no.'"

She looked at him a trifle bewildered, and he hastily continued:

"Your speaking eyes being the only signs I note it is plainly evident that the eyes have it and the previous question is carried. Now, as this vote must be considered a test of strength it can no longer be doubted that annexation is favored by an overwhelming majority, in consequence of which you might as well name the day when the union shall be completed."

The maiden gasped.

"I—I object," she began. But with the able assistance of a luxuriant mustache he succeeded in shutting off debate. And the fight was won.—New York World.

Its Pathos Lost.

"Now, is not that pathetic?" said a benevolent looking old gentleman, standing with a friend in a nearby doorway. "See how the poor crave ice this sultry weather! You and I, who can get any sort of refreshing drink whenever we want it, can't imagine what a luxury it is to them! That little fellow is happy because he has rescued a morsel of coolness from a filthy gutter! Come here a minute, my boy."

The child approached by cautious detours, shifting his ice from one hand to the other. "Here is a dime for you, said the old gentleman, kindly. "Go buy yourself a glass of lemonade. You mustn't eat that stuff; it may make you sick."

"I wasn't goin' t' eat it," replied the gamine seizing the coin.

"Indeed!" exclaimed the philanthropist in surprise. "What did you want with it then?" The urchin grinned.

"I wanted to put it down de blind man's back," he replied.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Could Remember Some Things.

Travelling Missionary—And how many children have you, Mr. Burdock?

Farmer Burdock (doubtfully)—Well, now, I dunno. Ther's Dick and John and Kate—wife, how many children are there around here?

His wife—nine; five boys and four girls. Travelling Missionary—A fine family and a fine farm, Mr. Burdock. You keep stock I presume?

Farmer Burdock—Oh yes; I've got 173 head of Jersey cattle, 579 sheep and 91 hogs. Exchange.

Cramps and Colic

Always relieved promptly by Dr. Fowler's Ext. of Wild Strawberry.

When you are seized with an attack of Cramps or doubled up with Colic, you want a remedy you are sure will give you relief and give it quickly, too. You don't want an untried something that may help you. You want Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, which every one knows will positively cure Cramps and Colic quickly. Just a dose or two and you have ease.

But now a word of proof to back up these assertions, and we have it from Mr. John Hawke, Coldwater, Ont., who writes: "Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is a wonderful cure for Diarrhoea, Cramps and pains in the stomach. I was a great sufferer until I gave it a trial, but now I have perfect comfort."

Had To.

An uptown maiden who is noted for her powers of sarcasm met a married sister a day or two ago at the latter's home.

"Well, Mame," she said, "I finally sat down on that conceited young Mr. Finicky."

"Did you, dear? I know you said you would. Did you do it effectually?"

"Yes, good and hard."

"What did he say?"

"He was so confused he didn't say anything."

"You must have been more than usually sarcastic."

"I don't think I was. In fact, I felt awfully cheap."

"You did?"

"Yes. You see, the motor gave a sudden start and I sat down on him because I couldn't help it."

"Keep the head cool and the bowels open," is sensible advice to follow this warm weather. Is the bowels to not move regularly, take Laxa-Liver Pills. They are small in size, easy to take and do not gripe, weaken or sicken.

The E. B. EDDY CO. Limited. Hull, P. Q.

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"
