LIVING IN LONDON.

It is Not a Good Place for a Man of Small Income.

An American, who, in the classical language of his country, is at present 'located' in London, wants to know whether any city in the world is quite so niggardly as our town. He has been going the round of the London restaurants, and has encountered in the management of them a spirit which distresses him. 'There is, to begin with,' he says, 'a charge of from 2d. to 6d. for guarding your hat and coat in the cloakroom, and a tip in addition is expected. You want to wash your hands—another 2d. or another 6d., and another tip. You take up the menu, and behold! there is an intimation that a charge of 3d. each person will be made under the guise of "table money." The charge varies according to the nature of the place—3d. is the lowest, 6d. perhaps the average; at a great many restaurants it is 1s., and in at least two that I have visited 1s. 6d. The only difference is that in the lower-priced restaurants it is called "table money" and in the higher priced ones placed under the captivating head of "couvert." To my mind, an entrance fee, frankly demanded at the door, would be much less offensive than to find yourself asked at the end of a dinner to pay for the trouble and expense of cleaning up the cutlery you have used.'

His conclusion of the whole matter is that 'London lives' by imposing a fixed tariff on the accessories that in every other city I have ever been to are thrown in gratis; and he thinks that being a gentleman is one of the most expensive professions an Englishman can have. He declares it to be an utter delusion that London is a cheap place to live in. 'For the poor man,' he says, 'the man whose income is less than £800 a year, there is no city where less can be had in the way of comforts and even the necessities of life. In New York it is only the luxuries that cost; the expenses of every-day living may be as great, or as small as one cares to make them. New York, in fact, is laid out for the poor man. From the transportation system to the price of such fundamental charges on the household treasury as coal, ice, fuel, meat, bread, milk and fruit, almost everything conspires to bring him in a good return for a very small outlay. All these things are cheaper in New York than in London.'—London 'Chronicle.'

"The Something Just As Good"

Substituted For
PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

Beware of Druggists Who Sell Imitations Knowing them to be Such.

"That Something Just As Good" which is a poor and worthless imitation of life-saving Paine's Celery Compound is foisted on many an unsuspecting buyer by dishonest and greedy druggists and dealers who have not the slightest interest in the welfare of the sick and afflicted. Their thoughts are wholly centered on extra large profits; it is a matter of indifference to them whether you or your friends live or die. We have recently come into possession of one of the imitations referred to; we have had it chemically examined, and find it unfit for human use.

The large majority of our druggists are honest and sympathetic men, and will never condescend to substitution or deception. You should however, when any one suggests the "Something Just As Good" or offers you a vile imitation for the Paine's Celery Compound which alone can meet your case, at once resent his impertinence and leave his store. All honest and straightforward druggists gladly recommend Paine's Celery Compound to their customers and speak with pleasure about the wonderful cures it has effected.

Beware of the "Something Just As Good" and all imitations. See that the name PAINE'S is on wrapper and bottle.

Trapping a Witness.

(From the Cincinnati 'Commercial Tribune.')
A case was being tried in a country court. A horse had been stolen from a field, and the evidence all pointed to a certain doubtful character of the neighborhood as the culprit. Though his guilt seemed clear, he had found a lawyer to undertake his defence. At the trial the defendant's counsel expended his energy in trying to confuse and frighten the opposing witnesses, especially a farmer, whose testimony was particularly damaging. The lawyer kept up a fire of questions, asking many foolish ones, and repeating himself again and again in the hope of decoying the witness into a contradiction.

'You say,' the lawyer went on, 'that you can swear to having seen this man drive a horse past your farm on the day in question?'

'I can,' replied the witness wearily, for he had already answered the question a dozen times.

'What time was this?'

'I told you it was about the middle of the forenoon.'

'But I don't want any "abouts" or "mid-dles." I want you to tell the jury exactly

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

MRS. I. STEEVES, Edgett's Landing, N.B., writes on Jan. 18, 1901: "In the fall of 1899 I was troubled with a severe pain in the back. I could scarcely get up out of a chair and it gave me great pain to move about. I took one box of Doan's Kidney Pills and was completely cured. I have not been troubled with it since."

the time.'
'Why,' said the farmer, 'I don't always carry a gold watch with me when I'm digging potatoes.'

'But you have a clock in the house, haven't you?'

'Yes.'

'Well, what time was it by that?'

'Why by that clock it was just 19 minutes past 10.'

'You were in the field all the morning?'

went on the lawyer, smiling suggestively.

'I was.'

'How far from the house is this field?'

'About half a mile.'

'You swear, do you, that by the clock in the house it was just 19 minutes past 10?'

'I do.'

The lawyer paused and looked triumphantly at the jury. At last he had entrapped the witness into a contradictory statement that would greatly weaken his evidence.

The farmer leisurely picked up his hat and started to leave the witness stand. Then, turning slowly about, he added:

'I ought, perhaps, to say that too much reliance should not be placed on that clock as it got out of gear about six months ago, and it's been 19 minutes past 10 ever since.'

Blood-Curdling Names.

A London newspaper once pointed out in all seriousness some time back that the "natural savagery" of the Irish people in their struggle for Home Rule added some to the blood-thirstiness of the names of their towns and country districts. Many of these places are named "Kil" something or another—

"Kil" in Irish meaning church—such as Killarney, Killahee, Kildare, Kilkenny, Kilrush and Kilruddery.

This recalls the story of an Englishman who went over to Ireland to assist an old college chum who was standing in the Unionist interest for a constituency in the south of Ireland, and who, in his ignorance of this geographical nomenclature, was considerably startled on hearing at a railway station the following conversation between two wild-looking peasants:

"I'm just after bein' over to Kilpatrick," said one.

"An' I," replied the other, "am afther bein' over to Kilmory."

"What murderers they are!" thought the Englishman. "And to think they talk of their assassinations so publicly!"

"And where are you goin' now, Jim?" asked assassin No. 1.

"I'm goin' home to Kilmore," was No. 2's reply. The Englishman's blood curdled.

"Kilmore, is it?" said the other. "Faix, you'r bether be comin' wid me to Kilmalea."

The story goes that the frightened Englishman went no farther on his journey. He waited at the station for the next train back to Dublin, and returned to England by the first boat.

Foods That Taint Milk.

The presence of wild garlic or wild onions in pastures, the use of turnips and other feeds containing oil, must be avoided where cows are giving a large amount of milk. Feeds which have a bad odor, such as silage, must be fed right after milking and at no other time; otherwise the milk and resulting butter are apt to show the effects. In all cases keep these feeds away from the cow during milking time. Taints from silage or other foul feeds are transmitted through the air; consequently if the air is full of silage odor the milk is apt to show it. If, however, feeds of this kind are given directly after milking the product from the cow cannot be distinguished from that produced from other feeds, although condensing factories and some creameries prohibit its use.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

After being in business at Bristol for five years, I have decided that it will be better for my customers and better for me to sell goods only on the Cash System.

By adopting the new plan I will be able to buy for spot cash and thus secure large cash discounts, the benefit of which my customers will receive in lower prices.

In discussing this business change with merchants who have tried both systems, they inform me that under the new system they are able to sell goods remarkably cheaper than under the old.

I therefore desire to announce that commencing with January 1st, 1902, I will sell goods for pay down only.

Farm Produce will be taken in exchange for goods. Yours truly,
FRED. A. PHILLIPS,
Bristol.
