A writer in the "Outlook" says of the Doukhobors settled in Western Canada: "One of the few English words they know is 'grease,' and upon my offering them any food, bread, for instance, they would look at it suspiciously and enquire, 'Grease?' They were afraid that lard or tallow might have been used in making the bread, and if so they would not eat it. Some of the Indians do not care to have the Doukhobors visit them, as they are regarded as 'queer,' and I have seen a Cree Indian wave an approaching Doukhobor away by holding up a piece of bannock in front of his tent, with a deprecating gesture and the word 'Grease!'"

Look at the Tubular Separator, then look at some of the other rickety, shaky affairs set up on stilts and called separators. Does anyone need to tell you that the TUBULAR is the best machine built?

You can tell whether a separator looks all right or not. I want you to come and look at a Tubular; I'm not uneasy as to what you'll think about it.
