A United States Thought About Canada.

An editorial writer in the Saturday Evening Post makes the following pertinent remarks about the attitude of the United States toward Canada:-"The revival of interest in our relations with Canada is not surprising. The remarkable thing is that it has not come sooner. "Pan-Americanism" turns its eyes so exclusively to the southward that it forgets that a quarter of the area of the two Americas lies north of the Great Lakes.

Canada is the second of the American republics in extent, the fourth in population, sheet of latest designs to The Wells & Rich- golf and go fishing."-[Chicago News. and the second in wealth, commerce, enterprise and industry. Of course, she is called a part of the British Empire, and her people are enjoying thrills of delicious excitement just now over the visit of the heir to the British throne, but she is a republic for all that, and a much more democratic one than Mexico or Venezuela. So when we are making plans for the republican family in America, why should we not count in Canada ? The Canadian imports and exports exceed man, and the man who has a purpose. No those of any other country in the Western field is overcrowded for the original man Hemisphere except the United States. The Canadians are better customers of ours, in the aggregate, than any other people in the world except those of the United Kingdom, Germany and France, and in proportion to population the Canadians buy far more from us than even the inhabitants of those ccuntries. We sell to Canada more than to all the other American republics combined, with China and Japan thrown in. Yet our diplomatists perspire over Pan-American Conferences to improve our relations with Chile and Peru, and laboriously tug in the Concert of the powers in China, while we take so little interest in our vast Canadian commerce that we can hardly bring ourselves to take the trouble to reassemble the Joint High Commission whose work might double it. When we are so anxious for markets, why not develop this one? At present the Canadian who wants to buy goods in the United States has to pay a fine of thirty-three per cent. for not buying in England; yet in spite of that handicap we sell more to the Canadians than the English do. What might we not do if the advantage were on our side ? Our relations with Canada must and will be intimate in spite of ourselves. We can keep aloof from Mexico if we choose, for nature is not trying to force us and the Mexi-nature is not trying to force us and the Mexibe intimate in spite of ourselves. We can cans together. But we cannot keep aloof from Canada. Americans and Canadians navigate the Great Lakes together. They draw power alike from Niagara. They share the summer pleasures of the Thousand Islands. American money passes without question at the Canadian resorts, and the Canadian postal authorities find it necessary to paint notices on their letter boxes in Montreal, announcing that none but Canadian stamps should be used on letters mailed in Canada. American farmers find an advanthe in sending their grain to market by Canadian railroads and canals, and Canadian railroads feel the need of American winter terminals.

MRS. I. STEEVES, Edgett's Landing, N.B., writes on Jan. 18, 1901: "In the fall of 1899 I was troubled with a severe pain in the back. I could scarcely get up out of a chair and it gave me great pain to move about. I took one box of Doan's Kidney Pills and was completely cured. I have not been troubled with it since."

An Extremely Dangerous Practice.

Watts: "I wonder if dyeing one's hair is really as dangerous as the doctors say ?"

N. Peck: "You bet it is. An old Uncle of mine tried it once, and in less than three months he was married to a widow with four small children."

In the Pan-American aggregation it is a case of the United States first, Canada second and the rest nowhere. If the Dominion were an independent country, separated from us by five thousand miles of sea, we should be subsidizing steamer lines and call-

The Incompetents.

All occupations and avenues of endeavor are overcrowded to the indolent, the nerveless and the incompetent. There is no room anywhere for a lazy man without sufficient ambition to enable him to rise. The world is looking for the man who can produce results, the leader, the aggressive who can think for himself and is not afraid of hard work. The young men who are crying that there is no chance, that the trusts have ruined their opportunities, would not succeed anywhere.

The cry of overcrowded positions is a bugbear only to the weak and incompetent. Those who feel the power within them to make their place in the world never give "no chance" as an excuse for inaction.-October "Success."

The October "New" Lippincott.

The Complete Novel published in October strikes a different key from those recently presented by Lippincott's. Notwithstanding the title, "The Anvil" is "French." The author is R. V. Risley, of New York, a writer who excels in picturing the human emotions. A German philosopher, like Faust of old, is captured by a vision in a garden. His courting beging over the wall, standing on a wheel barrow, but it soon develops into most impassioned and unusual situations, which are so well told by Mr. Risley that the tale lives inevitably in the memory.

Though summer is over, supposedly the fiction season, the store of Lippincott's good stories is not diminished this month. Robert Herrick's "Polity of Nature" is an exceptionally brilliant tale of modern society. Caroline Lochart (Suzette) contributes a lively incident though it does not settle the vexed question of comradeship between the sexes, as this alliance is of the Damon and Pythias sort.

IN THIS MAN'S CURE.

Persuaded to try South Ameri-can Rheumatic Cure it proved its potency. Seven years pains dispelled forever in twelve hours.

I was Rheumatisms victim for seven years, being confined to my bed for months at a time. I had no faith in rheumatic cures I saw advertised, but I was persuaded to try South American Rheu-matic Cure and inside of twelve hours after taking the first dose I was free from pain-three bottles cured me."-J.
