

DEATH OF JOHN C. FRIPP.

trough of the sea and making considerable water and we began to jettison the cargo and emptied a number of casks of oil to smooth the water. The water continued rising in the steamer and put the fires out in one of the furnaces. Between 10 and 11 o'clock Captain Harding decided to take to the boats. Two boats were got out on the port side and the women, three in number, were got into the first one with great difficulty.

Olive, purser of the Prince Edward, who was a passenger, helped us get the women into the boat and after helping Elsie McDonald in went and got her handbag and threw it in after her. I told Olive to get into the boat, too, but he said 'no, you have got enough without me. I will wait for the next boat.' We got away from the ship. I was in the bow and Murphy steering. About five minutes after we had got clear I saw the steamer settle down on the port side and gradually disappear. I saw steam escaping, but if there was an explosion I was so taken up with managing my boat that I did not notice it. There was no confusion on the steamer before we left and no excitement whatever. Captain Harding and all his officers did their duty to the last. The captain helped us to clear our boat and the last I saw of him he was standing by the fall directing the clearing of our boat. Captain Harding's conduct was seamanlike throughout and in my judgment he acted as any experienced shipmaster would have done under similar circumstances. After the steamer disappeared we were driven on land by a terrific gale and the heavy surf threw our boat on the beach, smashing her into fragments. Second Mate Murphy and the two women, Elsie McDonald and the colored girl named Lawrence, were drowned and we never saw them after the boat went to pieces. I felt myself going through the air and when the waves receded found I was holding on to grass far up on the beach. I feel that it was only by a miracle that I escaped, as did Flemming, Cook and Stewardess Smith. Mr. Cook and the stewardess were injured in landing. When we last saw the other boat she was evidently full of water and there is no hope of her occupants having survived. They could not possibly have survived in the terrible sea. After landing we were taken into the house of Captain George Vickery and his neighbor, Mr. Cann, at Pembroke, who furnished us with dry clothing and brought us to Yarmouth. I wish to thank them on behalf of myself and others for their kind treatment."

Letter From Mr. Colpitts.

HAWKSHAW, Nov. 1900.

To the Editor of The Dispatch:

We noticed something in the last DISPATCH that we cannot let go unchallenged in reference to the two burglars captured near here on the third.

Deputy Sheriff Foster and Constable Jas. Wolverton seem to take the credit of capturing them, but the fact of the case is they had nothing to do what ever their capture. I got notice here by telephone to be on the look out for two suspicious persons who were wanted for breaking a safe and stealing a horse. Early Saturday morning got word that these two parties had stopped all night in the Barony school house and I immediately telephoned Town Marshall, Jas. Harvey at Fredericton, and also sent word to Woodstock. The word came back to capture them if possible at any cost. I immediately notified Constable John A. Scott who got Neil Mooers, Sam Davidson and Barry Anderson who went in pursuit. They found they had been to the half way house for breakfast and were just a little ahead. They came up to them and drove right past down over a hill out of their sight and put their horses in a barn near the road and when the burglars came along the constables simply stepped out on the road and effected the capture without any trouble. The taller one trampled like a leaf when he found he was captured. They were brought to H. S. Shaw's store and shortly afterward Foster and Wolverton arrived and they were handed over to them and that is all they had to do with their capture. We like to give honour to whom honour is due. Two suspicious looking men have been lurking along between Bear Island, Nackawick and Lower Southampton and probably belong to the same crowd as the ones captured.

Yours etc.,

B. M. COLPITTS.

The Thanksgiving Number

OF THE SATURDAY EVENING POST is dated November 10. The cover is by Harrison Fisher. The opening article is The Leaders in American Diplomacy, by Honorable John W. Foster, formerly Secretary of State. Honorable Frank A. Vanderlip, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, contributes The Onward March of American Trade. Honorable Carter H. Harrison, Mayor of Chicago has an article on The Defacement of the Modern City. Major Arthur Griffiths, of the British Army (Retired), has an anecdotal sketch of General Wolseley. The adventures of a Pioneer Plainsman are told by Captain John J. Healy. The fiction includes Senate Bill 578, by Brand Whitlock; For Divers Reasons, by Charles Battell Loomis; The Banner Bearer, by Mrs. Burton Harrison; The Diary of a Harvard Freshman, by Charles Macomb Flandrau; Mooswa of the Boundaries, by W. A. Fraser; 'Enry' Iggins' 'Eart Story, by Joe Lincoln; A Supper by Proxy, by Paul Laurence Dunbar. There is a half-page poem called the Ballad of Ozy B. Orr, by Holman F. Day. The editorial page deals with timely subjects; the department of Men and Woman of the Hour contains new stories and the "Public Occurrences" tell of the efforts to capture South American trade. Frank W. Thomas gives Confessions of a Mind Reader; Madeline S. Bridges has a poem called An Untold Love; William Matthews contributes The Matter-of-Fact Man. The other departments are Literary News and Oddities of Science.

The Clergy Endorse It.

We notice that the leading clergymen of every denomination in Canada are publicly endorsing the beautiful picture, "CHRIST IN THE TEMPLE," and are recommending it to every Canadian home.

The picture, "CHRIST IN THE TEMPLE," is that of a most touching incident in the life of the Saviour. It is a subject that has ever appealed to the poet and the painter. It shows our Saviour when a boy of twelve in deep discussion with the grave and thoughtful Rabbis who are astonished at the wisdom of the youth. The colouring of the painting is superb and the drawing of the faces wonderful; this is particularly true of the face of Jesus, his countenance is full of boyish beauty, interlarded with a high and holy intelligence. It is indeed a beautiful picture and should be in every Christian home. It is one of the two pictures which are this year given free to all yearly subscribers to that great paper, the Family Herald and Weekly Star.

The other picture is one that at once appeals to Canadians. It represents the return of one of our Canadian soldiers from South Africa, and is bound to be a popular picture. There is a beautiful story connected with this picture. It is printed in pamphlet form and will be sent free to any of our readers who will send a card to the Family Herald and Weekly Star, Montreal, requesting it. The Family Herald should do a bigger business this year than ever with two such beautiful pictures to be included free with such a magnificent family paper at the small price of one dollar per year.
