

Tailors' Bad Backs.

The cramped up position in which a tailor works comes hard on his kidneys and hard on his back. Very few escape backache, pain in the side and urinary troubles of one kind and another.

Often times the first warnings of kidney disease are neglected—think it will be all right in a day or two—but sick kidneys won't get well without help.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

Are the best friend of kidneys needing assistance. Read the proof from a tailor who has tried them.

Mr. John Robertson, merchant tailor, Durham, Ont., gives his experience as follows:

"I had been ailing with my kidneys for more than a year when I commenced taking Doan's Kidney Pills, which I got at McFarlane's drug store, and am sincerely glad that I did so. The wrong action of my kidneys made me sick all over and caused me much inconvenience and pain. That is now a thing of the past, because Doan's Kidney Pills cured me. I have had no trouble or inconvenience with my kidneys or back since I took these remarkable pills, and you may be sure that I gladly recommend them to other sufferers."

A song welled up in the singer's heart
(Like a song in the throat of a bird),
And loud he sang, and far it rang,
For his heart was strangely stirred;
And he sang for the very joy of song,
With no thought of one who heard.

Within the listener's wayward soul
A heavenly patience grew,
He fared on his way with a benison
On the singer, who never knew
How the careless song of an idle hour
Had shaped a life anew.

A Compliment Thrown Away.

George R. Peck is here, which is not a fact of great importance, because he comes to Washington frequently, but it is useful as a peg to hang a story on. Last winter the Hon. Henry Watterson of Kentucky sat in a retired corner at Chamberlain's, when Senator Thurston walked over to his table.

"What is the matter, Watterson?" he inquired. "You look down in the mouth."

"I was thinking," said the editor, "of the decay of oratory in this country. Years ago we had many notable orators—Clay, Calhoun, Webster, and others—but to day you can count them on the fingers of one hand. Why, Thurston, I know of but three men in the United States who are entitled to be called orators.

"Who are they?" inquired Thurston. "Yourself, myself, and George R. Peck."

The Senator from Nebraska smiled contemptuously, and remarked:

"What in thunder is the use of dragging George Peck in? He is not here."—Washington Correspondence Chicago Record.

An Honorable Medicine

That appeals to the best judgment of the best people is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the greatest prescription of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous Recipe Book author. By acting directly and specifically on the liver, kidneys and bowels, this popular family medicine thoroughly cures liver complaint, biliousness, kidney disease, constipation and the accompanying pains and aches. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills act promptly and naturally. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box.

Why He Kept on Playing.

He had been playing before the house of a very irascible old gentleman, who furiously, and with wild gestulations, ordered him to "clear off."

The organ-grinder, however, continued to grind away, till finally the old gentleman had him arrested for disturbance. At the police court the magistrate asked him why he did not leave when requested to do so.

"Me no understand' mooch Ingleese," was the reply.

"Well," said the magistrate, "but you must have understood what he meant when he kept stamping his feet and waving his arms."

"No me not know," replied the Italian: "me tink he come to dance to my music."

The organ-grinder was discharged.—[Tit Bits.

Use Salad-Oil.

The French cook uses salad-oil with discretion and also with great effect in many ways of which the American housekeeper is ignorant. In particular is its assistance important in the concoction of certain soups and sauces. A teaspoonful of oil, for example, to every quart of split-pea, potato, or other soup lacking fatty stock, added just before the soup is taken from the fire, greatly increases its flavor and richness. The oil, too, may be used as a substitute for butter in compounding a brown or white sauce. Any kind of cold meat that is to be creamed or recooked in any way is improved by having oil poured over it, in the proportion of a tablespoon to a cupful of the meat, at least a half an hour before the latter is put in the blazer or saucepan.

DON'T FORGET ABOUT YOUR CORNS

If they give you pleasure and you have them as an adornment don't apply Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor for in twenty-four hours they would be entirely removed and their beauty destroyed. Now this is known to nearly everybody, including your druggist; ask him if it is not so.

De Wet's Joke.

A good story about De Wet is told in a letter received in Glasgow from an officer: Three Yeomanry scouts were taken prisoners near Lindley. De Wet told them he had an important dispatch for Gen. Rundle, and if they would undertake to deliver it they would be liberated. All three gave their word of honor to deliver it into Gen. Rundle's hands. They did deliver the letter, which was as follows: "Dear Sir: Please chain up these three devils, as I catch them every day. Yours, De Wet." M. A. P.

CATARRHOZONE AN EFFICIENT ASTHMA REMEDY.

Innerkip, Ont.—"Catarrhozone is certainly a very efficient remedy for Asthma. I have derived great relief from its use. A neighbor, also, to whom I gave a trial has been benefited to a similar extent." Mrs. Ed. Callan.

No greater boon has been extended to sufferers from Asthma. Catarrhozone is as certain a cure as anything in this world can be certain. Its effect is immediate and its prolonged use results in a radical cure. Several hundred testimonials from sufferers of this malady, enables us to make this strong claim. A trial will certify this. Sold by all druggists or sent post paid to any address in Canada or United States on receipt of $1.00. N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., Hartford, Conn.

A Young Woman's Mistake.

Some years ago a young American woman went to Yokohama as a bride. Her husband was professor of English in the Japanese university, and as he was very popular, all the members of the foreign community called upon the bride.

There were the high and mighty ambassador extraordinary from England, who came in his coach and four, with outriders and footmen in livery. There was the American consul-general, who walked over, on a pleasant evening, with his wife on his arm. There, too, were French and German officials in full uniform, their wives and their clerks, and, in fact, all the varied society of their little world.

Among the others was Captain Branscombe, a tall and thin Englishman, with a strange scar on his cheek and a queer, piping voice and silly laugh. The little bride could hardly listen to him without laughing at the queer manner and his absurd voice.

One evening, when a party of her friends was present, she went to the door and returned, imitating the English captain, mimicking his trembling step, his high, squeaky voice and nervous laugh.

It was an inimitable burlesque, but to the young woman's surprise the girlish sally was received first with stony silence then with an indignant outburst.

"Stop! stop!" her friend cried, in horror. "Don't you know? Haven't you heard? Captain Branscombe is a hero!" And then they told his story.

He was a captain in the British army when the English were having trouble in China. He was caught by the Chinese, who tried in every way to make him divulge military secrets. They starved him, beat him, and finally suspended him in an open cage at the gates of the city. It was hot in the blinding sun. He suffered horribly from thirst and flies, hunger and his cramped position.

Children stoned him, people poked him with sharp sticks, as if he were a wild beast. When the Chinese authorities threatened him further, he laughed. He was kept in that horrible cage many days until rescued by the British, ill, broken in mind and body, but loyal to his trust.

The English government gave him a high official position in Japan, and a princely salary in reward for his devotion. After that terrible experience his black hair had whitened, his voice changed to a piping treble, and the brave laugh that had defied his tormentors became this ridiculous-seeming falsetto, an almost incessant affection of the nerves.

When the young American woman met him again, in his uniform and gold lace, at the embassy ball, she listened to his voice with respect; and when the captain offered her his arm for a stroll on the terrace, she bowed low and accepted it as a great honor.—Youth's Companion.

Went Around the Spot.

Before Bismarck reconstructed the map of Europe and made a united Germany a dozen little principalities used to annoy travelers by stopping them at their frontiers until they had satisfied the custom house demands. A Yankee once had his carriage stopped at the frontier of a petty prince's country. The Herr Ober (controleur at the custom house) came forward and, much to his indignation, was received in a nonchalant way. The Yankee was ungentlemanly enough not to get out of his carriage or even to take off his hat. The Herr Ober sharply demanded the key of the tourist's trunks, which his subordinate began handling roughly.

"Here! Hands off!" shouted the Yankee. "I didn't come from the United States of America to be controlled by you. Put those trunks back. I'll not go through you at all. I'll turn back. I'm in no hurry and don't care for losing a day. You're no country. You're only a spot. I'll go around you." And he did.—London King.
