

A Dressmaker's Duties

Are Such as to Cause Backache

A Toronto Dressmaker has Found a Positive Cure and Gladly Tells About it.

Those who follow the arduous occupation of dress-making or sewing have troubles of their own. Running sewing machines all day long, bending over work that requires the greatest of care, these are the things that have made many a woman exclaim, "every time I take a stitch with my needle it seems as though I am piercing my own back."

But those who suffer from backache, headache, pain in the side or any derangement of the kidneys will be glad to know that there is a remedy that never fails even in the worst cases.

It is Doan's Kidney Pills. Mrs. P. Coyle, the well-known dressmaker, 224 Bathurst St., Toronto, Ont., gave the following statement of her experience with it:

"For some time I suffered a good deal from weak back, a tired feeling, and pains and aches in various parts of my body. Since I have used Doan's Kidney Pills the pains have left me, my back has got stronger and the kidney troubles have been corrected. That tired, dull, drowsy feeling that used to come on me has now gone, and I am happy to say I have not felt so well in years as at present."

Doan's Kidney Pills cure backache, lame or weak back, Bright's disease, diabetes, dropsy, mist before the eyes, loss of memory, rheumatism, gravel and urinary troubles of young or old. The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

Circus Hit by a Cyclone.

At Council Bluffs, Iowa, we had, says an old circus man, in Saturday Evening Post, exhibited to a large afternoon audience. The day was extremely hot and sultry, and in the evening, just as the people were seating themselves on the benches, a cyclone struck us without the slightest warning. In a twinkling the poles, seats and canvas were being hurled through the air in all directions. At that time we used an inflammable liquid for illuminating the tent, and this ignited and added the horror of fire to the scene. In those days our menagerie was exhibited in the same tent used for our circus performance, the seats being arranged on one side and the animal cages on the other. Imagine the scene! Several thousand terrorized and screaming men, women and children rushed wildly in all directions, the combustible tents and paraphernalia were in flames, and above all could be heard the roar of the terror-stricken animals, beating madly against their iron bars. Two of the largest dens had been placed together and the partition bars withdrawn so as to form one big cage, wherein the lions and tigers were exercised by their keepers. The fire burned the woodwork so that this double cage came apart and liberated the ferocious animals. These lions and tigers escaped among the people and added a new element to the general pandemonium of terror. Words cannot convey an adequate idea of that awful moment.

As the tents and cages slowly burned out, total darkness came upon us. In the excitement one of the men in the audience happened to jump on a crouching lion and yelled that he was in the clutches of the beast; however, the animal was as thoroughly frightened as the man. Some of the animals were loose all night. A Royal Bengal tiger disappeared altogether. No trace whatever was found of his remains when the debris was examined, and he probably escaped to the nearest woods.

Near to the tent was one of those prickly osage hedges, and into this hundreds of people ran, became so entangled in the thorny network that it was almost impossible for them to extricate themselves. Many were badly lacerated by the brambles. There was no sleep in Council Bluffs that night.

When It Hurts to Cough

The cough that hurts, the cough that gets tight in the chest, is daily getting deeper and deeper into the bronchial tubes and is making directly for the lungs, to become pneumonia, inflammation of the lungs or consumption. Such coughs yield only to the wonderful efficiency of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine which loosens the tightness and cures cough and cold together. 25 cents a bottle. Family size 60 cents, sold every where.

Thought the Devil had Them.

At a certain town in Missouri, says an old circus man in Saturday Evening Post, a laughable circumstance occurred when our circus exhibited there. For some time a revival had been in progress. The revivalists had been abusing the circus, its surroundings and influences, and had tried to prevent us from exhibiting. However, we secured a lot adjoining the church and opened our doors. John Robinson, the chief proprietor of our show, was one of the best equestrians that ever lived, and at that time was introducing what he called his Demon Act. In this act he dressed and made up as nearly as possible like a demon. While riding his four horses at breakneck pace around the ring he would utter a series of the most ferocious yells imaginable, at the same time working himself up to a great pitch of excitement, until, as the auditors frequently expressed it, he "looked like his Statianic Majesty himself." On this occasion, at the close of his act, he jumped from his horses, ran out of the dressing room and boldly entered the church, exclaiming in the stentorian voice for which he was famed: "I am victorious! I am victorious!" The effect was magical. The revivalists had been eloquently exhorting on the subject of the Prince of Darkness, and the overwrought congregation took but one glance at the theatrical Satan, and then, leaping madly through the windows and doors of the little church, broke for the woods.

USES OF LIME AND CHARCOAL.

They are Invaluable Aids in Keeping the Home Healthful in Summer.

"The heat and moisture of the summer months have a tendency to rust metals, mildew fabrics and cover all sorts of substances with mould," writes Maria Parloa of "The Care of the House in Summer," in the July Ladies' Home Journal. "Fermentation and putrefaction develop rapidly in vegetable and animal substances if they are not carefully watched. Lime and charcoal are two aids toward keeping the house sweet and dry, and the housekeeper should, if possible, provide herself with both of these materials. A barrel each of lime and charcoal in the cellar will tend to keep that part of the house dry and sweet. A bowl of lime in a damp closet will dry and sweeten it. A dish of charcoal in a closet or refrigerator will do much toward condition and suffered a great deal from scrofulous sores. My husband bought a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters for him and gave it to him, and by the time he had finished the second bottle there was not a sore to be seen. On account of this wonderful cure I can honestly recommend B.B.B. to all who suffer from any disease arising from bad blood."

CURES BOILS.

Mr. Oliver J. Murray, Charlottetown, P.E.I., writes as follows: "About six months ago I was troubled with painful boils, for which I could get nothing to cure me. As a last resort I tried Burdock Blood Bitters. One bottle completely rid me of boils, and my health was never better than at present."

making these places sweet. The power of charcoal to absorb odors is much greater directly after it has been burned than when it has been exposed to the air for a length of time. Charcoal may be purified and used again and again by heating it to a red heat. The lime must be kept in a place where there is no chance of its getting wet, and not exposed to air."

Solomon Sloan's Advice on How to Run the Universe.

Mr. Editor: If I were boss—Every time a man was sent to jail the law would allow his wife enough money to live on until he got out.

There would be a lot more men sent to jail, but the community would be a good deal healthier.

Nowadays when a drunken brute beats and kicks his wife what happens?

In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the suffering wife grins and bears it, and hopes it will not happen again.

But it does happen again. The very next day, or if he succeeds in finding where she put the rent money, the brute of a husband goes and gets drunk and the wife gets abused again.

In the hundredth case—when the neighbors get tired hearing the husband's curses and blows and the wife's screams, or perhaps when the poor wife in despair makes up her mind she can bear it no longer, a policeman is called in and the brute is dragged off to a cell.

The next morning he is arraigned in a police court, and generally the wife refuses to prosecute.

Optimists may marvel at the depths of woman's love, but optimism has much to learn in a police court.

If her husband is sent to jail for three months, as he richly deserves, what will happen to the wife? She gets a little money from him now. If he goes to jail she will get none.

The children must be fed. She, poor woman, ailing from many blows, cannot earn the wherewithal. She listens to her husband's promises and pleadings. Perhaps he means it; perhaps the children will get something to eat. She refuses to prosecute and the brute goes free.

Now, if the woman knew that if her brutal husband went to jail, as he richly deserved, the law would support her, would she refuse to prosecute?

Not she. If she could look forward to three months' freedom from beatings; if she realized that every week she would get $5, or $7, or $10, to buy bread for her children, instead of a curse and 25 cents, the brute every time would go to jail and the wife would go home happy.

As it is now the punishment for the wife beater falls heavier on the beaten than on the brute. The state provides his food, why not hers?

If it did, there would be far less wife beating.

And that's the way it would be if I were boss.

SOLOMON SLOAN.

Memoranda on Visiting Cards.

Some people have a bad habit of making notes on the back of visiting cards and then putting them into their pocketbook or card cases. On the last Wednesday before Lent the ladies of the cabinet held their final reception for the season, and had an unusually large number of callers. Among the cards that were left upon the tray in the hall one of them found two that bore interesting and important memoranda. The names upon the other side were well known to the lady. One of them is that of a gentleman who stands for statesmanship, patriotism, oratory and almost everything that is good and great. He is a happy husband and devoted father, and his interest in his own domestic affairs was demonstrated on the back of the card by this shopping list:

"Two bottles beef, iron and wine," "tooth-brush," "tooth powder," digestive tablets," "soap."

The other card was that of a congressman's wife, and it bore the following note:

"The last cook you sent us got drunk and insolent. Send a white woman if you can get a good one; if not, the best colored woman you have on your list. This is the last time I shall patronize you."

Evidently this card should have gone to some intelligence office instead of being left on the tray at the residence of the cabinet minister. There was quite a controversy that evening between the latter and his wife as to whether she ought to send these cards to the persons most interested. He thought it was her duty to do so. She said that it would only mortify them.—Chicago Record.
