The Passing of Samuel L. York.

The largest funeral that has occurred in this county for years was held Sunday, December 23rd., when all that was mortal of genial, big hearted, Samuel L. York, was laid to rest in the Waterville Free Baptist cemetery. The funeral cavalcade proceeded from the late residence to the Free Baptist church where Rev. Mr. Currie preached the sermon over the remains. Floral offerings the contribution of loving friends, were beautifully arranged around the casket. The church was crowded with those who had assembled to pay the last honors to the dead. The Orangemen, of which the deceased was one, were out in full force and marched to the church in a body in charge of County Master Lockhart. At the conclusion of the ceremony at the church the pall bearers, William H. Sipprell, A. G. Downey, M. E. DeWitt and E. Lipsett carried the casket to the cemetery, the route being lined by Orangemen who stood with heads "bared and bowed" as the body of the brother "not dead to them" passed on to its final resting place. At the grave County Master A. F. Lockhart read the impressive ritual of the Loyal Orange Association and the body was consigned to earth with many a tear and heart-rending sob. P. G. M. Hipwell, P. C. M. Queen, other county officers and orangemen and friends of the deceased from many sections of Carleton and Aroostook Counties had gathered to witness the last sad rites over the body of the man they had known so long and for whom they felt the deepest regard. Nearly every one in the surrounding country attended the funeral and testified by their presence to the honor in which Samuel L. York has been held in life. It was a fitting tribute to the memory of one of nature's noblemen, an honorable and upright citizen.

Shaw-Everett.

The residence of Rev. B. Colpitts, Woodstock, was the scene of a pleasant event on Tuesday evening, Jan. 1st, when Miss Martha M. Everett, daughter of Charles Everett, Jacksonville, was united in wedlock to Sandy G. Shaw, son of Newman Shaw, Lower Wakefield. The house was crowded with the friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. B. Wiggins, B. A. After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Shaw drove to the Shaw homestead, Lower Wakefield, where they will reside. They have the best wishes of a large circle of very warm friends. Miss Everett was a popular member of the teaching profession from which she will be missed by those she has left behind her.

Gold dollars have no more certain value than some brands of goods; brands that have stood the severest test and have proven superior to all competitors. Red Rose Tea can fairly claim such a proud position. As a standard brand of Tea it is probably without a peer.

Death of Mrs. A. B. Connell.

Mrs. Connell, wife of A. B. Connell, Q. C., died at her home on Connell Street at ten o'clock on Monday morning. She had been ill about a year and though everything possible was done to improve her health she gradually declined. Though no hope had been entertained of her recovery yet her death came as a shock to her family and a large circle of friends. Mrs. Connell was the only daughter of the late Sheriff Dibblee. She leaves, beside her husband, three sons, Kenneth, Beresford and Norris, all of whom are at home, and one brother Col F. H. J. Dibblee.

Mrs. Connell's funeral will take place Wednesday. Private service at the house at 1.30 and at St. Luke's Episcopal church at 2.00 o'clock p. m.

Death of Ashall M. Brodrick.

Ashall M. Brodrick died at his home in Brighton, Mass., on Friday last of pneumonia at the age of 72 years. Mr. Brodrick was born in Nova Scotia but for some years he lived at Upper Woodstock. He leaves a widow, who was Miss Emery, sister of Hamilton Emery, Jacksonville, and two sons Harry and Norris N. Norris N. arrived in Woodstock on Saturday to make arrangements for his father's funeral here. Harry Brodrick arrived on Monday with the remains. A large number of people, including the Woodstock Masonic Lodge who were in regalia, met the remains and followed them to Jacksonville where they were interred. Mrs. Brodrick is ill at home and was unable to accompany her husband's remains to Woodstock. Mr. Brodrick had many friends in Carleton County who will remember him well. His family have the warm sympathy of the community in which they live and of that in which they formerly lived.

Cronkhite-Hillman.

Wednesday, Dec. 26th, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Hillman was the scene of an interesting event, when Rev. G. B. Macdonald, of Meductic united in the holy bond of wedlock their second daughter Isabel, and Abraham Cronkhite, one of Southampton's most promising young men. At eleven o'clock the bridal party entered the parlor. After the ceremony they repaired to the dining-room, which was tastefully decorated with evergreen, where a sumptuous wedding lunch was spread.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a suit of dove-colored crepon, trimmed with lavender silk, ribbon and white chiffon.

The presents testified to the popularity of the bride. The groom's present to the bride was a handsome gold chain bracelet. The happy couple left for Woodstock amidst showers of rice and slippers, to take four o'clock train for St. John. Mr. and Mrs. Cronkhite will reside at Southampton for the winter.

Town Council.

At the meeting of the town council on Monday night, the last meeting this council will hold, there were present Mayor Murphy and Councillors Carr, Gallagher, Jones and Lindsay.

W. S. Saunders, whose term as school trustee had expired, was re-elected.

A bill from Gideon Fields for $63.00 was presented for rent of a house occupied by a Mr. Young who is receiving some assistance from the town.

Coun. Jones said that Mr. Fields did not want to turn Mr. Young out as he was sick and he thought the town should pay the rent. Bill was referred to the Poor Committee.

The report of the town treasurer showed a bank balance due of $4585.39.

Presentation.

The residence of Mr. William Harris, Bath, was the scene of a very pleasant surprise, when the choir of the Methodist church met there and presented his daughter, Miss Bessie, with a handsome sealskin collar accompanied with an address as a slight token of their appreciation of the valuable services she had rendered them as organist of the Methodist church of that place. After the presentation there followed an evenings entertainment of musical and literary talent. Cake and coffee was then passed around, after singing closing piece the party broke up after passing a very pleasant.

Card of Thanks.

To the Editor of The Dispatch:
DEAR SIR,—Permit me through your paper to express my heart-felt gratitude to the brotherhood of Orangemen and all the kind friends for their help given and interest shown in my late husband during his sickness, and their great kindness to myself and family during our recent bereavement.

Yours truly,
MRS. SAMUEL YORKE,
Waterville.

Musing.

The editor of a great paper, or the great editor of a paper, is perpetually bothered with suggestions, sometimes not worded in parlor language, as to how he should run his influence of public thought, and sometimes these suggestions come from people who couldn't run a Sunday school picnic. I have heard the editor asked why he didn't print certain items of news. He objects that it is not necessary, the public welfare does not demand it, and many innocent people would suffer by it. But the man who knows everything says "By Gosh! I'd print everything that was true." "If you were to die tonight," asked the editor, in his smoothest tone, "what kind of an obituary notice would you like me to publish of you?" "The truth," said the man who knew all things, "nothing but the truth." "If you will wait ten minutes I'll write just such an obituary notice of you as you seem to think you would desire and then leave you to say whether or no your journalistic theories are all you fondly imagine them." In ten minutes the editor handed the wise man three sheets of paper. Then he arose, took of his coat and vest and his collar and necktie. He rolled up his sleeves and seemed to be waiting for something. I looked at the wise man as he read the obituary. His face became pink, then it became purple, then he perspired, then he arose and his language was not nice to hear, it was not issued for publication. He approached that editor, with hate in his eye and language on his lips. They grappled in a death struggle. I took time by the forelock and telephoned for a hearse and a policeman, then I sat on the table and encouraged the fight. When the struggle was over and the pugilists had been hauled away covered with more blood than glory, I picked up the obituary and read it. Here it is:—

"It is a pleasure to announce the death of old Bill Slocum. The old bum should have died years ago. It is too bad he was ever born. He was always one of the meanest men in town. He eternally wanted something for nothing and never gave anything away but advice and sass. He married a lovely woman whose life he made miserable with his continual fault finding, and whose only streak of luck after she married Bill was her death some ten years ago. Bill's sons all hated him, except the oldest one who despised him, and his daughters stood in mortal fear of him. The editor of this paper was never sure of the existence of an actual, material, fire and brimstone place in the next world, until he came to know Bill Slocum well, and since then he has never doubted it. The new fangled Hell, that hazy spiritual life in which the evil soul lives on in a conscience-stricken existence, couldn't touch Bill. He had no soul and he had no conscience. A lot of people followed the remains to the cemetery out of respect for his family, and a minister of the gospel said a few things at the grave that no one believed and the minister blushed when he said them. Bill's wife is in heaven. Bill is not there."

I am running the paper till the editor is able to get out. Bill's family are telling their friends that he was in an accident on the Woodstock and Centreville Railway.

Hockey.

A meeting of those interested in the game of hockey was held in the office of A. D. Holyoke on Friday evening last when a hockey league was organized with the following officers:—

Dr. Saunders, pres.;
B. M. Macleod, 1st vice pres.;
Geo. E. Balmain, 2nd vice pres.;

There will be three clubs in the league, the Utopias, Wllingtons and Argonauts. The first practice of the season will be held on Thursday night. It is stated that the rink will put up a cup to be played for. Hockey has got to be a popular game and no doubt much interest will be taken in it by the boys this winter.
