Men and Beasts.
I once had a trainer, an old Irishman, who had served in a British regiment in India, and who knew the way of tigers in every detail. He taught three of them to do more work in the show arena than I have ever seen done by tigers. I have seen him sitting down between two of them at rest times during rehearsals and examining their claws to see if any of them were sore or split. Any one who has ever tried that with even a house cat knows that it strikes the animal nature as an unwarrantable familiarity, but they never did more than show their teeth and whine, and that in half playfulness. One day he got very drunk. I had never known him to transgress before. Before he was noticed on his return to the cage he had gone in with his tigers and fallen in a heap on the floor. The other keepers tried to take him out of the cage, but to have done so would have meant a bitter and bloody fight with the three striped ones. They guarded him all night in his drunken slumber. The next time he put them to work, however, they balked, and he could neither persuade nor drive them. They had ceased to trust him, or something of that sort, and his usefulness with them was at an end completely.—F. Bostock, in 'Frank Leslie's.

The Future of Palestine.
The optimistic speech of Mr. Zangwill last week, concerning the commercial future of Palestine, supported, as it was, with hard facts, will make the Bible students read, with increasing interest, the prophetic words of Scripture, which, in many particulars, seem to be upon the eve of fulfilment. It seems that the Jewish Colonial Trust has 120,000 Jewish shareholders, representing every country in the world, and the dream which they have had of once more becoming the natural tenants and masters of the Holy Land is slowly assuming substantiality. All the great powers are increasing their trade with Palestine, while, within the country itself, preparations are going forward which will make the Promised Land a veritable land of promise. All this is being done whilst the Jews remain "in unbelief" concerning Christ. We have abundant reason for awaiting a striking change in that country before long.—'The Christian.'

The True Tragedy of Life
is ill-health, disappointed ambitions, usefulness destroyed. Pathetic! nay, tragic. Poor blood, weak nerves, a tired brain. Is there hope? Yes! Because there is a cure. Ferrozone Tablets make blood; not blue blood, but the fluid that strengthens the whole body. Ferrozone does this quickly by improving digestion, stimulating assimilation and by imparting health and tone to the whole system. Mr. Garden druggist will tell you a great deal more about Ferrozone. Ask him to tell you of the wonderful curative properties of Ferrozone Tablets.

Battles of the American Civil War.
The campaigns and battles of the civil war were on a scale of surprising magnitude. There were more than a score of single battles, sometimes extending over several days, in each of which the losses in killed and wounded on the Federal side were greater than the aggregate of all our losses in all our other wars combined. How paltry seem the 5,000 killed and wounded in the war of 1812, or the war in Mexico, or the war with Spain, compared with the 14,000 at Shiloh, 15,000 at Chickahomany, 13,000 at Antietam, the same at Fredericksburg, 16,000 at Chancellorsville, 23,000 at Gettysburg, 16,000 at Chickamauga, 37,000 in the Wilderness, and 26,000 at Spottsylvania. The grand aggregate of destruction fairly staggers the imagination, accustomed as we have been for more than a generation to the figures; 94,000 killed by bullets, 186,000 killed by disease, 25,000 dead from other causes—a grand total of 304,000, about one in nine of every man who wore the uniform.

In no other war in all time has such respect been paid to the dead. Immediately after its close the Secretary of War was directed by Congress 'to secure suitable burial-places, and to have these grounds enclosed, so that the resting-places of the honored dead may be kept sacred forever.' In seventy-nine separate and distinct national cemeteries the bodies of nearly 300,000 soldiers who died during the civil war are interred, and the decoration of their graves with flowers on a fixed day has become a national custom. Some of the cemeteries contain each a silent army of over 10,000 soldiers, in serried ranks marked by the white headstones, on nearly half of which is inscribed "unknown." The world may be searched in vain for anything similar or kindred; there is no other such impressive sight.—General F. V. Greene, in 'Scribner's Magazine.'

Every Mother A Doctor

It is an anxious time for mothers when the little ones get their feet cold and wet, and come home hoarse and coughing, or awoken in the night victims of deadly croup. Then it is that mothers turn gratefully to Dr. Chase, who, through his great Recipe Book and famous family remedies, has time and again saved the little ones and older ones, too, from suffering and death. It is truly surprising how promptly Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine brings relief when the throat is sore and irritated, when the cold is tight in the chest, and the cough painful and distressing. It allays the inflammation, heals the sore and torn membranes, soothes the nerves and clears the air passages. People who know of the singular virtues of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine do not think of accepting the cheap substitutes which many druggists offer in its place; 25 cents.

A New Vegetable.
The division of botany of the United States Department of Agriculture has recently issued a bulletin on the chayote, a tropical vegetable. Known by twenty-eight more or less common popular names, although it is not widely distributed. The English-speaking residents of New Orleans call it the "one-seeded cucumber;" the Porto Rican call it "tallote" and "tayote." The British West Indians call it the "vegetable pear, and so on. In the opinion of the department of agriculture this vegetable will in time become familiar in the American kitchen. Paris and London have begun to import it from Algeria, and it is well known in many semi-tropical countries. The chayote weighs about half a pound, is green in color and resembles a summer squash. It may be boiled and served with cheese or fried like sweet potatoes. Its flavor resembles that of chestnuts, with something suggestive of the egg plant. Its roots, which produce something resembling yams, may be eaten, as may the sprouts, which approximate asparagus in flavor.

Canadian Dairy Products.
A glance at the year's trade in the dairy products, cheese and butter, suffices to show the wisdom of the advice which has been frequently given, to pay more attention to butter, even at the expense of cheese manufacture. Notwithstanding the fact that shipments of cheese to the Mother Country were, owing to the extremely cautious attitude of the before-bitten British importer, lighter than usual in 1901, the prices realized to the producer averaged from 1c. to 2c. per pound less, or say, an average of $1 per box less, than the season of 1900. Altogether, the decrease in returns from cheese amounts to something like $4,000,000, whereas in butter there was an increase in the years return of $2,000,000. As to the primary cause of the large falling-off in the British demand for our cheese, it is difficult to speak. The direct cause, of course, was the fact that importers over there, remembering their disastrous experience of the previous year, held aloof, even when the prolonged hot spell and the consequent poor flow of milk in this country last summer, would naturally have induced them to offer prices more in keeping with the views of holders here. Another contributing factor probably was the large quantity of cheese which reached British ports in a heated condition; and still another, which, unless altered, will do much to ruin the reputation which it has taken years to build up, is the fact that in too many cases cheeses leave the factories in a green, immature state. Even allowing for all these adverse points, however, an extraordinary diminution in the demand for Canadian cheese must have behind it some other reason; and the only one which seems likely is that, when the price for even a favorite article of diet goes beyond a certain point, stubborn John Bull will rather go without it altogether than pay such price. But if the cheese trade has been unsatisfactory during the past year, those who have placed their chief interest in butter, have had no cause to complain. The move made by several factories, of changing over from cheese to butter production, has proved warranted by the results. In this connection, it may be stated that, if every cheese factory in this country were turned into a butter factory, the output from them would not be sufficient to overstock the British market. The yearly consumption of butter in Great Britain is over 386,000,000 pounds, and one reason why Canadian is not in even greater demand there than is actually the case, is that full supplies cannot always be relied on. Referring again to the results of the past season, it is satisfactory to be able to note that prices averaged very fair throughout, and, at the same time, that there was a noticeable increase in the shipments. It is believed that the Danish shippers, who hold the best reputation in Europe for butter, are becoming alarmed at the inroads being made into their business by the Canadian article, and, that this lies behind the considerable reduction which they made in prices this fall. It is a fact, at any rate, that the discrepancy in prices between Canadian and the celebrated Danish butter is no less than ever before. The Monetary Times.

Depressed and Discouraged
It is remarkable how thoroughly the whole system is thrown out of order when the nerves become weak and exhausted. All energy and ambition seems to disappear, the mind wanders, memory fails and despondency reigns supreme. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food puts new vim and energy into the brain, nerves and body, builds up the system and prevents paralysis, prostration and insanity.

Not to be Beaten.
A certain Englishman will never give in to an American that America has anything of any kind in it to compare at all with the old country. He got into a very hot dispute lately with two Americans, and, having fought them as to every other production, they came to beef. "Well," said one of the Americans, "you will admit that our beef is good?" "Yes, the beef is all right here." "We send it over to England, and your people buy it." "Yes, that's true." Finding the old man weakening, the Americans discussed "backward," and got him rather entangled. At last, after a long talk, they rose to say "good-night," and the Englishman, as they went, seemed to reflect that he had been giving in too much. So he said:—

"Well, you nearly fixed me over the beef; but I don't give in altogether. The beef is good—all right. You send it to England—all right. The people buy it—all right. But they don't eat it, boys—they don't eat it. They make it into leather trunks, and sell it back to you at a tremendous profit!"

Two Illustrations of How Dr. Chase's Ointment Cures Itching Skin Diseases and Eruptions.
Mr. James McIsaac, 25 Elgin St., Ottawa, Ont., writes:—"I suffered with salt rheum for upwards of ten years, the skin on my hands cracking and breaking so as to make them useless. After trying all sorts of remedies in vain, I became discouraged, and thought my sufferings would never end. Last Spring I used Dr. Chase's Ointment and in a short time was perfectly cured."
Mr. E. Nicholson, Manor House, Winnipeg, Man., states:—"For several months I had been troubled with eczema on my ears, and for weeks I doctored with a prominent Winnipeg physician, but to no avail. I was induced by a fellow sufferer to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and am happy to say that the first application gave instant relief. I am completely cured, and have had no return of this troublesome disease."
There is no limit to the healing qualities of Dr. Chase's Ointment. It is remarkably quick to relieve and positively cures each and every form of itching skin disease. 60 cts a box, all dealers or Edmanson Bates & Co., Toronto.
