A New African Empire.
(New York 'Daily Tribune'.)

A few years ago all we heard about the vast region now known as Rhodesia was news of fighting with Lobengula and his Matabeles, and tales of the alleged rediscovery of King Solomon's mines. For the last year or two little has been heard at all, the interests of Rhodesia having been concealed behind the more sensational doings in the Transvaal and other South African regions. True, a considerable force was recruited in Rhodesia and sent down to assist the British at the Cape. But of the actual progress of the great realm founded by Cecil Rhodes the world had heard little. Perhaps it has cared little. If so it has made a mistake. For Rhodesia is a factor to be reckoned with seriously. From being an outlying wilderness tributary to Cape Colony it has already risen into an independent State, and the time may not be far off when in a South African Federation—United States, Commonwealth or Dominion—it will be the principal and dominant partner. At any rate, it contains within itself, as Mr. Spencer would say, the promise and potency of such an estate.

Rhodesia is not only vast in extent and in resources; it is making steady and even rapid progress toward development of those resources into full civilization. For some time it has had a civilized, organized and constitutional government, with all the appurtenances thereof. It has courts of justice and public schools. It is a member of the International Postal Union and has a fine system of daily mails. It has railways and telegraphs, and the gospel of 'good roads' is being preached there with gratifying results. At Bulawayo, which a few years back was Lobengula's kraal and human slaughter pen, there are now a public library and six large schools, of which one is non-sectarian, one Episcopalian, one Dutch Reformed, one Jesuit, one Dominican and one Jewish. The natives are being educated, too, in fine contrast to the old rule in the Transvaal. In one district there are 475 white and 1,325 colored pupils, and forty-four white and seventeen colored teachers. As the greater part of the country is from three thousand to five thousand feet above the sea, the climate is agreeable and salubrious, and in winter it is positively bracing. There is a good water supply, and a campaign against mosquitoes is being scientifically waged, with the result that malarial fevers are being abolished.

The chief industries of Rhodesia at present are gold and other mining and the gathering of India rubber. There is reason to believe that in the former parts of it will soon rival the Witwatersrand of the Transvaal, and that in the latter it will rank with Brazil and Congo. There is, however, at present more need of agricultural development than of anything else. Once the country was densely populated and was generally under a high state of cultivation. But now agriculture is sadly neglected, despite its wondrous possibilities. In most occupations good wages are paid. Thus, at Bulawayo, artisans, such as carpenters, brick and stone masons, painters, tinsmiths and plumbers, and miners get from $5 to $7 a day, in addition to lodgings. At Salisbury book-keepers, clerks, hotel cooks, shoemakers and tailors get from $125 to $150 a month. The hours of labor are from eight to nine a day. Even Zulu domestics get $20 a month, with board and lodging. But when the cost of living is considered, these wages do not seem so large. Milk costs 25 cents a quart, and butter from 50 to 75 cents a pound. Salt and sugar cost from 10 to 12 cents a pound, potatoes 8 to 18 cents a pound, bread 12 to 18 cents, and fowls $1.50 to $2 each. A milch cow is worth $100 or $125, and a horse at least twice as much.

Such conditions are common to new countries which have been opened up by miners. But, as we have said, there is in Rhodesia an easy possibility of developing great agricultural resources, so as to make a proper balance between the production of food and other industries. With its area, resources and climate Rhodesia is capable of maintaining a population of scores of millions of the white race and of ranking among the great nations of the world. Thus far its beginning has been more auspicious than that of the Cape, of Australia, of Canada or of any British colony. Its further progress will be watched with deep interest by all who care to see the waste places of the earth filled up and made to blossom as the rose.

GOOD OPINIONS FROM EVERYWHERE

South American Nervine cures that hackneyed speech. "A trial will convince you." Carries with it no deception when applied to this greatest of Nerve treatments.

An influential gentleman recently wrote:—"I join with the thousands who have been benefited by South American Nervine in their good opinions of it. It was recommended to me by one who had been cured by it. I tried it and am cured, and I heartily pass the good word along—it's a wonder-worker to shattered nerves, and an excellent tonic."

IT SAVES OUR WOMEN!

Paine's Celery Compound BANISHES ALL THEIR PHYSICAL TROUBLES AND SUFFERINGS.

To tens of thousands of women of all ages, life is one long and dreary road of suffering, without an escape or turn. Few outside of their own sex have any idea of the agonies which some women endure. The troubles from which the majority of women suffer arise from functional irregularities, liver and kidney troubles, nervousness, impure blood and sluggish circulation.

For the complete establishment of physical strength, nerve force, and a vigorous, happy life, there is no medicine known to the medical profession equal to Paine's Celery Compound. This marvellous medical discovery of Dr. Phelps goes directly to the root and seat of the disease. It does its grand work without lessening the strength of the sufferer. From the first dose, Paine's Celery Compound infuses new life and strength. Mrs. B. Vincent, Adelaide Street, St. John, N. B., says:

"I am happy to let you know what Paine's Celery Compound has done for me. I suffered for many years from nervousness, female troubles, and my constitution was all run down. I tried many medicines, but received no benefit from anything until I used your Paine's Celery Compound. It is a medicine that has given me grand results. I can recommend it to all who are sick and suffering."

In the Holiday Seasons.

Here is a box. In itself it is not remarkable but a man is packing it. When man, unsmiling man, packs a box woman weeps.

See the man! He is not calm. His hair resembles a storm-swept wheatfield. He wears no coat, and his collar has playfully broken away from his shirt-stud. Upon his perspiring face is the look Napoleon used to habitually wear when he called upon his neighbors. The man has observed his sister pack boxes.

Everything fitted in so nicely that the microbes cried out that they were being suffocated; but he cannot make out how she did it.

He thrusts his hands into his pockets and makes a few remarks. But they are for the box and not for publication.

At last 'all is over but the closing exercise, and the man mounts on to the lid. He leaps upon it with both feet, and pounds and jams it. But between the hasp and the slot there is a great gulf fixed, measuring one-sixteenth of an inch.

At last! A click! The man steps majestically from off the lid with the flush of victory upon him, and notices two tennis shirts and a pair of socks under the bed.

It Strikes the Heart

Not only is the victim of Rheumatism a constant sufferer, but he lives in continual dread that the disease will reach the heart, which means sudden and unexpected death. Rheumatism can only be cured when the uric acid is removed from the blood by the healthy action of the kidneys. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills make the kidneys healthy and vigorous, and so gradually and thoroughly cure rheumatism by removing the cause. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box.

Healing the Smart.

Everyone who has known the King of England concedes that he is a man of tact, and in the best sense a good fellow, and even a Yankee paper will sometimes acknowledge these facts. Sometimes his exalted position forces him to take an authoritative course which his kindness of heart may cause him to deplore.

One night some distinguished men were at his house, and one of them, after dinner, took his place at the piano, and began to sing a vulgar song. Every eye, save that of the singer, was turned on the Prince of Wales. He made no effort to disguise his disapproval, and moved his chair slightly. A terrible silence fell upon the room, but the singer took it for attention and kept on.

The Prince coughed and fidgeted, and then, as the offender continued, he, oblivious, began talking. He talked more and more loudly, and the Prince, who looked round, and grew crimson, like had been snubbed. There was no mistake about it.

There the matter might have ended, as far as the Prince was concerned, but there it did not end. The guests of the evening went away and told of their comrade's disgrace. The papers caught it up, and made the most of it. The singer was, so far as England was concerned, socially and professionally undone.

This sequel came to the ears of the Prince, and he was sorry. The man had deserved punishment, but he had not deserved ruin. So at the next entertainment where he sang the Prince and Princess of Wales were present. They sat in the front of their box and warmly applauded a man who had been punished enough without the interference of their fellows. Then they sent for him and his wife, chatted cordially with them, and did not forget to have the circumstances duly chronicled in the papers.

HEART "STARTS"

Does the slightest effort excite the Heart, quicken the breathing, induce suffocation, fluttering, palpitation or excruciating pain-spasms? You need no surer symptom of disease, for when the heart "starts" the heart is sick.

Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart is a heart specific. Under its sway, any of all these sensations of distress will vanish like dew before the morning sun. It is winning golden encomiums every day as a never-failing treatment. One dose gives relief in thirty minutes. A few bottles will cure the most stubborn case.

Troubles Of A Lady Lecturer.

A certain lady lecturer tells two good stories against herself.

"I was on a tour through the provinces," she says. "One night, as I appeared on the platform in a small town, the chairman introduced me to my audience in the following guileless way:— 'You have heard of Mr. Gladstone, the grand old man. Let me now introduce to you the grand old woman.'"

"This was intended as a sincere compliment.

"On another occasion a bluff old farmer, who boasted of his ability to look on all sides of a question, announced me as follows:—

"This lady's come here to talk about her rights," he said. "She's hired the hall, and so she's got a right to be here, and if any of you don't like what she's got to say, you've got an equal right to walk out in the middle o' it."

Bronchitic Asthma.

Is now easily cured, not by pouring nauseous destructive drugs into the stomach, but by inhaling Catarrhazone. Drugs do more harm than good, but the soothing, healing medicated air that Catarrhazone supplies to the lungs and bronchitic tubes cannot fail to benefit. Catarrhazone prevents those smothering spasms and headache, cures the cough and makes breathing easy. Universally used; doctors recommended it; druggists sell it 25c. and $1.00.
