Eggs $10,000 a Dozen.

"That is a ridiculous price for such an egg as this," said a London auctioneer the other day, when a man bid a 150 guineas for an egg. One of the company bid another 10 guineas, and as nobody could be persuaded to go higher the egg was knocked down for 160 guineas.

The egg which fetched such an extraordinary price was an egg of the great auk, of which there are only seventy in existence. The last great auk died half a century ago, and there are therefore no birds left to lay any more of these precious eggs. The one sold the other day was picked up in Iceland sixty-seven years ago, and was slightly cracked, which detracted somewhat from its value.

Probably the highest price ever paid for one of these eggs was $1575, which was given three years ago in England. Another went for $840, and a third for $918. Earlier in this year as much as $1470 was paid for one. Fifty of the seventy eggs in existence are the property of private collectors in England, who have paid for them many times their weight in gold. The eggs are about the size of a man's closed fist.

The total value of the seventy eggs is about $70,000, or considerably more than $10,000 a dozen. Thus their market value is equal to that of nearly three and a half million new laid eggs at 2 cents apiece.

KIDNEY'S CLOGGED.

Many Victims of Bright's Disease—Diabetes, Dropsy and Distressing Urinary Troubles Have Been Saved by the Timely Use of South American Kidney Cure.

The kidneys are nature's filters in expelling from the body all impurities. If the kidneys are out of sorts the whole system becomes impaired and disease follows as sure as fate. Bright's disease, diabetes, dropsy and distressing urinary troubles infest four-fifths of the race. It need not be so, for South American Kidney Cure is a power in dispelling all tendency to the seating of disease. It has cured cases that have been long and stubborn and that have baffled medical skill. For sale by Garden Bros.

Question of Law.

The young man who was once a clerk in a law office was airing his knowledge of the law and giving opinions on everything that came up.

"I suppose," said the old man with chin whiskers, "that you know all there is to know about law."

"Well, I won't say that," answered the youth, "but I will admit that I know quite a bit."

"Just the man I want to see, then," asserted the man with the whiskers. "You see, I had quite a legal p'int come up out in Kansas an' mebbe you kin strighten it out."

"Shouldn't wonder if I could," returned the youth. "What was it?"

"Why, a man living 'bout half a mile from me had a house with a cellar under it, an' I had a house without a cellar. Along came a cyclone, picked both of 'em up, spun 'em 'round, an' put mine down where his used to be an' his where mine used to be. We let 'em stand jest where they landed, an' now what I want to know is, do I owe him for diggin' the cellar?"

Rare Lace.

It was linen, embroidered and cut-work, sometimes combined with what is now known as drawn thread work, from which the laces of today evolved. The cut-work was made by the nuns when practically all industries were carried on within the walls of the convent. "Nuns' work" it was called, and an old manuscript is extant which sets forth that a certain great lady was "as well skilled in needle work as if she had been brought up at a convent."

From the darned netting to the lace with light grounds, such as are used now, is an easy transition; then beautiful "stitches in the air," as distinct from stitches worked on a firm ground, was made, and the evolution of lace was complete.

It is delightful to think that the finest stitches which were employed at Venice, Alencon and Argentan, when these places were at the height of their glory in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, are not a

BRAIN FAG

Is the result of Overwork and an Exhausted Nervous System. Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food creates New Brain and Nerve Tissue.

Business and professional men, accountants, stenographers, teachers, students and all brain workers know only too well what it means to have the brain so tired out that concentration of thought is almost impossible.

One-fifth of all the blood in the human body is found in the brain, and unless the blood is pure and rich the brain becomes exhausted for want of proper nourishment.

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food creates new brain and nerve tissue, and produces rich red blood, "the vital fluid" of the body.

All brain workers quickly recognize the merits of this great food cure, and after a few doses enter on their work with new energy and ambition.

Brain fag is unknown to persons whose brain and nerve have been invigorated by the use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food, which is for sale by all dealers at 50c. a box.

forgotten art. By means of microscopes and patient toil on the part of the workers the method of making the delicate effect has been rediscovered and is used in the factories of today.

Should one go into a lace shop now and ask for "a pretty winter lace," "a nice length of spring lace," or "a useful autumn variety," the seller would doubtless think the designing purchaser was a lunatic. In the reign of Louis XV., however, no such ideas would have entered his head, for so popular was the lace that the fabric was specialized in this manner. Argentan and Alencon—rather thick and massive laces, for in those days the designers were still under the Venetian influence—were called "winter" laces; the fabrics of England and Mechlin, on the other hand, were "summer" laces.

"It's the devil for any one to tell me a secret, for it is sure to come out in print."—HAZLITT.

Robert Barr, writing in the Canadian Magazine on Canadian Literature resents the treatment that Canada metes to her literary men. His advice to Canadian writers is "Get over the border as soon as you can; come to London or go to New York; shake the dust of Canada from your feet. Get out of a land that is willing to pay money for whiskey, but wants its literature free in the shape of Ayer's Almanac, in my day the standard work of reference in the rural districts, because it cost nothing." However, Robert thinks there is a remedy. "I believe that Canada can be reclaimed from literary darkness and rye whiskey," he says. It is all right for Mr. Barr to say we are illiterate, that we neglect our literary men and do not buy their books. I have been slightly neglected in that way myself, but every patriotic Canadian should resent the imputation that we drink rye whiskey. Mr. Barr writes good stories and he associates with nice people in London, but into whose hands did he fall on his last visit to Canada? Who has destroyed our good name? Even in a Scott Act town, where the worst stuff imaginable is sold no one hears the name of rye. Canadians drink Scotch. Let Mr. Barr beware.

Almost any fellow was his own returning officer in town on election day last week. Every fellow had a chance to vote at least two times and many there were who availed themselves of the opportunity. One fellow voted the straight liberal ticket on Connell street and then went up to the town hall and voted conservative. There were, I should judge, just five men elected to represent the town in the county council and when the town council elects three more we will be so well represented that we can get a jail and court house if not a public park, library and penitentiary as well.

As I write this I cannot but feel sorry for General White. By the time this paper comes out, this able general may have redeemed his reputation. He may have become as much a hero, as at the present moment he is a scapegoat. But as I write, who could tell that his mules would stampede, and if his mules had not stampeded, his story would have been spouted all over the earth. So, truly are the "fortunes of war." It is all like a game of whist or chess. Science of the game is necessary, but there is always an item of chance that may mean the loss of the battle to the strong and the winning of the victory for the weak. Again surely one must sometimes sympathize with the defeated, and one never knows when the defeated will become the conquerors.

Now take for instance the case of our friend Bob Fitzsimmons. He was up at the top of the ladder a year ago. Then all of a sudden he took a fall, but such a pretty fall that he was more of a hero than most failures. Now he has gone and smashed up a pretty prominent prize fighter in one round, and, presto, Bob again appears in the papers. The ups and downs of life are many and varied, and you can't just always sometimes tell, who'll be next. So best be a bit humble.

One of the Emperers of Rome was quite a wise Jurist. He was also a patriot, only caring for his country's welfare like a patriot and politicians. He was something of a lawyer too, quite profound and deep, studied and well learned. So he wrote out a code of laws for his people, but in order that he might effectually punish those whom he wished to punish, with some kind of excuse, he had this admirable code of laws posted up so high, that, excellent, as they were, they were ineffectual, for the people could not read them. The moral is that laws are not much good unless they are plain. Surely there are times when ignorance of the law should excuse.

A New French Liner.

A new ocean liner, "La Lorraine," has been built at St. Nazaire for the Havre-New York service of the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique. This is said to be the largest French liner and the chief dimensions are as follows: Length, 571 ft. 3 in.; beam, 59 ft. 2 in.; depth from main deck to keel, 39 ft. Her draught will be 25 ft. 1 in., and displacement 15,200 tons. Five decks run the entire length of the steamship, and there is, in addition a promenade deck 325 ft. in length for first and second-class passengers. The propelling power is supplied by two triple-expansion engines, giving an indicated horse power of 22,000. It is said that the appointments for passengers are to be luxurious. There will be three kinds of first-class passengers—"Grand Luxe," "Luxe" and ordinary first-class; 59 of the first two classes can be accommodated, 378 ordinary first-class, 118 second-second and 398 emigrants, making a total of 953, which, together with the crew and stewards, make a grand total of 1325. The speed of the vessel has been contracted for at 22 knots.

Doctors said Incurable

But the Notary, Mr. Lemire, was cured of Kidney Disease in two months by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

It is only when thoroughly convinced of the superior merit of a remedy that public men will give their sanction.
Mr. E. H. Lemire, Notary Public, 1692 Notre Dame Street, Montreal, tells of his remarkable recovery from a severe attack of kidney disease. When doctors had failed, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills saved his life. He writes: "I give this statement, first because it is only just that the merit of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills should be made known, and again in order that others may profit by my experience. For years I suffered with kidney disease which doctors pronounced incurable. Thanks to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I have used for two months, I am completely cured. They helped me from the first, and the cure is now perfect."
Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills act directly on the kidneys, and through their combined influence on the kidneys and liver, cure the most complicated diseases of these delicate organs. One pill a dose. 25 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.
