

Guide to Etiquette.

Punch recently, under the heading, "Little Queenie's Guide to Dollhouse Etiquette (A complete Manual of Nursery Manners and customs),"

This shows they desire to be naberly and it doesn't mater whether they are "Snap" or "Animal Grab,"

Sometimes you love cards on New cumers that, although they are not strictly dolls, still they may be desirable acquaintances and useful people to know,

Praps you may think there is not much sense in all this, but it is what kepes Sosity together.

When enuff cards have been left to brake the ice, then it is time to begins caulng.

Let us suppose it is your best doll and she wishes to pay a formal caul.

Having thurly washed her face (unless it is paint that comes off) and put her hat strate, and seen that she has both shoes on and propaly buttoned, you accompany her to wherever the new doll is and inquire if she is at home

But suppose she is in, then you will have to do the tauking for both dolls, because they are always shy about conversing outloud.

It is most important to select just the rite toppics, as dolls hate being made to tauk about anything they don't understand, like novlls and pollytics, which are never discussed in really good Sosity.

Some people, such as my sister Mable, genally make their dolls begin with the wether, but this is a silly stuffy toppic and should be left to groanups.

What dolls do enjoy is tauking about their servants. You can make your doll say she has a perfec treshur of a cook, only she will spend most of the time lying under the kitchen dreser, and how thoughtless of nurse to go and leve the mekanikle pig all night in baby's cradel, and etasetra.

Then the new doll says no one would beleve the trouble she has with hers, and her parlummate is leving her just when she had lerned to dress hars to mary the plaster groom in Brother Franky's stabels, but servants are so incoonsidrit and never study anybody's convience except their own, and you can go on like that ever so long if nurse is out of the room.

Then your doll asks the other has she got to know many of the naburs yet, and tells her about them, how stupid they are and what boaring parties they give, tho of course one must go to them occasionally or they think it so unfriendly of you.

And at the end your doll says she's afrade she must be runng away, and she is always at home the second Tuesday and third Friday every other month, and will the other doll remember.

Then go, being careful to leve an Animil Grab card outside, which is for the Doll's husband, if any.

If not, or a widow, leave a "Happy Families" card insted.

Then you must settle when it is your doll's At Home Day, and if she has a dollhouse of her own, see that the droynroom is thurly tidy and free from bedroom furnichur, briks and glass marbles, which kepe on getting in whatever you do, and I believe it is Tommy does it.

Then unhook the front of the dollhouse, which signafies she is at home, and sit your doll on the best chare by the mantelpiece, with the teathings close by.

Never allow a puter teaset in the droynroom it is dreadfully boorshwaw. Directly the other doll is shown in make your doll say How swete of you to come, and the other doll will nobly answer she has been dying to for abslute ages only somehow one never can find time to see anything of one's rele friends.

If the cauler is a gentleman doll, he will remove his hat as a matter of course, unless it is not ment to take off, in which case it will be quite corect for him to retane it on.

A gentleman doll begins conversing by saying was your doll in the Park that morning, and will he see her at the Dutches of Dumpseire's tonight, and yours says she doesn't know, she has so many things on this evening—but I'm sure Mother doesn't know any dutchese, and I don't believe Mr. Bluffey does ether.

My Rival.

I go to concert, party, ball— What profit is in these? I sit alone against the wall And strive to look at ease.

I cannot check my girlish blush, My colour comes and goes; I reddon to my finger tips, And sometimes to my nose.

I wish I had her constant cheek; I wish that I could sing All sorts of funny little songs, Not quite the proper thing.

The young men come, the young men go, Each pink and white and neat, She's older than the mothers, but They grovel at her feet.

She rides with half a dozen men, (She calls them "boys" and "mashers") I trot along the Mall alone; My prettiest frocks and sashes Don't help to fill my programme card, And vainly I repine.

She calls me "darling," "pet" and "dear," And "sweet retirng maid," I'm always at the back, I know, She puts me in the shade.

But even she must older grow And end her dancing days, She can't go on forever so At concerts, balls and plays.

KIPLING.

Don't Forget About Your Corns

If they give you pleasure and you have them as an adornment don't apply Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor for in twenty-four hours they would be entirely removed and their beauty destroyed.

An Unlucky Man.

I'm convicted that I was born into the world an unlucky star. I would rather have been born lucky than rich, but I even miss being born rich.

Thus my run of bad luck began at the earliest moment, and it has continued without a break. I set out to grow homely and kept on at it.

If I went fishing I fell into the water, and got a thrashing at home instead of the parental sympathy I had a right to expect.

If I found some peaches that was fit to pick, and went to pick them, there was a dog under the tree with an open countenance; and if I ate an apple before it was ripe it made me sick, and caused me to be poured full of medicine.

My run of bad luck is still on tap. If I take my biggest corn into a tram-car, somebody invariably puts the heel of a number nine boot on it.

I always entered the barber's shop just in time to get into the chair of the youngest apprentice, who has just begun to practise on total strangers.

If a doctor prescribes for me, the druggist makes a mistake and sends me the horse medicine that was ordered by the veterinary surgeon, and I have to be saved by stomach pump.

At the theatre I sat behind the seven-storey bonnet; and at the races the horse I bet my money on is always last.

I bought an accident insurance policy, and travelled six thousand miles by rail without being killed or crippled, and the day after the policy ran out I fell over a wheelbarrow in the dark and broke one of my legs.

Death or lunacy seemed the only alternative for a well-known and highly respected lady of Wingham, Ont., who had travelled two continents in a vain search for a cure for nervous debility and dyspepsia.

DR WOODS NORWAY SYRUP PINE. This season of the year when coughs and colds are so prevalent, it would be advisable to keep a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup in the house.

An heirloom in a New York family is a receipt for Christmas plum-pudding brought over from England over a hundred years ago. It has been carefully treasured, and has been handed down from mother to daughter, and is regularly made every year.

Never Worry—Take them and go about your business—they do their work whilst you are doing yours. Dr. Agnew's Liver Pills are system renovators, blood purifiers and builders; every gland and tissue in the whole anatomy is benefited and stimulated in the use of them.

Little Boy: "I wish, mamma, you'd find out who it was hypnotized me, and punish 'em severely."

Mamma: "Wha-at?" Little Boy: "While you was out I was pulled right into the pantry and forced to eat a hull lot of those jam-tarts you said I mustn't touch."

Some Won't Believe It.

Many people who have suffered the acute misery of itching or bleeding piles for years in spite of medicines and operations won't believe that Dr. Chase's Ointment is an actual cure.

Sold!

"What do you do when people come in and bore you?" a warm personal friend asked of a merchant.

"When they stay too long the office-boy, who is very bright and knows when to interfere, tells me that a gentleman in the counting-house is waiting to see me on important business."

"Ha, ha! that's a capital way to get rid of bores why don't you know?"

Just then the boy opened the door and sang out: "Gent in the counting-house, sir, waiting to see you on important business."

Fools Use Washes and Snuffs.

Wise people use Catarrhazone. Why? Snuffs reach only a limited area, washes are limited in their application also. Catarrhazone reaches every air cell, the entire mucous surface of the throat, lungs and nasal passages.

THE DEBTORS' DESPAIR.—A cafe proprietor in Bloomfield, New Jersey, has hit upon a novel method of making his debtors that desert him for a rival concern settle their bills promptly.

Infants too young to take medicine may be cured of croup, whooping cough and colds by using Vapo-Cresolene—they breathe it.
