THE MCGILL-LAVAL INCIDENT.

There is one good feature about the recent row between Laval and McGill universities the unfortunate result. Each party is tired of the extreme length to which its mutual sympathizers went. The row was ended by Parliament. The Liberals blamed the row for starting the race and religion and the Conservatives accused Mr. Tarte for instigating the trouble. Most notably the good sense of Canada will not tolerate such a sentiment, whoever started it, to prosper.

The immediate cause of the trouble was undoubtedly the act of the McGill students. They had no right to go to Laval en masse to impute, as they clearly did impute, disloyalty. There is always more or less jealousy between rival colleges in the same place. One student is not likely to take gratuitous advice, let alone demands, from another. Nor, was it altogether unusual that the Laval students should use force. We are willing to make all allowances for the exuberance of youth, and to let boys have a time once in a while, but there is a limit, and the gentleman should be allowed to be merged in the capricious mob.

It is an ill-taken time to impute disloyalty to the French Canadian when worthy representatives of his race are so bravely fighting with Africa that they win the special credit of our generals. To expect the French Canadian to be so boisterously loyal to the English Canadian is absurd. It is not for him to be so. He is quite loyal to the Queen, and thoroughly satisfy Her Majesty's army and the army generals. We are equal in Canada and no man should be supported simply because he is a French Canadian. To take a different view is to announce Confederation, a failure.

The reports show that good feeling between McGill and Laval has come about. Laval students, we are certain, had nothing to do with the heinous crime of burning the Empire's flag. That was done by the flames, which find their abiding place in any large city. We may be quite sure it will not be repeated.

This much is plain. College students should no more be allowed to take the law into their hands, than any other mob. It is well, it would seem, to open the Lunatic Asylum and let the inmates loose to run the streets at their own sweet will.

Exciting Journeys Through The Air.

London Tit-Bit: One of the saddest of modern balloon tragedies was that in which Captain Powell, of Malmesbury, and a member of the House of Commons, lost his life. Captain Powell, accompanied by Captain Temperley, ascended from Bath in the war balloon "Saladin." At Bridport the machine descended suddenly and Captain Temperley was blown out and severely injured. Before it could be secured the "Saladin" rose swiftly, carrying its unconscious occupant—Powell—with it. For many weeks the whereabouts of the M. P. was veiled in mystery, and it was surmised that he had fallen into the sea and was drowned. Fragments of a wrecked balloon were found on the outskirts of Spain some months afterwards, but whether it was the unfortunate "Saladin" or not proved.

By the death of Mr. H. F. Coxwell, who died at Seaforth in his eightieth year a few days ago, one of the most famous balloonists of the century has passed away. It was while in company with James Glaisher, F. R. S., in September 1863, created a record by rising to a height of seven miles. On this occasion the valve cord became entangled, and owing to the rotary motion of the balloon, Mr. Coxwell climber to the ring to untie it, but there was hoar frost all around the neck of the areostat, and the moment his hands touched the metal they were frozen and rendered useless. He put his hands, however, over the ring and in this manner managed to drop back into the car. In the meantime, when at the elevation of three and three quarter miles over Wolverhampton, Mr. Glaisher found his eyesight dimmed, and soon afterwards his arms fell powerless; then he seemed to have no limbs left, his back lost all muscular power and he became unconscious. When Mr. Coxwell awoke back into the car, this was the condition in which he found him. Coxwell's hands were useless, but he fortunately managed to seize the valve-cord with his teeth, and some vigorous pulls brought them speedily into a warmer temperature, and descent was ultimately made in safety.

In 1885 two Frenchmen, by name Dubois and Farenza, ascended at Antwerp, hoping and expecting to descend at Brussels; but the wind proved contrary, and the balloon was wafted towards mid-ocean. All attempts to alter their course were fruitless. Haze and cloud were all around, a lonely sea was beneath. Two days and two nights were spent high up over the waves. On and on the swept, until one of the aeronauts fancied he could descry a dark line of land in the abyss below. They were fortunately able to manipulate the valve-line, and they ultimately descended in a field in Kent.

The first successful trip over the Channel was made by Jeffries in 1784. The adventurer ascended at Dover, and his journey proved to be an alarming one. The balloon was caught in a violent gust of wind, the occupant lost control of his vehicle, and was swept up into dense banks of clouds. It was impossible for him to take any observation or to attempt to guide his course. He gave himself up for lost, and expected his grave would be a watery one; but happily fortune favoured him, for he descended safely in the Forest of St. Germain.

In 1808 two Parisians had a dispute, and they decided to adjust it by a duel. Not content with the ordinary methods of settling quarrels, a novel idea was ventilated and adopted. They obtained a pair of large balloons, and each man, accompanied by his seconds, entered one of the aerial chariots. When they had attained a height of 1,000 feet from the ground, and at a signal from the seconds, the combatants were to fire at each other with blunderbusses of formidable dimensions. After two or three shots had been fired one of them managed to put a bullet through the balloon of his adversary. The silken covering was torn open, and the duellist, together with his seconds, was dashed to pieces upon the roofs of the houses below. The other balloon sailed on, and came down some hours later in a field many miles from where it ascended.

Peculiar Statutes.

New York Sun: A Georgia statute makes it unlawful for any one to fire a gun or a pistol on Sunday in the Cracker State. A statute of Colorado makes it unlawful to dock a horse's tail. A Florida statute makes the manufacture and sale of cigarettes a misdemeanor unless they are filled with Cuban or Florida tobacco. A Massachusetts law makes it a misdemeanor for the period of three years following the adoption of the statute to shoot an eagle in that State and Michigan has adopted a system for state regulation of barber shops by creating a Board of Barbers and making obligatory an official certificate for barbers. The State of Pennsylvania has a statute regulating the use of second-hand bottles; Missouri has a statute for the inspection of malt liquors, Oregon has a law as to the composition of and the ingredients that may be used in candy, and Illinois has a law as to gold and silver plating, prescribing what may be done and what is prohibited in respect to the sale and display of plated ware in that State. These are but a few of the statutes adopted by State Legislatures within the period of a year, and a fair sample of the solicitude

Eczema Tortured A Child.

About three years ago I had to leave school with sore hands. My teacher said it was Salt Rheum or Eczema and told me to see the doctor.

Mother got some medicine, but it did me no good.

After I had suffered with the itching and burning about three months, mother thought she would try Burdock Blood Bitters.

I only took two bottles, when my hands got completely cured.

WAS CURED TO STAY.

Mr. Samuel Locke Cured of Kidney Disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

The Only Known Remedy for Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Dropsy, Diseases of Women, and all Other Kidney Diseases—Their Cures are all Permanent.

JORDAN BAY, N. S., Mar. 12.—Mr Samuel Locke, of this place, boasts that he has never known a moment's pain from his old complaint—Kidney Disease—since he began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills some years ago. This fact he claims—and his claim is certainly just and reasonable—proves that the cures effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills are permanent.

Mr. Locke's case attracted wide-spread attention, and was reported, and commented upon by newspapers throughout Canada. Several doctors prescribed for him but they all failed to do him any good. His Kidneys were badly diseased, and were daily growing worse.

At length, when all other means had been tried, and had failed, Mr. Locke decided to make a final effort, and to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. He began to mend as soon as he began to use them. Today, there is not a stronger, nor a healthier man in the district.

It is folly to suffer with Bright's Disease, Dropsy, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Lame Back, Heart Failure, Gravel, Gout, Stone in Bladder, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Urinary Troubles, Diseases of Women, Blood Impurity, or any other form of Kidney Disease for they, one and all, are easily, speedily, and lastingly cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night, and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"
