

That Spot.

Did you ever have that little tickling spot in your throat? Felt as if you could almost touch it with your finger, didn't it? How hard you tried to reach it, but couldn't! It's easy with Vapo-Cresolene, for you breathe it. There's nothing in the world equal to it for stopping these tickling coughs; and it's so pleasant, too. For asthma, croup, bronchitis, catarrh, and whooping-cough, it's the great remedy.

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. A Vapo-Cresolene outfit, including the Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a life-time, and a bottle of Cresolene, complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. Illustrated booklet containing physicians' testimonials free upon request. VAPOR-CRESOLENE CO., 180 FULTON ST., NEW YORK, U.S.A.

The Heavenly Meeting.

Tell, oh, tell me, book of visions, bright with promise, sweet with prayer,
Shall I know the angel faces that are waiting over there?
Shall I find my children children? Will my gentle mother lay
Her dear hand upon my forehead in the old, earth loving way?

Father, keep them as I love them, or, if changed to, other guise
May the heavenly transformation dawn but slowly on mine eyes!
Let me take them to my bosom once upon that shining shore
As I saw them when we parted in the love-lit days of yore!

—James Buckham in the Ladies' Home Journal.

How a Manufacturer's Secret Was Stolen.

London (Eng.) Standard: There used to be, close to Temple Bar, a dingy little chemist's shop. But, dingy as it was, the proprietor was a well-to-do man, for he had discovered the secret of making citric acid—that is, he had found out how to make it without the fruit, and had a monopoly of the output. But he was in a more fortunate position than most monopolists who own a manufacturing secret, since his was a process which requires no assistance, and, consequently, he employed no workmen. Experts came to order, sample, assort, and bottle his citric acid, but all that took place in the outside shop. Nobody but he ever entered his laboratory, and his secret was locked therein and in his mind. But such a secret was too valuable to be kept without an effort on the part of rivals to fathom it. And they succeeded. One day he securely locked the door of his laboratory and went home to his dinner. But on the watch for that event was a chimney-sweep, or, rather, a boy disguised as such, who was possessed of some chemical knowledge. He followed the poor chemist as far as Charing Cross, and saw him enter his house. Sure that he would not return for some time, the pseudo-sweep hurried back to Temple Bar, ascended the next house and dropped down the flue of the laboratory. There, of course, he saw all that he wanted to see, and returned to his employers, carrying with him the secret of making citric acid. A few weeks afterward the price of that commodity fell to a fifth of what it was when the monopolist alone sold it. The poor fellow was heartbroken, and died a few months after, without, however, discovering that his secret had been filched from him.

The Stomach's "Weal or Woe"

—The stomach is the centre from which, from the standpoint of health, flows "weal or woe." A healthy stomach means perfect digestion—perfect digestion means strong and steady nerve centres—strong nerve centres mean good circulation, rich blood and good health. South American Nervine makes and keeps the stomach right.—52

Epigrams in Fiction.

I always pray that I may never outlive my illusions or my front teeth, though all else may fail me.

Admiration is like porridge—awfully stodgy, but you get hungry again almost as soon as you've eaten it.

A good nose is an abiding resting place for vanity. You know that it will outlast your time and that age cannot wither nor custom stale its satisfactory proportions.

The quality of mercy should not be measured out by teaspoonfuls in a medicine glass, but should be sent round in a watering cart by the county council.

They've no sense, men haven't. The very best of them don't properly know the difference between their souls and their stomachs, and they fancy that they are wrestling with their doubts when really it is their dinners that are a wrestling with them.

It is the duty of all women to look happy—the married ones to show that they don't wish they weren't married and the unmarried ones to show that they don't wish they were.

Untold Agony from Salt Rheum

Mr. Chas. F. McLean, Palmerston, Ont., says:—"I suffered untold agony and misery for years with salt rheum in my feet. I tried almost every remedy I could hear of. I was told by the best physicians I could not get more than temporary relief. I was induced to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. After one or two applications I received great relief, and when I had used only two boxes I was completely cured. At all dealers, 50 cents a box."

Women Telegraphers.

Telegraphy ranks highest just now among the minor professions taken up by women. Year by year the numbers of girls who seek to earn a living at the wire is increasing.

In many large cities the Young Woman's Christian association now gives instruction in telegraphy free, as does the Cooper institute here, and the advocates of the profession argue that, while commercial life is overcrowded with women clerks, women bookkeepers and saleswomen, a telegraph operator after a few month's patient study can be sure of earning a salary sufficient to provide her with good clothes and a good lodging. When she becomes an expert, the reward is correspondingly increased.

Good women telegraphers earn from $15 to $25 per week in good posts and are frequently employed in places of trust where the pay is even greater. And most women telegraphers are usually very sure that they like their work and would not change their places with any saleswoman in the country employed at the same pay.—New York Sun.

Hogan Had Nerve.

"I hear Hogan is sick," said the barber.
"Yes, but he's better now," said the bailiff. "He went to a doctor, who looked him over and then wrote out a prescription."
"How much will that cost, doc?" asked Hogan.

"About a dollar and a half," says the doctor.
"Have you got that much to loan me, doc?" says Hogan.

"The doctor took the prescription back and crossed off all the items except 'aqua pura.'"
"You can get that for 10 cents," he said, handing it back to Hogan, "and here's a dime."

"Don't I have to take those things you scratched off?" asked Hogan.
"No," says the doctor. "Those are nerve tonics. You don't need them."—Chicago News.

Experienced Corns and Warts

Your unsatisfactory experience with other preparations should not influence you against "Putnam's." It was the first, the best, the only painless corn cure. Give it a trial. A corn treated with other remedies wouldn't do so again if it could help it. Give your corn a chance. Druggists who sell only the best always sell Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor.

Now The Contractor is Silent.

A certain well-known railway contractor has the reputation of looking after the minor details of his great business with keen eye. One morning, while out inspecting the work that was being done on a railway, he picked up a stray bolt lying by the side of the line. Then he walked to where the men were working on the road.

"Look here," he called out to one of the workmen, "how is it that I find bolts lying about wasted? I have to pay for these things you know."

"Why, where did you get that, sir?"
"I found it a little way up the line here."

"Oh, did you?" cried the workman. "I'm much obliged to you, sir, for I've been hunting for that that bolt all the forenoon, and wasted a morning's worth of your money. I knew there was one missing."

The august contractor concluded that he could give that workman no points on economy, and left in silence.

A Precaution.

Husband (going to his rich uncle's funeral)
—Put a couple of large handkerchiefs into my pocket, dear. The old gentleman promised to leave me £10,000, and I shall want to shed some appropriate tears.

Wife—But suppose when the will is read you find he hasn't left you anything?

Husband—In that case you had better put in three.—London Fun.

The Matter of a Semicolon.

A Russian military paper tells of a lieutenant who overheard a sergeant gives a recruit a short lecture upon his duties. "The military service," said the sergeant, "requires little prayer to God and a strict attention to the orders of a superior." Somewhat astonished at this singular definition of military duty, the officer ventured to ask the sergeant produce an ancient volume containing the following: "The military duty requires little prayer to God, and strict attention to the orders of a superior."

A Bona Diplomat.

"Pat, which of us do you think is the older?"

DR. WOODS' NORWAY PINE SYRUP

This season of the year when coughs and colds are so prevalent, it would be advisable to keep a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup in the house. It allays all inflammation and irritation of the breathing organs, and cures coughs and colds of young and old more quickly and effectually than any other remedy. Mrs. Arthur Molnskey, White's Point, Queen's Co., N.B., writes: "In the fall of 1899, I was taken down with a severe attack of La Grippe which left me with a bad cough. I tried several remedies and could obtain no relief and was almost in despair of a cure when a friend advised me to take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I took three bottles in all and it made a complete cure."

An Egg in a Bottle

This looks like a puzzle a good deal harder to explain than the king's question of how the apple got into the dumpling, and for this reason the secret of the trick will please young people who like to make their friends wonder. Like many other curious things, it is easy when you know how.

This is the way it is done: Soak a fresh egg for several days in strong vinegar. The acid of the vinegar will eat the lime of the shell, so that while the egg looks the same it will be soft and capable of compression. Select a bottle with a neck a third smaller than the egg. With a little care you will have no trouble in pressing the latter into the bottle. Fill the bottle half full of limewater, and in a few days you will have a hard shelled egg in a bottle with a neck a third smaller than the egg.

Of course you pour off the limewater as the shell hardens. How the egg got into the bottle will be a conundrum that few can answer.

There was one occasion when Sir Henry Irving received from one of the supernumeraries of the Lyceum an answer which seemed to satisfy him. It was the man's duty to say, simply, "The enemy is upon us," which he uttered at rehearsal in a poor, whining way. "Can't you say it better?" shouted Irving. "Repeat it as I do." And he gave the words with dignity, with all his well known force. "If I could say it like that," replied the man, "I shouldn't be working for 25s. a week."

"Is that all you get?"
"Yes."
"Well, then, say it as you please."
