Dr. Barbour, of Fredericton, will have charge of the camp, and as he is very popular with the boys, and has had lots of experience, the camp will be very successful under his leadership. R. B. JONES.

No MORE successful play than "The Prisoner of Zenda" has been produced during the present generation. When Anthony Hope's novel was published it found immediate favor with the reading public, and even today there is a steady sale for it. The dramatization of the novel was even more successful than the book. The first run in New York exceeded 300 nights playing to capacity at every performance. Shipman Brother's company which presents the romantic comedy in this city at the Opera House on Wednesday evening June 26th is said to compare most favorably with Mr. Daniel Frohman's production. The dual role of Rudolph Rassendyll and King Rudolph V. is played by that sterling young actor, Elmer Buffham, who was leading man with the Lyceum Company for several seasons. Princess Flavia is Miss Helen Bell who played this role in Mr. Frohman's company. A carload of special scenery is carried by the company.
