

Not New.

Don't think our Vapo-Cresolene is something new, for it isn't. For more than twenty years it has been extensively used for all forms of bronchial and throat trouble. Mrs. Ballington Booth said of it, years ago, that "No family where there are young children should be without Vapo-Cresolene." You breathe-in the vapor, it goes all through the bronchial tubes, soothing, healing, curing. It's pleasant, safe, economical.

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. The Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a lifetime, and a bottle of Cresolene complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. Illustrated booklet containing physicians' testimonials free upon request. VAPOR-CRESOLENE CO., 280 Fulton St., New York, U.S.A.

The Haven of Dreams.

When the weary day with its toils is o'er
And darkness broods over earth once more,
We gladly slip through the gates of night
And sail for a mystical shore.

In the soft winged shallop of sleep we glide
O'er a silent sea with a rhythmic tide
That lulls to rest each throbbing woe
Our aching hearts may hide.

And, though from afar no beacon gleams
Nor mariner's star sheds its guiding beams,
Yet ever the unseen ships go by,
Seeking the haven of dreams.

And when we've entered that haven fair
The wonders unfold that await us there!
Back in the meadows of childhood we roam,
Basking again in the lovelight of home.

The dear ones we've lost are with us once more,
Just as we knew them and loved them of yore,
And none ever doubts all is not as it seems
While we linger entranced in the haven of dreams.

So it seemeth to me that some shadowy night
When death draws the curtain we'll slip out of sight
And sail in a shallop like that we call sleep
To a wonderful land where no eyes ever weep
And the haven of dreams lieth white.

A GREAT DIAMOND ROBBERY.

History of a Noted Transaction in South Africa in Which American Thieves Played a Part.

Somewhat reconstructed and reinforced by well-known yankee crooks, the men who stole the famous portrait of the Duchess of Devonshire in 1876 from Messrs Agnew, the London picture dealers, successfully carried out a few years later, their projected great South African diamond robbery, the plans for which had been laid years before. It had been duly noted that the diamonds were sent by mail coach every fortnight a distance of 400 miles, to the nearest railway station, and hence by train to Port Elizabeth, to catch the mail steamer for Cape Town and England. The plotters had observed, in passing over the route, that the coach had to be ferried across the river, the flatboat being held by a wire cable. Their idea was to cut the cable on the night before the coach was due, and so let the boat free to float down the river. In that way, the delay of some hours would be gained—sufficient to prevent the train from catching the mail steamer to England. Consequently, the diamonds would then have to be kept for a fortnight in the Port Elizabeth Postoffice.

In Port Elizabeth, the acquaintance of the postmaster was made and cultivated. He was a jovial, unsuspecting man, and had no idea that his new friends were locating the safe and taking a wax impression of his keys. With this mould, they had returned to England, and, in due course, the services of a keymaker, who formerly kept a locksmith shop in Lambeth, were requisitioned at the suburban mansion. From this place the general director presently despatched a confederate, with his wife, to start housekeeping at Port Elizabeth, so that a place of refuge might be open to the thieves when the time came for the real work to be done, and no one could point to them as loitering strangers, without friends in the district. Thus carefully were all the plans laid, and then the prime movers in the plot arrived from England upon the scene of operations. Their first business was to buy a two-horse team and light Cape cart. Giving out that they were ostrich feather dealers, they started up country to the river, and on reaching the ferry, put up for the night. In the darkness, one of their number slipped out and cut the cable, so that, as had been foreseen, the boat was carried down the river eight miles, before it was discovered the next morning. The mail coach came to the opposite bank, but there it had to stop until the wandering ferryboat could be recovered and replaced. Everything followed as had been forecast. The mail train did not bring the mail in time to catch the steamer, and the two mailbags containing the diamonds were therefore deposited in the postoffice, and the rest was easy.

But there still remained the disposal of the stolen diamonds, which were of great value, and the plan which was conceived was equally well thought of. They waited a few months, and then one of the principals opened an office in the neighborhood of Hattogarden, and there, it is said, in the ordinary way of business, were sold to their real buyers—the merchants to whom the stones had been consigned—the stolen diamonds! While thus engaged, acquaintance was picked up with a dealer in uncut diamonds and a South African mineowner, who regularly received every fortnight diamonds to the value of £10,000 to £12,000. One of the trio arranged to accompany their victim to a Turkish bath, while the two others got at his clothing and took an impression of the key of the safe in which he usually locked up his diamonds. As fortune favored him, on the particular night when the thieves determined to rob his safe, it happened that no diamonds had arrived by the mail, so that the rogues had to be content with whatever other valuables the safe contained. Suspicion did not fall upon the gang, however, and they continued in the diamond trade until their stock was exhausted. It was valued at £70,000.—London Telegraph.

Catarrah Easily and Quickly Cured.

Poor remedies have given Catarrah the reputation of being incurable. But it is curable, easily and quickly, if the right method is employed. Snuffing an irritating powder or ointment up the nose, won't cure Catarrah, neither will tablets, douching or stomach medicines cure. These treatments fail because they are not far reaching enough. They only affect local conditions, but do not remove the cause, which is germ life established deep down in the lungs, bronchial tubes and nasal passages. Ordinary remedies do not reach these remote parts, but Catarrh-ozone does, for it is breathed through the inhaler into every air cell in the lungs, into every air passage in the head and throat. No matter where the Catarrh is, Catarrh-ozone will reach it. It kills the germs, heals sore spots, clears the nose and throat instantly. Universally used; pleasant and clean; guaranteed to cure or money refunded. Try Catarrh-ozone, 25 cents and $1.00. Druggists, or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

His Own Quotation at Last.

The Rev. Dr. B.—was what is commonly termed "a popular preacher," not, however, by drawing on his own stores, but by the knack which he possessed of appropriating the thoughts and language of other great divines who had gone before him to his own use, and by a skillful splicing and dovetailing of passages so as to make a whole. Fortunately for him, those who composed his audience were not deeply skilled in pulpit lore, and with such he passed for a wonder of erudition.

It happened, however, that the doctor was detected in his literary larcenies. One Sunday a grave old gentleman seated himself close to the pulpit, and listened with profound attention. The doctor had scarcely finished his third sentence before the old gentleman said loud enough to be heard by those near him, "That's Sherlock."

The doctor frowned, but went on. He had not proceeded much farther when his grave auditor broke out with, "That's Tillotson." The doctor bit his lips, and paused, but again went on. At a third exclamation of "That's Blair," the doctor lost all patience and, leaning over the side of the pulpit, "Sir," he cried, "if you don't hold your tongue, you shall be turned out."

Without altering a muscle the old cynic, looking the doctor full in the face, said, "That's his own."

Could Scarcely Walk

Mr. George Thompson, a leading merchant of Blenheim, Ont., states:—"I was troubled with itchy piles for fifteen years, and at times they were so bad I could scarcely walk. I tried a great many remedies, but never found anything like Dr. Chase's Ointment. After the third application I obtained relief, and was completely cured by using one box." Ask your neighbors about Dr. Chase's Ointment, the only absolute cure for piles.

King Edward's Luck.

King Edward has had eight brushes with death.

1. While a schoolboy at Oxford a boat in which he was rowing was over-turned. He saved himself by swimming ashore.

2. Upon returning to England in 1860, after his visit to the United States and Canada, his voyage was so delayed by storms that warships were sent out in search of the warship Hero.

3. In 1871 an attack of typhoid fever threatened to result fatally. His life was despaired of, but was saved through vigorously rubbing him with brandy.

4. In 1875, while tiger shooting in India, a tiger sprang upon the Prince's elephant. His life was saved by Colonel White of his suite, who killed the beast.

5. In 1898 he slipped and fell on a stairway, sustaining an accident to his knee which threatened to make him lame for life. Within a few months he had completely recovered.

6. On April 4, 1900, while en route to Copenhagen, he was shot at by a half-crazed youth named Sipido at the Brussels railway station. Two shots were fired, both of which missed their mark.

7. While on a visit to Emperor William of Germany, he was hunting stags, and two of them charged upon his horse. The horse reared and threw him to the ground. He was only slightly bruised.

8. He missed death by about 10 seconds on the Shamrock, Wednesday, May 22, 1901.

Shattered Nerves and Weakened System, THE AFTER EFFECTS OF LA GRIFFE.

Have You Had La Grippe?

Did it Leave any After Effects?

If it did, read what Mr. F. J. Brophy, of Montreal, Que., has to say of the good Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did him.

He Writes: I had a very severe attack of la grippe, which left me all run down, very nervous and extremely weak. I could not sleep at night and was troubled with profuse perspiration, which caused me much annoyance. Hearing of the good effects of Milburn's Pills, I began taking them. Much to my gratification they braced me up, invigorated my whole system, and made me feel like a new man. I can recommend them to all suffering as I did.

Where he Fell Down.

(New York Judge.)

The young man drew himself up to his full height.

"I have," he cried, "an unsullied character, an ardent heart, a versatile mind, and strenuous biceps."

The young girl yawned and seemed interested.

He was quick to push his advantage.

"I am the possessor of a town and country house, a yacht, a stable of thoroughbreds and a box at the opera."

She hesitated, and a slight flush betrayed that she was listening.

"I have got," he continued with a certain fierceness, "thirty servants, forty pair of trousers, fifty ancestors, three automobiles, six prize bull pups and an army commission."

Ah! she had found her tongue at last.

"And how many golf medals?" she lisped.

The young man shuddered.

He felt that he had lost. He had played nervily and high, but she was above his limit.

Soaking Corn For Horses.

A correspondent tells in Prairie Farmer how he prepares corn for summer feed for horses. I don't grind mine at all. I shell it and soak it with splendid results. Keep a vessel sweet and clean at hand. An earthen jar is best. Shell in the morning enough for the noonday meal and pour it fresh water. At noon place to soak what you wish to feed at night and at night what you wish to feed the next morning, putting a little salt on it each time, which will render it palatable, besides giving the horses the amount of salt they naturally crave. I am never troubled with horses having sore mouth or teeth from eating hard, flinty corn and besides, this digests well and seems to do them the fullest amount of good.

A SPRAINED ANKLE is not an uncommon accident. Pain-Killer relieves and cures almost as if by magic. The greatest household remedy. Avoid substitutes, there is but one Pain-Killer, Perry Davis'. 25c. and 50c.

Amateur Road Builders.

The average country road builder turns out an article that looks well in dry weather. A rainy season, especially in the spring, when the snow is melting and all earthwork is loosened by thawing frost, speedily develops the amateur character of the work. Many a piece of roadway on which township or road districts officials have expended days and weeks of thought and work has been washed away because it was a dam in the path of spring waters seeking the lowest level, and the portions left have been turned into quagmires because insufficiently drained.

For the masses not the classes, BEN-TLEY'S Liniment is the family medicine chest. Price 10 and 25c.

Nervous old lady enters a train, and when about to seat herself discovers a horrid man with a gun in the car.

"I hope that thing is not loaded!"

Frollicsome Sportsman: "Yes, ma'am, it is. However, I will insert this cork in the muzzle. There, quite safe now."

The timid one is satisfied.

Hard Lines—"Hard luck?" said the sourette earnestly. "Why, we hadn't been on the road two weeks before we had to pawn the magnificent diamond which was to be presented to the star by her admirers at every town."—[Indianapolis Press.
