A Marvel of Development.

In the month of August just thirty-nine years ago the prairie trails of St. Paul were dotted with waggon-loads of terrified women and children flying from the horrors of an Indian massacre; St. Paul itself was anxiously discussing the possibility of an attack. Today, women and children frequent these trails in victorias and runabouts—on their way to putting matches on the well-kept greens of the Country Club. Only thirty-four years ago the American Fur Company's "Red River carts"—made entirely of wood and rawhide, drawn by oxen and driven by gayly costumed Chippewa half-breeds—still came to St. Paul in long, slow, fur-laden processions, and returned to the far north with supplies. In winter the melancholy creak of their gigantic wheels gave way to the yelping of dog trains. Thirty-four years ago, historically speaking, are as nothing; yet St. Paul's present automobile scorching generation has never heard of a Red River cart, and it no doubt thinks of a dog train only as something one eventually eats when endeavoring to discover the North Pole.

St. Paul is no longer a pioneer village; it is an important city. It is known among other things as a "railway centre"; and it has high office buildings with express elevators and revolving doors, a network of electric car lines, two theatres, a million-dollar court house, at least three streets in which the shop windows are civilized, four large hotels, and innumerable apartment houses.—Saturday Evening Post.

A Heavy Drain on a Country's Producers.

Springfield Republicans: The number of Americans now living in the German Empire is officially reported to be "nearly 18,000." Near-by nations are much more numerous represented there as a rule, but for the most part citizens of those nationalities are engaged in productive occupations. They are there to earn a living. The 18,000 Americans, on the contrary, are there to study or live a life of leisure, in a great majority of cases. There means of living are drawn from the United States, and if we may suppose that on an average $1,000 per person is expended there yearly, we should need to export $18,000,000 worth of merchandise a year in excess of imports on their account alone, to prevent a shipment of gold. This assists toward an understanding of why it is that a continuous and very large favorable balance in our foreign trade fails not only to bring in any gold, but is as now attended by exports of the yellow metal.

An Aching Back

Is the first indication of kidney disease, and should be taken as a signal of danger—a warning to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills while yet there is time to avoid the dreadful pains and certain fatality of this terrible disease. There is no guess work, no experimenting when you use this prescription. It brings relief in a remarkably short time, and because of its combined action of liver and kidneys cures complicated cases which cannot be reached by an ordinary treatment.

The Doukhobors.

The Doukhobors cannot be blamed for indulging their eccentricities. It was avowedly to indulge their eccentricities that they came here. But it is surely time that a limit should be put to this importation of the waifs of Europe at the cost of the Eastern Provinces into the North-West. Some of these people have proved hard workers and good additions to the population in that way. But generations probably must pass before they become assimilated to us in character and make good Canadian citizens. The digestive power even of the United States begins to flag, and to it Canada, especially in the North-West has no counterpart. It is found that in elections the foreign settlements, ignorant and regardless of our political questions, vote, each of them, in the block, some head man of the tribe no doubt conducting the negotiation. The best settlers, congenial to us in character as well as used to the style of farming, are returned Canadians or Americans who, without cost to us, and paying for their land, are now flocking from the other side of the line.

Gladstone's Prophecy About America.

St. James's Gazette: Prophecies, even when the prophets are politicians, sometimes come true. Here is a notable Gladstone utterance which we can now look back upon as quite prophetic. Speaking or writing twenty-five years ago of the "menace which, in the prospective development of her resources, America offers to the commercial pre-eminence of England," the Grand Old Man predicted that America, and America alone, "can, and probably will, wrest from us that commercial supremacy. We have no title, I have no inclination to murmur at the prospect. If she acquires it she will make the

A sufferer From Backache

Mr. W. Gilroy, general merchant, Blebeim, Ont., states:—"I am rather enthusiastic in the praise of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and believe I have good reason to be. For several years I was a great sufferer from kidney disease, and had pains in my back almost constantly. I tried a great many remedies, but did not succeed in obtaining more than slight temporary relief.

"A friend of mine advised me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I did so, with great satisfaction. I had not taken half a box before I began to feel better, and now realize that I have entirely recovered. I often wonder now why people go after new-fangled remedies when this tried and proven medicine is so easily obtained, and so certain to cure." Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have an enormous sale because they radically cure serious and chronic disease, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box. All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

acquisition by the right of the strongest; but in this instance, the strongest means the best. Carleton F. Hodge, editor of the "Independent" of Assumption, Ill., is threatened with prosecution by a prominent official of the St. Joseph Saving Bank at South Bend, Ind., for printing the Bible in his newspaper. Editor Hodge says he proposes to continue to use a chapter of the Bible each week, despite this threat. At this rate it will take more than fifty years to complete the publication. "It is to chapters of Genesis and Deuteronomy that the bank official objects," said Hodge. "He wrote me a letter saying there were spots and places in the Bible that were not fit to be put before the people for perusal. For my part I consider that anything that is fit to be the basis of Christianity and to be taught to children in Sunday schools, is good enough to be submitted to newspaper readers along with news items of the day."

In Montserrat the population, although colored, speak with a brogue. This has been an Hibernian island ever since Cromwell used it as a place of exile for rebels. The exiles followed the fashion of the time in forcing the populace into slavery, and the descendants of these slaves, who are, of course, free, are now engaged in making lime-juice and talking Irish. A sailor from Cork landed one day at the principal port, and fell into conversation with a particularly black longshoreman. The new-comer was filled with astonishment at the familiar speech. "An' how long have ye been in this place?" he asked the negro. "Sure an' it's two months since I came over," said the other, meaning that he had crossed from the other side of the island. "Well," replied the Irishman, "if it makes a dacent man look like yous in two months, here's what goin' back to Ireland be the next ship!"

Humors of the English Bar.

Lord Mansfield rarely indulged in jests; but he once made a witty reply to the supercilious and arrogant Sir Fletcher Norton. In arguing a case of manorial rights, the latter said: "My Lord, I can instance the point in person. Now I have myself two little manors." "We are well aware of that," quietly interposed Lord Mansfield with one of his blindest smiles. The blunt and surly Thurlow had little pleasantry; but he once made a witty reply to the youthful Prime Minister, William Pitt, whose constant tone of conscious superiority he could not stomach. Pitt, expatiating on the superiority of the Latin language to the English, cited as an instance the fact that in the former two negatives make a thing more positive than could one affirmative. "Then your father and mother," exclaimed Thurlow gruffly, "must have been two negatives, to make such a positive fellow as you."

Plunkett, the celebrated Irish statesman, advocate, and scholar, was apparently master of every species of wit, from that which lights up an argument or intensifies a thought to the droll conceit or comic suggestion which plays round the midriff and provokes a merry laugh. To a testy and irritable judge, who threatened to fine him a hundred pounds if he did not stop coughing, he replied: "I will give your lordship two hundred if you will stop it for me." A violent storm having sprung up on the day when Lord Campbell, who had superseded him as Lord Chancellor of Ireland, was expected to arrive from England, a friend of Plunkett said that the passage across the Channel would make Campbell sick of his promotion. "Yes," ruefully rejoined Plunkett, "but it won't make him throw up the seals."

The readiness, and keenness of Curran's repartees are well known. His wit was like the vine, which bears the more clusters of grapes the more it is pruned. "Do you see anything ridiculous in my wig?" said a judge to him one day. "Nothing but the head," was the reply. Curran was once addressing a jury, when the judge indicated his dissent from the arguments advanced by shaking his head. The advocate assured his hearers that this did not imply, as they might think, a difference of opinion. "When you know His Lordship as well as I do, it will be unnecessary to tell you that when he shakes his head there is really nothing in it." One of the most felicitous of recent legal jests was a reply of the late Chief Justice Russell of England. Some years before he took sick another barrister, leaning across the benches during a trial for bigamy, whispered: "Russell, what's the extreme penalty for bigamy?" "Two mothers-in-law," was the instant reply.—Saturday Evening Post.

Regular Wear of the Boots

The Sketch: An army officer in charge of a native district in South Africa during the late war presented the Kaffir boy who acted as his particular servant with a pair of strong, heavily nailed ammunition boots. The boy was delighted with the gift, and at once sat down and put the boots on. They were the very first pair he had ever had in his life, and for several days afterwards he strutted proudly about the camp in them, his only other article of clothing being a leather waist belt with a goat skin tuft dependent from it back and front.

But the Kaffir a few days later appeared as usual in bare feet, with boots tied round his neck.

"Halloo, Threehapence," said his master, for that was the name he went by, "why don't you wear your boots? Are they too small for you?"

"Oh, no, sah," replied Threehapence, "they plenty big. Bery nice boots, sah; but no good for walking or running. Make um fellah too much slow, sah. Keep boots now for wear in bed."

Republicans Favour Tariff Revision.

The Republicans of Iowa are not the only ones who have declared in favour of tariff revision. The recent Republican convention of Idaho took even more advanced ground. Its tariff plank is as follows: "That many of the industries of this country have outgrown their infancy, and the American manufacturer has entered the markets of the world, and is successfully competing with the manufacturers of all other countries. We, therefore, favour a revision of the tariff, without unreasonable delay, which will place on the free list every article and product controlled by a monopoly." This plank, it must be borne in mind, was adopted not by free traders, but by a body of avowed protectionists.

As a Food For the Skin

Powders may cover up the disfiguring eruptions, but can never cure them, and are positively injurious, because they clog up the pores of the skin. Dr. Chase's Ointment is a food for the skin. It is readily absorbed, and thoroughly cures each and every skin disease, making the skin smooth, soft and clear.

No woman's toilet is complete without Dr. Chase's Ointment, for, besides being the most perfect skin beautifier obtainable, it can be used in a score of different ways. It absolutely cures eczema, salt rheum and the itching to which women are especially subject.

When the feet are sore and chafed with walking an application of Dr. Chase's Ointment takes out the smarting and allays the inflammation in a surprisingly short time. Then for burns, scalds and every sort of chafing, irritation or eruption of the skin, Dr. Chase's Ointment affords a safe and certain cure. It has come to be indispensable in scores of thousands of homes; 0 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.
