DO YOU FEEL TIRED IN THE MORNING?

Does Sleep not bring Refreshment?

Do you feel wretched, mean and miserable in the mornings-as tired as when you went to bed? It's a serious condition -too serious to neglect, and unless you have the heart and nervous system strengthened and the blood enriched by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, collapse is a most certain to ensure. Mr. Fred. H. Graham, a we known young man of Barrie, Ont., says:—"I have had a great deal of trouble with my heart for four years. I was easily agitated and my excitement caused my heart to throb violently. I had dizziness and shortness of breath, and often arose in the mornings feeling as tired as when I went to bed. I was ribly nervous. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done wonders for me. They have restored my heart to regular healthy action, giving me back sound restful sleep, and making my nervous system strong and vigorous.

Dr. Frank S. Milbury.

In Dr. Erank Stephen Milbury, who died at his home in Brooklyn, Wednesday, August 29th, after an illness of but three days, New York has lost one of the many New Brunswickers who have attained distinction in the American Metropolis. It is interesting that a number of these have been physicians. Dr. Milbury had attained the first rank in his chosen department (disease of the eye, ear, nose and throat); his Uncle, Dr. Giberson, who died twenty-one years ago, was conceded to be the leading physician and surgeon of Brooklyn, was born in Carleton Co. and Dr. Joseph Howe, who died on shipboard several years ago returning from Europe was from the Miraimchi district, and stood second to no New Yorker in some of the most important branches of surgery and medicine.

Dr Milbury was the son of Seth and Hannah Giberson Milbury, and was born at Florenceville, Carleton County, New Brunswick, November 28th, 1856. When four years of age his left leg was paralyzed, the result of illness, which resulted in permanent, serious lameness. This discouraging misfortune, however, merely served as a spur to his mental energies, and such was his will that he did not allow his lameness to prevent his leading an active life, or making the ascent of Popocatapetl, Vesuvius, and other difficult mountains. Frank took the regular common school course at Florenceville, and Wicklow, wither his family had removed. At school he was noted for determination and persistance rather than for brilliance. He decided to study dentistry, and did so, at Baltimore, where he graduated. Part of his expences were defrayed by teaching. After receiving his diploma, he practiced for several years in Sydney, N. S., and in the City of Mexico. His broad intellectual energy, however, demanded a wider field, and having frugally saved a comfortable sum, he concluded to take the full course in medicine and surgery, which he did at Cincinnati, graduating with high honors. Then he went to Vienna, the world's greatest school of medicine, where he made a specialty of diseases of the eye, car, nose and throat. Hard study and close confinment impaired his health so that the professors ordered a rest. He made a tour through Hungary, Servia, Bulgaria, Roumania, Turkey, Palestine, Egypt, the Grecian Archipelgo, Greece, Italy, Switzerland and back to the Austrain capital, with heatlh fully restored. He especially enjoyed his visit to Jerusalem, the River Jordan and the Dead Sea; and his collection of Palestine, Egyptian and Mexican photographs and curios was extensive.

his sign, and in a few months had made is sensitive to the sorrows of others, Vienna with a handsome surplus. After in the hospitals and clinics of Berlin, Stuttgart, Paris, London and Edinburgh.

About ten years ago he returned to America and resolved to settle in Brooklyn, although his professional friends assured him that Brooklyn was so crowded with doctors that he could not possibly make a living. But he had conquered "impossibilities" before, and difficulties sharpened his courage. He opened an office, at once entered upon a lucrative, high-class practice, and in the few years that intervened before his death he had risen to the first rank in his profession in Brooklyn and in New York as well. After beginning practice in Brooklyn Dr. Milbury made a second trip to Europe for the express purpose of investigating Dr. Koch's reported discovery of a cure for consumption by inoculation.

In 1893 Dr. Milbury married a beautiful and highly accomplished German lady, Miss Anna Schoeps, of Breslau, who made his home a delightful social resort. Mrs. Milbury was in Europe at the time of her husband's death, having sailed less than a month before. She is now on the ocean on her way back. Her brother, Dr. George M. Schoeps, with a number of eminent Brooklyn and New York physicians, was in constant and devoted attendance on Dr. Milbury, hardly leaving his bedside during his entire illness.

Dr. Mitbury was Ophthalmologist and Laryngologist to Bedford Dispensary and Hospital, which he was largely instrumental in founding, and was on the staff of the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary, and the Manhattan Eye and Ear Hospital. He was a member of the American Medical Association, New York State Medical Association, Long Island Medical Society, Physicians' Mutual Aid Association, New York Academy of Medicine, the Royal Arcanum, Brooklyn Institute, Central Congregational Church, the paid to Dr. Milbury's character is the high regard in which he was held by his professional brethern.

The funeral was held at his late residence, Friday evening, August 31st. The Rev. Dr. Behrends, Dr. Milbury's pastor, died a few months ago, and the services were conducted by the Rev. John F. Carson and Rev. Samuel M. Keeler, of Central Presbyterian church, and Rev. Charles T. Snow, of Marcy Avenue Baptist church, all of whom had been intimate friends of Dr. Milbury. It may be proper to note here a few of Dr. Carson's remarks. "One various occasion," he said, "I had heart to heart talks with our departed friend, one of three hours only a few days ago. There were three qualities in Dr. Milbury's character that strongly impressed me. First, his deep and tender love for every member of his family; second, his sensitivenss to public opinion; third, his splendid loyalty to the loftiest of his porfession. Early in life Dr. Milbury, so he told me, determined that he should give to the sufferers who came to him for advice and relief, the very best that education, science, and the mechanical appliances of his profession could give. Nothing less than the highest satisfied his conscience or his amoition. He regarded his calling as a sacred mission. He was an artist, not an artisan. In spite of many difficulties, he had possessed himself of the world's knowledge of the divine art of healing, and all was made the servant of his chosen specialty. His days at Baltimore, Cincinnati, Vienna, and other famous universities were not his days of hardest study. Till the hour he was stricken down, Dr. Milbury burned the midnight oil informing himself of the world's progress in his profession. All the great medical journals were to be found in his study, and he counted no sacrifice too great that he might place in his office the most improved instruments and appliances. And in all, was the steadfast Christian faith that found expression in almost his last breath in the words, "My precious Saviour! Jesus saves me!"

Dr. Milbury's father and mother, four brothers and one sister survive him.

SORE THROAT

Mr. Chas. Johnston Bear River, N. S., says: "I was troubled with hoarseness and sore throat and after taking three bottles of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup I was entirely cured.

A Good Woman.

A good woman! Heaven holds nothing sweeter. Not even the whitest asphodel that grows upon the heavenly hill is purer. To know a good woman in the security of her excellence is to stand within the presence of God's angels. She is tender, sympathetic, Travelling costs money, and Dr. Milbury true, infinitely loving and without guile. Her had about exhausted his savings. But with heart is a pavillion wherein one hides in the the courage and resolution that characterized | times of trouble; her wisdom is a shield, and his entire life, he started out, not noubting her devotion a strong and staunch deliverthat he would safely carry through his adven- ance. She is never loud, nor ribald, nor ture. At Smyrna, in Asia minor, he found coarse; as well might a flute become a foghimself completely without funds. He "put horn. She is full of merry conceits, yet up his shingle," cleared seventeen hundred never boisterous. She is brimming over dollars in three months, and resumed his with joy and mirth, but her laughter travels. At Alexandria, Egypt, his purse never springs from a source that works had once more run empty, again he hung out harm or discontent to any one. She enough to complete his journey and reach eager to redress wrong, quick to champion the weak and defend the cruelly graduating at Vienna, Dr. Milbury studied oppressed. Children love her, woman trust her, men adore her. Her humanity keeps her near to earth, while purity draws her evermore towards heaven. There are a few types of her kind left on the sordid old earth and God be thanked for it. Amid the preponderance of the other sort of womankind the sweet beneficence of her presence is like the growth of an occasional rose in a planlation of nettles. -Le Couteula.

"I Can Eat What I Like."

Many people suffer terribly with pain in the stomach after every mouthful they eat.

Dyspepsia and indigestion keep them in constant misery.

After trying the hundred and one new-fangled remedies without much benefit, why not use the old reliable Burdock Blood Bitters and obtain a perfect and permanent cure?

Here is a case in point: "I was troubled with indigestion and dyspepsia for three or four years, and tried almost every doctor round here and different dyspepsia remedies, but got little relief. "I then started using Burdock Blood Bitters, and when I had finished the second bottle I was almost well, but continued taking it until I had completed the third bottle, when I was perfectly well, Before taking B.B.B. I could scarcely eat anything without having a pain in my stomach. Now eat whatever I like without causing me the least discomfort." — MRS.
