How Women Read.

Ignorance on the topics of the day is needless, and so is the lack of interesting conversationalists of both sexes. A woman who has learned to read may get all the information she needs by a careful perusal of one dai'v newspaper and an opportunity to talk over affairs with somebody who is perhaps better posted, perhaps not better fortified than the ordinary woman. It is an excellent practice to read every subject that interests the world, and that thing is not always done in the hurry of everyday life. Nearly every woman reads the newspapers after a fashion -the weddings and other social events, the crimes, scandal and some of the general news. How many ever read the editorial pages, from which better information on current events can be obtained than from any page in the paper? Men turn to editorials the minute they unfold the sheet, do it instinctively, because they have learned where to place the best reading matter. - Pittsburg

A Good Cure.

THE GRODER DYSPEPSIA Co.' L'T'D.

St. John, N. B. GENTLEMEN, -- For over one year I suffered with what the four doctors I consulted in N. H., called dyspepsia. For hours at a time every day I suffered the most excruciating pains. The cramps would double me up so that I would have to groan. I would vomit up everything I ate for days at a time. I was terribly wasted and so weak that I could scarcely raise a teacup to my mouth. Nothing 1 could get would do me any permanent good. Finally a friend persuaded me to try Groder's Botanic Dyspepsia Syrup. I took four bottles and am now able to do a good day's work. It is six weeks since I finished the last bottle. I eat anything I ever was fond of and suffer no inconvenience. I send you this voluntary testimonial, hoping that you may use it and that some one who reads it may be benefitted by the ase of Groder's Botanic Dyspepsia Syrup as I have been. Yours truly,

For The Horses.

Dip the bridle bits in water in winter weather before putting them in the horses mouths. If you doubt it put your tongue to a frosty nail.

Uncheck while standing, and blanket in cold weather.

Horses like a kind voice, and are not deaf as a rule. Don't yell at them. Horses get tired and nervous and hungry

WIDEMAN TALKS.

REFEREE - IN - EQUITY. The Clay Potter Who Escaped Being Crippled for Life by Almost a Miracle.

> A. N. Wideman of Duntroon, Ont., Interviewed in Toronto-The Most Hopeless Case of Rheumatism on Record-A Living Monument to the Power of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

TORONTO, Feb. 26 — The wonderful escape of A. N. Wideman, which found its way into the newspapers a few weeks ago, it still a subject of interest here. He will be remembered as the man who was so frightfully crippled with Rheumatism, being twisted and contorted out of shape.

He was fairly snatched from a miserable death by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and he has been one of the greatest upholders of Dodd's Kidney Pills in Canada ever since.

Mr. Wideman still has to use a stick when he walks as the disease has left him with one leg shorted than the other.

With this exception, and with the defect due to the breaking of his teeth from taking mercury medicines, Mr. Wideman is as weil as ever he was in his life.

"I never heard anything like the way Dodd's Kidney Pills worked in my case," he said. "They drove the Rheumatism clean out of my system. You know work was slack in the earthernware works, and I took a chance to work in the harvest field. I got soaked several times with rain and that brought on the worst attack of Rheumatism I ever heard of. I was in bed five months. My legs were twisted out of shape, the toes pointing inwards. Well, nothing the doctor could do did me the least good. My teeth broke off from the mercury he gave me, that was all."

"How did you come to take Dodd's Kidney Pills?" Mr. Wideman was asked. "A neighbor of mine, Mrs. Boyer, got me to try them. I did so to please her, but continued their use because they were curing me.'

"And you ascribe your present health and strength to Dodd's Kidney Pills?"
"I certainly do. If it hadn't been for Dodd's Kidney Pills I would be in my grave at this miaute," said Mr. Wideman emphati-

BACKACHE

Weak, Lame, Aching Backs, the Result of Sluggish, Inactive Kidneys.

Backache is in reality kidney ache. The kidneys become clogged, and falter in their work of filtering the blood. Backache is n ware's warning that the kidneys are on strike, and that the blood is going through the system laden with foul poisons, which will cause Bright's disease, dropsy, diabetes, rheumatism or other equally painful and fatal complications.

Prudence tells everyone suffering with backache to set their kidneys right. The experience of tens of thousands of people tells them that to accomplish this there is no means so successful as the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills-the world's greatest kidney cure.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure permanently by making the kidneys healthy, active and vigorous. They are purely vegetable, act naturally and directly on the kidneys, and are wonderfully efficacious. As a prompt and positive cure for kidney disease, liver complaint and all the complications of these filtering organs, they are unapproached by any remedy ever discovered.

buried some of the Dublin Fusilers alive. poor devils, because they were wounded, and the Dublins, since they have been reinforced, are like a lot of mad men, thirsting to get at the Boers. The other day a troop of cavalry went out reconnoitering, and saw three of troops tied up to three distinct trees, and each of them had about twenty shots in them, which the Boers had made. And to see some of the houses that the devils have looted is shocking. Doors smashed in, furniture and goods that they could not carry away they smashed to atoms."

True Ideals.

It was always aspiration rather than am bition by which I felt myself stirred. I did not care to outstrip others and become what is called "distinguished," were that a possibility, so much as I longed to answer the voice that invited, ever receding, up to invisible heights, however unattainable they might seem. I was conscious of a desire that others should feel something coming to them out of my life like the breath of flowers, the whisper of winds, the warmth of the sunshine and the depth of the sky. That, I felt, did not require great gifts or a fine education. We might all be that to each other. And there was no opportunity for vanity or pride in receiving a beautiful influence and giving it out again - Lucy Larcom.

"It's the devil for any one to tell me a secret, for it is sure to come out inprint."—HAZLITT.

Pope knew about human ambition, when he wrote the following about a minister acquiring and losing office. "A man coming to the water side, is surrounded by all the crew; everyone is officious, everyone making applications, everyone offering his services; the whole bustle of the place seems to be only for him. The same man going from the water side, no noise made about him, no creature takes notice of him, all let him pass with utter neglect! The picture of a minister when he comes into power, and when he goes out. Regarding "Party Zeal," the same author says:- "There never was any party, faction sect or cabal whatsoever, in which the most ignorant were not the most violent; for a bee is not a busier animal than a blockhead. However such instruments are necessary to politicians, and perhaps it may be with states as with clocks, which must have some dead weight hanging at them to help and regulate the motion of the finer and more useful parts.

To entertain gracefully is an art seldom to be attained unto but by long custom and use. Persons who have experienced the hos pitality of the English gentry say there is nothing comparable to it. One must not confuse with the English gentry, the secondrate Cockneys, often met in this country, and who almost always claim ancestry, certainly as far back as to Adam, and a relationship with innumerable earls and lords. Of such, steer shy. They are positively sure to be fakirs, lights to lead astray the unwary. A gentleman boasts of nothing, not of his ancestry, not of his wealth, not of his learn ing, not of his piety. He is modest in his claims, and this is particularly the case with the English gentleman. We see very little of him abroad, for when he travels he keeps pretty well to himself. We often hear the question asked, "What is So and So like in his own house?" By this is meant, "Is he a gentleman?" in the true sense of the term The host who loses and drops his own personality in the entertainment of his guests, who refrains from wearing evening clothes, because he knows one of his guests is minus that desirable part of his wardrobe, who makes himself agreeable to the "forlors ones" of his guests, has anyway learned the first lesson towards entertaining properly. I have been at houses where the host or hostess actually made fun of such and such a guest -- think of such rudeness in one's own house. I have even see the new-rich nose turn up at respectable and honest poverty How many generations will it take to make ladies and gentlemen of such? It makes one tired to think of the generations which will surely be as the sand of the sea in number. Of the true entertainer, the well-tried man these lines are appropriate:--"It might have been our own,

So free from grudge, so liberal was he, So kind and large his hospitality.'

The Business Woman's Trials.

A woman who has been compelled by circumstances to keep house and support herself and several small children for some years by the ex-rcise of her professional talents said: "Until a woman has tried it she never knows what it means to be housekeeper and business woman combined, and few can stand the strain for very long. I break down every little while, but just now I do not see any other way to adjust matters. But it is this division of duties that gives the opportunity for the criticism sometimes heard relative to women's and men's ability in business. A man is not expected to do anything else but attend to business during business hours and then amuse himself in the way he best likes afterward But a woman is not only expected to thoroughly understand the business in which she is interested, but to know how to conduct a house in all its details and, furthermore, to put this knowledge into practice,
