Feeding and Management of Colts.

Many people think that a mare should rest from work for several weeks before foaling. This is not so. If a brood mare has been accustomed to farm work let her continue at such work until a few days before she is due to foal. Moderate work is not only harmless, but beneficial to mares in foal, provided proper care be taken to not overload them. It is certainly better than keeping them tied up in the stable, or permitting them to run at large in the fields with other horses. In the former case they suffer from want of exercise, and in the latter they are very liable to accidents from racing, playing or fighting with one another. After the foal is dropped the mare should have a few days rest, not only for her own sake, but for that of the foal as well. When the time of foaling approaches the dam should be turned loose in a large box stall, or if the weather be mild in a paddock. When the mare is a valuable one, and the prospective foal is looked for with a good deal of interest, it is well to watch her closely, as many valuable animals have been lost, which by a little attention at the right moment might have been saved. About the best time for foaling is the latter part of May, as there is then an abundance of grass, and the heat is not excessive. Autumn colts will do well if carefully wintered. Colts born in summer, fly time, should be housed during the day, and the mare fed green feed. These extra cares are an objection to this time of breeding. For a considerable period before foaling the mare should be fed on soft food, so as to keep her bowels open and stimulate the flow of milk. The foods that have been found useful in increasing the flow of milk in the cow will have the same effect upon the mare. Wheat bran is particularly desirable, fed in the form of a mash, oats, clover hay and carrots are all good, but plenty of good fresh grass is probably the best aid to healthy and abundant nutrition for both mare and foal.

It is of the highest importance that the young horse should start life in full health and vigor and to this end he should very soon after birth take a good draught of the colostrum or first milk of the dam. Colostrum has a purgative effect which is necessary in order to cause the bowels to assume their natural functions. If this is not accomplished naturally a gentle purgative of castor oil should be given. If the foal is born in the foetal membrane, it must be liberated at once, or it will suffocate. If the navel cord is not ruptured it may be tied tightly in two places near together and cut between the cordings or it may be severed by scraping it with a dull knife about two inches from the navel. Colts will bleed to death if the umbilical cord is severed too close to the body and too soon after the colt is born; careful watching is better than luck at such times. Foals are very subject to a disease called joint evil, which is almost always fatal, and when not actually fatal, renders the foal not worth raising. Recent investigations have shown that this disease is caused by blood poisoning, the poisonous matter entering through the newly severed navel cord, from the litter or some other injurious substance touching the wound, and that by carefully disinfecting the navel the disease can be avoided in most cases. A weak solution of carbolic acid is very good for the purpose. Among the other common troubles of young colts are diarrhoea and constipation. The former is usually caused by over feeding or exposure to inclement weather and should be checked at once by the use of such correctives as parched flour, rice meal gruel, and boiled milk. Constipation on the other hand may be relieved by the use of castor oil and by injections of warm water to which soap has been added. In all cases of derangement it is well to at once lessen the amount of feed of both dam and foal, thus assisting nature to restore the digestive tract to its proper condition.

At two or three months old the foal will begin to nibble grain from the mother's feed box, and by the time it has reached the age of five or six months it should be accustomed to eat all sorts of food. The weaning of the foal should be done gradually and when it has grown used to eating it should be confined in a loose box where there is nothing in which it can become entangled and fed on soft feed. The dam should then be put on dry feed and given moderate work. The milk must be removed occasionally, but it is better not to milk dry, as the secretion will cease sooner. As soon as the foal is properly weaned he should have the run of a good pasture as there is no food better than grass, no medicine as good as exercise, fresh air and sunlight. As the weather grows colder the foal should be put in the stable at night and fed a little oats or bran. As soon as the winter sets in he should if possible have a loose box and be let out every day for an hour or two for exercise, feeding a little bran mash, a few carrots and clover hay. With such care he will come out in good shape in the spring.

Whenever it is practicable the colt should be broken to halter while yet a suckling, and the earlier in life this process is commenced the more easily it will be accomplished. He may soon be led by the side of the dam without difficulty, and when once accustomed to being guided by the halter it will be an easy matter to lead him anywhere. By the time he is weaned he will lead like an old horse and when the time comes to break him to harness he will give little trouble; in fact he is already broken. When a colt is two and one half years old hitch him alongside of a steady, aged horse and he will become accustomed to work. Use him to do light work the first winter and so prepare him to take a share of the spring seeding on the farm. Always be careful not to put him to the hardest work until he is fully developed and capable of his side at anything that is to be done on a farm.

Shakespeare vs. Bacon.

After a long sojourn in the cheerless and desolate caves of oblivion, the Shakespeare-Bacon controversy is once more in the center of the stage, with the limelight shining upon it and a huge chorus of argumentative cranks in a double row behind it. Some of the latest theories promulgated are, according to the Baltimore "News," as follows:

- (a) That Bacon and Shakespeare were one and the same man.
- (b) That Bacon wrote the Shakespearean plays while in prison serving a sentence of one year for profanely cursing and swearing on the public highway.
- (c) That the name Bacon was merely Shakespeare's nom de plume, assumed because the bard was a ham actor.
- (d) That Shakespeare, being ashamed of his plays, blamed Bacon.
- (e) That Shakespeare invented the Bacon-

The Baby Sick?

Then probably it's a cold. Babies catch cold so easily and recover so slowly. Not slowly, however, when you use Vapo-Cresolene. Then a single night is all that is necessary for a cure. You just put some Cresolene in the vaporizer, light the lamp beneath, and place near the crib. While baby sleeps he breathes in the healing vapor. Cold loosens, inflamed membranes heal, and all trouble ceases. It's a perfect specific for whooping-cough and croup.

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. A Vapo-Cresolene outfit, including the Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a life-time, and a bottle of Cresolene, complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. (g) That Shakespeare sold out his play-writing business to Bacon after writing half of the plays.

(h) That Shakespeare and Bacon were partners.

(i) That they were not.

(j) That maybe they were.

The Story of Morning Tiredness

Is told by impure blood, indigestion, sluggish liver and tired nerves. It is a warning of very serious trouble ahead, and should prompt sensible people to take a bracing tonic like Ferrozone, an energetic invigorant and re-builder. Ferrozone will give you a sharp appetite, promote good digestion and sound sleep; it will feed and energize the enfeebled organs, strengthen the nerve and vital forces and regulate the heart. Ferrozone changes that tired feeling into vigor, strength and ambition, and does it quickly. Remember the name, and insist on having only FERROZONE; it's the best tonic made. HAMILTON'S PILLS CURE CONSTIPATION.

Sermons are commonly supposed to be medicinal to the mind of both compounder and congregation, but the New York "Tribune" tells the story of one which, if the minister's servant was right, was an exception. One Sunday morning the late Rev. Dr. Ducahet of Connecticut arose feeling decidedly ill. After a futile attempt to eat breakfast, he called an old and favorite colored servant to him and said: "Sam, go around and tell Simmons"—the sexton—"to post a notice on the church door that I am too ill to preach to-day." "Now, massa," said Samuel, "don't you gib up dat way. Just gib him a trial: you get 'long all right." The argument resulted in the minister's determination to try it. He preached as usual, and after service returned to the house, looking much brighter. "How you feel, massa?" said Samuel, as he opened the door. "Better; much better, Sam. I'm glad I took your advice." "I knew it. I knew it!" said Samuel, grinning from ear to ear. "I knew you feel better when you git dat sermon out o' your system!"

The Philadelphia "Record" succinctly states the case for vegetarians that meat is poisonous, and condemn it severely in every possible way. Water forms 75 per cent, of its composition, they claim, and what gives it its flavor is the principle of active poison in it. Venous blood, they say, is admitted to be poisonous, and it is this blood in meat that causes it to taste pleasantly. To prove their claim they state that meat, washed clean of its venous blood, has no taste whatever, and no one will eat it. "Eat vegetables, fruits and grains," say the vegetarians, "if you would be healthy. Join our ranks, for one-third of the world's inhabitants belong to us already—the millions of Buddhists are with us, their creed forbidding them to kill any living thing. Tolstoi is a vegetarian, and Thoreau was one, also, while in the past our fold included Adam, Plato, Voltaire, Benjamin Franklin and a thousand other immortal names."

Mr. Carnegie once listened to a colored preacher's sermon in a little village church in Georgia, and was so much affected by the appeal for funds that he dropped a fifty dollar greenback in the collecting box. Standing in the pulpit the preachers counted up the offerings; then, clearing his throat, he said: "Bredeern, we has been greatly blessed by dish yer contribution. We has heah fo' dollars an' fo'ty cents; an' if" (he looked suspiciously at the donor of libraries), "an' if de fiftv dollar bill put in by de white gemman with de gray whiskas tu's out to be a good one, we is blessed a whole lot moah."

The Pottery Tree of Brazil.

The pottery tree, found in Brazil, is curious and useful. One would scarcely expect to find pots and jars and pitchers growing in it if not on a tree, but the material from them certainly grows in this tree. It is found in the form of silica, chiefly in the bark, although the very hard wood of tree also yields it. To make this curious pottery the bark is burned, and what remains is ground to powder and mixed with clay.

A West Lambton Joke.

The following joke (if it is one) comes from West Lambton:—

Public School Inspector (testing a senior Part I. class in phonetics in a school-room where election day brings the children a holiday)—"Now, little folks, who can tell me what this word is?" writing "e-lec-tion" on the black-board.

Small boy (aside) whispering to Inspector—"Eh", "leek", "shun."

Inspector (not satisfied that the boy recognizes the word)—"What does it bring you, my boy?"

Small Boy (in a whisper)—"Money." The Inspector was satisfied, but he declines to name the boy.

Easily Satisfied.

Some men think they know everything. It was recorded of a freshly-made railway director, who was inspecting the permanent way, that he noticed at a curve in the line that the outside rail was higher than the other, and immediately called the engineer's attention to the defect. The engineer was a man of sense, and did not wish to enter into an explanation of the scientific character and the necessity of the rails being laid as they were, so he exclaimed: "All right, sir; I see exactly what is the matter, and I will have the rails levelled as soon as the up express has passed." And that sapient director went off perfectly satisfied.

Heretofore scarcely anything but the dangers of the use of tobacco have been insisted upon. But now, according to the British medical journals, "Lancet," Dr. Dumon in a thesis for the degree of Doctor of Pharmacy has demonstrated that tobacco greatly retards the growth of the bacilli of influenza, of diphtheria and of tuberculosis.

ALFONDLY 0149.

Alfondly is a very handsome bay stallion, standing 16 hands high and weighing 1150 pounds. He was bred by L. H. Smith, of Arcanum, Ohio, in 1892. Alfondly has the kindest of dispositions, and in addition to his speed, he has characteristics which render him a particularly valuable "all-round" horse. No one could wish a more nearly perfect driving horse than Alfondly. His gait is the poetry of motion, and he is faster than any other horse for scores of miles around. He is also a great campaigner, and, as an illustration of his powers in this direction, we may cite a few instances from his work as a three-year-old. In his first race, on May 28, before fairly in condition, he came out second in 2:20. Out of the next eight races in which he took part, he won seven, six in straight heats, and in the other took the first heat, and was then drawn on account of an accident. On August 2, at Middletown, Indiana, he went up against a field of twelve competing horses. There he distanced, or caused to be drawn, five of the number, and won the race in straight heats, as usual. His crowning glory was his performance at Richmond, Indiana, on September 12, 1895, where he again carried all before him, lowering his record to the remarkable figure of 2:12. All these races took place over ordinary half-mile tracks. He has trailed a half-mile track in 2:07, which comes very near being as fast as any horse in the world ever paced such a track. In a six-year-old form he started ten times winning five firsts and never behind the money but once, and that was for not getting a heat in five, but he was second to Ada P. who got her mark of 2:09 in that race. Alfondly's sire was Petoskey, by George Wilkes, the world's most famous sire, with 23 in the 2:30 list. Alfondly is a double cross Blue Bull with 64 in the list. He will stand at the owner's stable, Centreville, from Friday noon to Wednesday noon, and will be at Woodstock at Gallagher Bros. stable every Thursday. Terms:—to warrant $15. $2.00 to be paid at time or first service. For further information write or telephone the owner.
