THE DISPATCE

NINE BOILS. FOUR RUNNING SORES.

The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Some time ago my blood got out of order and nine large boils appeared on my neck, besides numerous small ones on my shoulders and arms. Four running sores appeared on my foot and leg and I was in a terrible state. A friend advised Burdock Blood Bitters, so I procured three bottles. After finishing the first bottle the boils started to disappear and the sores to heal up. After taking the third bottle there was not a boil or sore to be seen. Besides this, the headaches from which I suffered left me and I improved so much that I am now strong and robust again.

Yours truly, MISS MAGGIE WORTHINGTON, Golspie, Ort. Peb. 3rd, 1901.

WOODSTOCK, SEPT. 11, 1901.

LOCAL PATRIOTISM.

During the last eighteen months, perhaps the most common topic of conversation in Canada has been patriotism. As usual the question has been discussed in its larger bearings and the possibility of it having a very interesting local application has been entirely ignored.

The picture of a world wide empire of which Woodstock is a part is certainly pleasing to the fancy, but mooning about these large and far away ideas has not the same vitalizing effect on national growth that a little practical work nearer at home produces.

which have multiplied from a small number brought over from Siberia by the government. The station is situated four or five miles from the cape, behind the mountains which overlook Bering Sea. Here there are eight Eskimo boys, from fifteen to twenty-three years old, who have been trained for the last three or four years to care for the herd. Mr. Lopp himself took his first lessons from Laplanders brought over to show men on the Alaskan side how to herd deer and make them thrive. These Eskimo boys have set at rest all doubts regarding the adaptability of the Alaskan natives for this work.

"Lopp's boys," as they are called by the whalers and government officers who visit the cape during the summer season, are as intelligent as any natives that can be found in Alaska. They occupy their time while watching the herd in carving very skilful representations of native scenes, using wood and walrus ivory for the purpose.

The famous herd of Artisarlook, or Charley, as he was known to white men in Alaska, is still located at Point Rodney. Artisarlook died last summer, but Mary, his widow, cares for the deer, which now number several hundred. Here, also, the native boys have learned how to herd the animals, and some deer have been broken to sledges. The reindeer does not travel fast, seven miles an hour being the swiftest. In Alaska, owing to the roughness of the region, the driver generally finds it safest to walk, or rather run, behind the sledge. While being driven the animal is a curious combination of timidity and stubbornness. Harsh treatment will frighten it so that it runs beyond control upsetting the load, breaking harness, and leaving the driver in a state of hopeless anger.

The deer is guided by a single rope or strap hitched to its head, and a skilful driver knows that a gentle pull on this rope in the direction he wishes the deer to take is better than a hard pull. A more vigorous suggestion might be resented by the deer, and his stubbornness would probably lead him to take the opposite direction or to stop altogether and refuse to go on. The whole number of domesticated deer in Alaska is now a little more than three thousand. The food and clothing furnished by reindeer are not to be despised even by white people. The meat was brought over herd of more than five hundred reindeer, shop. If you haven't anything to pay with, you can leave something with us as security.'

"I didn't say I hadn't any money," the customer rejoined. "I said I had no change. Please take the amount of my check out of this,"

And he took a fifty-dollar bill out of his pocket-book, and handed it to the astonished cashier.

"It will be better to pay it now, perhaps," he added, "than to leave something as security, for you will not be likely to see me here again."

Then picking up his change, which comprised about all the money the cashier could find in the establishment, he bowed and walked out.

The Sufferings of Job.

If the agonies of Job were any worse than the tortures of itching piles from which so many people are now suffering he had much to endure. The difference is that there is no reason for any one to endure the miseries of piles for a single day. Dr. Chase's Ointment has cured tens of thousands of cases and is absolutely guaranteed to cure each and every case of piles. 60 cents at all dealers or by mail from Edmanson, Bates &Co., Toronto.

Not Extinct, But Getting Scarce.

The horse is not extinct yet, but persons in the horse business report that he is scarce and costly. They say that in the neighborhood of New York five dollar horses have been bringing $40 or $50, and $50 horses $150 or $200. The chief reason for the dearth given by a dealer quoted in one of the neighborhood papers is "electric scare." It may be remembered that it was given out two or three years ago that all the horsework was to be done by electricity. The farmers and breeders, it seems, took these assurances so much to heart that fewer colts were raised. Then the Spanish war put government in the maket for horses and mules; the Boer war has made a market for 50,000 more; the horse distemper early in the summer killed some; the extreme heat killed many more and, altogether, horses are scarce. Evidently it is going to take time to wean humanity from horses. It can't be done in a single generation, even though Edison's storage-battery turns out to be all that is hoped. "Harper's Weekly."

It is an unfortunate fact that Woodstock people, while they are ever ready to discuss peoblems of world wide empire, to paint the map a bright, bright red, and expatiate the superiority of British institutions to all others, seem in a large measure to lack the qualities that go to make a country strong and self contained.

To point out one thing in which Woodstock people are not fair to their town, a thing in which they are doing it a gross injustice ;surrounded by one of the most delightful sketches of country in this part of the world, our people utterly fail to appreciate it. With delightful picnic resorts on all sides of us, where do our picnic parties go for an outing? To Nickerson's Lake! The people of Houlton have taken a lake, very little better than our own lake at Lakeville, and have made it so attractive that very many of our people go over there to spend thier outings. Why do not our citizens take this question of pleasure resorts in hand and devote a little time and a little money toward developing a place i our own county where our young people can spend their spare time and surplus money.

This may seem an insignificant thing to discuss in the public print, but it is just one of a number of cases in which we do not appear to have a proper respect and appreciation for our own. In our school days we all recited with more or less heart thrills "Lives there a man with soul so dead," but what good did it do us if it only made us feel that it was up to us to beat the Boers. Of course that is one phase of patriotism, but let us not forget the vital, important, local phase of it.

An old copy book maxim teaches us that if we will look after the little things the greater things will look after themselves. This question of a pleasure resort is a little thing that should be looked after. A popular resort of this kind would make our county more at tractive, would keep money here that is now spent outside the county and would give our young people an added interest in their own home.

Reindeer in Alaska.

A newspaper correspondent, writing from Dutch Harbor, Alaska, asserts that reindeerherding bids fair to become almost as successful an industry in northern and western Alaska as it is in Lapland. It is hoped that the Lative population of Alaska will yet rely on this means of subsistence as universally as do the Lapps, to whom the reindeer supply food, clothing and the sole means of transportation.

Most of the herds in Alaska are thriving and multiplying. Reports from the reindeer stations are most encouraging, and it is generally admitted that the project has passed the experimental stage.

Paine's Celery Compound CURES NEURALGIA, BANISHES NERVOUS DEBILITY AND BUILDS UP THE WHOLE SYSTEM.

MRS. M. YOUNG, Jarvis Street, Toronto, Says:

"I Thank God and Paine's Celery Compound For My Renewed Health and Strength,"

When Paine's Celery Compound is used by sick and brokendown women, a solid foundation of health is quickly laid. The bowels are kept regulated, poisons in the blood are banished, neuralgia and rheumatism are expelled from the system, the appetite becomes natural, and sleep and sweet rest prove that perfect health has taken the place of sickness and disease. We urge every wife and mother to test the virtues of that medicine that "makes sick people well."

Mrs. M. Young, desiring to benefit suffering women, writes thus:

"I was a terrible sufferer from neuralgia and nervous debility, and was extremely weak and rundown. While in this condition I tried almost all kinds of medicines without any improvement. My sister finally persuaded me to try your Paine's Celery Compound. The first bottle helped me wonderfully, and, after having used six bottles my health is restored and I am now a new woman. I am pleased to say that Paine's Celery Compound is all that you represent it to be-a banisher of disease and a restorer of health. I thank God and Paine's Celery Compound for my renewed health and strength."

Wonders of the Heart.

All the blood in the human body passes through the heart in about three minutes. The heart beats 70 times a second, 4200 times an hour, 100,800 times a day, threwing out 2} ounces of blood a second, 656 Ibs. an hour, 73 tons a day. It is only when supplied with pure, rich blood that the heart, an organ 6 inches long by 4 inches wide, can accom-plish this enormous amount of work and rebuild its own wasted tissues. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most effective treatment available for heart affections because it forms new, red corpuscles in the blood and gives to it that life sustaining quality which is necessary to the health of every organ.
